Wanted, Better Strikes.
The Oldest Alligator.
Forcing a Confession.
War On Buffalo Gnats.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IT IS GOOD news that railroads and employes have arranged their differences, particularly good news that workers will have restored the 10 per cent cut in wages. It will be done slowly, in three advances, beginning July 1, but better slowly than never.

Railroad unions, including in their membership the finest type of American citizenship, sober, careful, patient, industrious conductors, engineers and others, set a good example to labor in their patience and unwillingness to delay return of prosperity.

Railroads, perhaps the greatest sufferers from the depression, fortunately find conditions improving. In March, 1934, they took in more than $30,000,000 as against $5,500,000 in March last year. For the first quarter of this year the net operating income was $65,000,000 as against $17,000,000 a year ago.

CLEVELAND, with a strike of gasoline salesmen and a taxicab strike, may be compelled to "get a horse."

Steel workers strike in Birmingham, trained nurses in Chicago, automobile workers leave their jobs for assorted reasons at a time when employers might sell cars. Alabama coal mines have concluded one strike that made 21,000 idle and threatened idleness for thousands more.

Could not workmen find a way to fight each other and their employers without necessarily fighting the public? If the public possessed intelligence, it would enforce some such system. Unfortunately, intelligence in its own protection seems to be one thing of which the public has none.

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA., exhibits an alligator named "Old Ponce" that seems to have found the spring that Ponce De Leon was looking for. He is about 900 years old, and was 500 years old when Florida was discovered by Ponce De Leon.

"Old Ponce" sits as quiet as Fafner, showing no sign of life until food comes. Then he is as vigorous and youthful as his youngest great-great-great alligator grandson, fifty times removed. He weighs 1,200 pounds and eats 75 pounds of meat at one meal.

Except for the difference in age, he is not unlike certain prosperous gentlemen that live at Palm Beach or Newport, have yachts and private cars, and imagine they really amount to something as they eat, drink and produce nothing.

JERRY WILLIAMS and Willy Holzendorf, Negroes, were accused of sending a letter of extortion to L. L. Stuckey, Mayor of Pahokee, Fla., and this, according to Mayor Stuckey, is his method of extracting the truth from Williams, whom he now believes innocent.

First, the Mayor and friends took Williams to an everglade swamp, where a shallow grave had been dug. They stripped him naked, made him get into the grave, pointed revolvers at him, told him he had one minute to live unless he told the truth. Williams repeated his story that a white man had given him the letter to mail to Mayor Stuckey.

WILLIAMS WAS then taken to the West Palm Beach Sheriff's office, and there, in the presence of deputy sheriffs and a representative of the United States Department of Justice, Williams was "placed in a chair wired so as to give a slight shock, good for anybody, to the person sitting in the chair." The "good for anybody" is a pleasant touch.

Mayor Stuckey says Williams thought he was being electrocuted, and was so frightened he "changed color from black to ashen, but still refused to change his original story." Mayor Stuckey told Judge Ritter of the Federal Court that he believed Williams was telling the truth, because he really thought he was about to be killed.

JUDGE RITTER expressed disapproval of these energetic, ingenious methods of compelling an innocent man to confess guilt. Many will wonder what would happen if a group of Negroes should do to a white man what these white men did to the Negro Williams.

A suit for financial damages, that might be profitable, is probably the only satisfaction that the tortured Negro can expect.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., reports extraordinary swarms of "buffalo gnats," a name that dates back to days when there were buffaloes roaming around. The insects appear in clouds of untold hundreds of millions, reminding men of the danger of insect domination, always present.

DAVIS DENIES CONFESSION

FAMILY FEARS FOR LIFE OF KIDNAPED CHILD; RANSOM PAID

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., April 28.—Fear that 6-year-old June Robles may be dead chilled the hearts of her family today as the little girl, due to have been set free during the night by her kidnapers, continued missing in as strange an enigma as was ever written in the desert sands of the Southwest.

Although her rich grandfather, Bernabe Robles, Arizona cattle baron, was reported by an authoritative source to have paid a ransom of about $10,000, and despite the setting of flares from an ancient Indian peak to signal to the kidnapers that their instructions were being followed implicitly, there was no sign of the little girl.

Sixty hours have passed since June was "snatched" by an ill-dressed man from in front of her schoolhouse Wednesday afternoon.

Lights burned throughout the night at the home of June's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Robles, as the father and mother were near a nervous collapse from the wracking torture of not knowing whether the girl was alive.

Several suspects were taken into custody both here and at Phoenix, but after thorough investigations all were released.

For the last 24 hours police and an army of 2,000 volunteer searchers have suspended their activity to give the Robles family a chance to negotiate with the kidnapers.

The emotional thermometer of Tucson was at fever heat as theaters and places of amusement were deserted and the streets thronged awaiting the return of the child.

SLEUTHS BEAT, KICKED HIM, BOY TELLS MURDER JURY

Young Tom Davis, schoolboy on trial for his life, today repudiated his "confession" to the murder of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger.

Testifying in Criminal Court, the 19-year-old South Hills High School senior charged that he had been subjected to third degree methods at the hands of Lieut. C. C. Keller and John A. Funck, ballistics expert, of the state police, during their initial questioning of him at Carlyle, Ill.

He related a nocturnal visit to lonely Middle Lake Lodge, near Carlyle, where, he testified, he was beaten, kicked and forced to stand with his hands over a hot stove. He testified Lieut. Keller told him:

"'As soon as you are ready to repeat what I tell you, you can sit down.'"

Explaining why he had signed the "confession," Davis said:

"I knew I hadn't done it. And I thought that when I got back home I could prove it."

Davis testified he agreed to sign the confesion only after threats of harm. Taken back to the Carlyle jail, Davis testified he signed the statement dictated by Lieut. Keller.

He added:

"They told me they'd kill me, that I'd never leave that place alive unless I signed the confession."

Davis then related his escape from the Carlyle jail, saying:

"It was easy."

His liberty was short lived and he was captured the same day.

NEW DILLINGER ALARM HINTS GANG'S IN PENNA.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 28—(AP.)—Two automobiles, bearing six men and three women, and believed to be the Dillinger gang, sped through this city after having stopped at a local hotel to obtain refreshments.

Authorities of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania were immediately notified to be on the lookout.

Binghamton police reported that one automobile bore Illinois license plates and the other Wisconsin.

A chiropractor named McCann reported to police at 11:10 last night that the two automobiles stopped in front of the Marquette Hotel on Court street.

McCann said that one of the men beckoned to him, held out a bill and asked:

"Say, Doc, how'd you like to get us four shots of whisky?"

McCann declared:

"When I saw his face I was sure it was Dillinger."

The chiropractor declared that he complied with the man's re-

NEWSPAPER MAILERS REFUSE TO ARBITRATE

In defiance of their own international union officers and pleas of the National Recovery Administration to arbitrate, mailing room employes of the three Pittsburgh newspapers today continued their strike for an increase in wages.

The mailing room employes, who took a strike vote after the publishers had offered to arbitrate the dispute through any person selected by both sides, today continued to refuse the plea of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, and the National Labor Board asking that no action be taken until plans for conciliation could be put into operation.

The men today continued to defy the request that the men refrain from a strike made by Munro Roberts, international secretary-treasurer of the Mailers' Union.

Several arrests of strikers and their sympathizers were made last night and today, after violence had been resorted to.

After the strike was called, Roberts, in a written statement, deplored the walkout and volun-

LARRY FRENCH TAKES MOUND AGAINST REDS

FORBES FIELD, April 28.—The Cincinnati Reds, under the leadership of Catcher Bob O'Farrell, made their season's debut at Forbes Field this afternoon as they clashed with the Pirates. The series was slated to have started yesterday, but the contest was postponed on account of cold weather.

Larry French, the Buccos' ace lefthander who was unable to finish in either of his two previous starts this season, was on the slab for the home team. French was credited with a victory in his first clash of the year, but in this clash with the Cardinals he was relieved by Leon Chagnon.

Allyn Stout, the righthander who gave the Pirates a lot of trouble in Cincinnati about one week ago, and Southpaw Joe Shaute warmed up on the practice mound for the Reds.

GIRL CRIES FOR LIFE OF 'MY MAN' DILLINGER

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 28.—Crying for the life of her lover marked for death on sight, Evelyn Frechette, black-eyed girl of part Indian blood, sat in her somber cell today, pleading for "justice" for herself and John Dillinger.

Told that the nation's countless officers of the law grimly waited with guns cocked for even a glimpse of the phantom gunman, Miss Frechette sobbed:

"He cannot be as bad as they say he is, for I myself know that anybody who has been as kind and true to me during the year that I have known him, cannot be guilty of the things that they accuse him of.

"He is my man. If I could be with him now I know that I would be in his arms. And just as soon as I can convince them that I have done nothing wrong and am free, I will flee to him, regardless of where he may be.

"They musn't kill him. It is not right that they should take his life like that. He will see or hear what I am saying, and he will give himself up if given half a chance. I know I cannot prevent what they may do to him after they catch him but they must not kill him in cold blood."

Another thing that worries Dillinger's sweetheart now is that the cramped confines of the tiny county jail cell prevent her from practicing her favorite hobby—tap dancing. She said:

"You see, it's kind of close quarters here and besides there isn't any music."

Posse Slays 2 Convict Kidnapers

VICTORVILLE, Cal., April 28.—(AP.)—Sudden death at the hands of a quick-shooting posse of desert folk ended the flight of two escaped San Quentin convicts, one of whom was characterized by authorities as second only to John Dillinger as a desperado.

In a running exchange of gunfire three miles south of this little community, death came quickly to Wanda T. Stewart, 29, and Walter H. Weyth, 40. The two had slugged their way out of San Quentin prison Thursday.

The convicts were trapped by a hastily-summoned band, composed of a deputy sheriff and three deputized civilians, as they drove toward Victorville from San Bernardino, where a short while before they had released two policemen, whom they had kidnaped in San Rafael and forced to accompany them on a wild ride that led through Death Valley.

YOU LOSE HOUR TONIGHT TO GAIN DAYLIGHT TIME

At 2 a. m. tomorrow morning clocks of Pittsburghers will be shoved ahead exactly one hour and daylight time will be officially here.

Most people, of course, will do the adjusting before they go to bed tonight.

Simultaneously schedule changes on all railroads, conforming with the new time, will be effective.

The new time also will be effective in Carnegie, McKeesport, McKees Rocks, New Kensington, Swissvale, Tarentum, Wilkinsburg and Turtle Creek.

PIRATES OPPOSE REDS IN FIRST SUNDAY GAME

The threat of showers was the only discordant note sounded today relative to the inauguration of Sunday baseball in Pittsburgh, the big occasion being set for tomorrow afternoon at Forbes Field.

Pirate officials this afternoon stated that the contest scheduled between the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh club would be staged unless there was a strong interference on the part of the elements. Pirate President William E. Benswanger stated there had been a big advance sale for the red-letter day in Buccaneer history.

Charles Frederick (Red) Lucas, who recently was traded by the Cincinnati club to the Pirates, will be on the slab for the Buccos, according to an announcement made by Manager George Gibson. Play will begin at 3 o'clock.

As the Pirates and Reds tilt the Sunday lid here, the Phillies will be doing likewise at the Baker Bowl in Philadelphia. Their opponents will be the Brooklyn Dodgers.

BREMER KIDNAP CASH TRAPS CHICAGO 'BOSS'

CHICAGO, April 28.—(AP.)—John J. ("Boss") McLaughlin, a politician, was arrested last night on a suppressed warrant charging him with conspiracy in possessing part of the Edward Bremer $200,000 ransom.

McLaughlin was named in one of the warrants issued after the arrest yesterday of William E. Vidler, in whose possession officers found $2,665 in $5 and $10 bills that were part of the fortune paid the kidnapers of the St. Paul man several months ago.

His arrest was announced today by Department of Justice agents.

McLaughlin is already under indictment for conspiracy to possess part of the loot of the $250,000 mail robbery on a downtown Chicago street December 6, 1932, in which he was linked as a "fence" or a confederate with two men now dead, Gus Winkler and Edgar B. Lebensberger.

Legion Commander Ill in New England

HARTFORD, Conn., April 28.—(Universal.)—Edward A. Hayes, of Chicago, national commander of the American Legion, today is ill at the United States Veterans Hospital in Newington, and his New England engagements have been postponed pending observation of his case.

HEIRESS DIES IN HOTEL FIRE ON 21ST FLOOR

International News Service.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 28.—Trapped by fire in her room on the twenty-first floor of the Hotel Schroeder early today, Miss Viola B. Lonstorf, 48, Michigan mine heiress, world traveler and member of one of Wisconsin's wealthiest families, was burned to death.

The woman's body was found lying on the floor of the hotel suite when firemen broke into the room.

Although the suite was practically wiped out by the flames, the fireproof construction of the hotel kept the flames from spreading to adjacent rooms.

Miss Lonstorf's body was found near a window, about 20 feet from the bed. Firemen said she apparently had collapsed in attempting to summon aid.

RUM, DISTILLERY BURN IN $5,000,000 BLAZE

International News Service.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 28.—Fire early today destroyed the famous old Pepper distillery here with loss estimated at $5,000,000 and the cost of one life. Fifteen thousand barrels of aged whisky were destroyed.

Nightwatchman Stanley Travis was found unconscious from burns near one of the buildings and died three hours afterward. Before he succumbed he told police he mistook gasoline for kerosene and pourned it into a stove where he was making a fire to keep warm. The resultant explosion ignited the huge plant.

Four warehouses and the gauging and bottling rooms were razed by the flames. The plant was owned by the Schenley Products Company, of New York.

BISHOP CANNON FREED, RENEWS WAR ON LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., freed of conspiracy charges arising from the wet-and-dry campaign of '28, turned anew today to his fight in behalf of prohibition.

The gray-haired leader of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, now 69, rushed toward the general conference of that church, now in session at Jackson, Miss.

Before boarding his train here late last night, Cannon pledged himself again to the cause of prohibition. Despite the physical strain of a nearly three-weeks-long trial, which found emotions near the breaking point at its end, the bishop declared himself feeling "far better" than when the first rumbles of legal trouble started four years ago.

A jury found Cannon and Miss Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer of his headquarters committee, anti-Smith Democrats, "not guilty" yesterday of a charge of conspiring to conceal contributions made for defeating Alfred E. Smith, 1928 Democratic presidential nominee, in the South.

The acquittal ended forever any legal question of the manner in which the churchman used the more than $100,000 he received during and just after the campaign.

POWER QUIZ LINKS TAFT, HOOVER, PITTSBURGHERS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Testimony that former President Hoover, while Secretary of Commerce, rushed through the government printing office a pamphlet opposing public ownership of utilities has gone into the Federal Trade Commission's record.

Evidence that utility interests sought the influence of the late William Howard Taft to get consent of the Smithsonian Institution for wide republication of the Smithsonian's limited edition of the pamphlet was also introduced.

Taft, then Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, was also chancellor of the Smithsonian at the time.

The record of Hoover's reputed eagerness for quick publication of the pamphlet came to the Trade Commission from hitherto unpublished files of a Pennsylvania legislative commission which, in an

PINCHOT ASSAILS MELLONS, CALLS REED 'HIGH-HAT'

GOVERNOR HITS STEEL TRUST, SENATOR

'Steedles, M'Clures of Party' Put on Spot In Speech Here

Ripping into the Mellons and Senator David A. Reed, Gov. Gifford Pinchot last night launched his drive for the Republican nomination to the U. S. Senate at a mass meeting in North Side Carnegie Hall.

His voice clear and vigorous in his first public address of the campaign, the Governor announced this keynote:

"I am a candidate because I object to having Mellon and the steel trust own and operate a United States Senator.

"I am here tonight as an opponent of Andrew W. Mellon and the whole Mellon tribe."

Marshaled behind the candidate as he addressed the full and enthusiastic hall was his Allegheny County support, a politically strange and almost irreconcilable company.

There was Judge Ralph H. Smith, the recognized local Pinchot leader, and beside him County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who formerly filled his shoes.

HARRIS AT RALLY

There was Senator Frank J. Harris, who yesterday came out for Pinchot, although he supports Charles J. Margiotti for Governor. County Controller Robert G. Woodside, a supporter of Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, was present, having yesterday made his Pinchot indorsement; and another Shannon backer, County Treasurer Robert S. Cain.

County Recorder of Deeds Samuel Foster, for Shannon, and Councilman Charles Anderson were on the stage.

Of Mellon the Governor declared:

"Today the best and the worst that can be said for him politically is that he is an associate of Jimmie Coyne and owns a member of the U. S. Senate.

"If Mellon's candidate for Senate is defeated in this election that will be the end of the Mellon power in Pennsylvania."

'DOLLAR VS. MEN'

As for Reed:

"Senator Reed believes in dollars rather than in men, women and children, as his whole career and his votes in the Senate show.

"If I were advising Senator Reed I would say to him, 'Don't be so high hat. Conceal your contempt for the plain people.'"

Pinchot's stand on the party was:

"I am against McClures. I am against Steedles. I am for doing away with the need to apologize for anyone in high position in the Republican party."

ASSAILS STEEL TRUST

The H. C. Frick company next bore the brunt of the Governor's wrath. Discussing the Fayette County strike, he said:

"The abominably unfair treatment of its employes by the Frick company was the tinderbox which time and again threatened to ignite the whole bituminous field."

Pinchot said he had sent the National Guard into the coal fields to protect the peace which the workers were trying to keep and the steel trust to disrupt.

He pointed out that Senator Reed's law firm was counsel for the steel trust.

In the governorship race, he said he was taking no position for or against anyone.

JUDGE SMITH PRESIDES

Receiving perhaps the most enthusiastic reception of the evening, Judge Smith took the chairmanship of the meeting.

McGovern, opening his fifth Pinchot campaign, declared that the Governor's one program had been the betterment of Pennsylvania.

McGovern, however, uncovered an unpleasantness of the past months in an addenda to his prepared speech. Rumors, he said, that relations between himself and Pinchot were strained were "just funny." But:

"I think myself that Pinchot made a mistake when he didn't appoint Havey Boyle to the boxing commissionership. But . . . I turned over the state patronage to my friend, Judge Smith."

Smith, whose efforts resulted in the appointment of Dr. W. D. McClelland to the boxing commissionership, commented:

"There's no place in a going campaign for post-mortems."

The main body of Cain's speech was directed in favor of Shannon.

investigation in 1928 of the influence of utilities on legislation called the author of the pamphlet to testify.

The author, Samuel [illegible] consulting engineer of Chicago, admitted writing and printing the pamphlet by the Smithsonian in 1925, while he was a non-salaried member of the Smithsonian staff and was also drawing fees from the Standard Gas and Electric (Byllesby) utilities, Chicago.

Correspondence between Wyer, A. W. Thompson, former Pittsburgh utilities executive, and James Francis Burke, then counsel of the Republican National Committee, were introduced to show Wyer had proposed approaching Charles Taft, brother of the late Chief Justice, to have the Chief Justice get action from the Smithsonian.

The record showed Wyer as first telling the Legislative Commission he had met the cost of publishing the pamphlet by his personal check, then admitting he had been reimbursed by the Duquesne Light Company, Pittsburgh operating subsidiary of the Byllesby interests.

Wyer was questioned by Morris L. Cooke, Philadelphia engineer, and Harold Evans, Philadelphia attorney, whom the Governor of Pennsylvania had named lay members of the committee. Wyer was extremely reluctant to mention Hoover's name, the record showed.

Insurance Business Gain of 20% Cited

Insurance business has increased more than 20 per cent over last year, Manuel Camps, Jr., of Boston, declared yesterday at the thirteenth annual sales congress of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriters' Association in the William Penn Hotel.

Camps said the depression has taught life underwriters that the "hit-or-miss" system of selling insurance is a thing of the past. Field men report that persons buy insurance more readily now than in the past, he added.

MANAGER PLAN INDORSED

A liberal leadership is all that is needed to return the Republican party to confidence, according to Theodore Klotzbaugh, candidate for Legislature in the Sixth District.

Klotzbaugh, running for Republican nomination only, wants an enabling act to allow Pittsburghers to vote on a city manager plan with a proportional representation voting system. He proposes elimination of all taxes on property for school maintenance, and fuller old age pension and sweatshop legislation.

Jacob Yeager, candidate for Legislature in the Sixth District, has announced his indorsement by Little Giant Lodge No. 627, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. Yeager is an officer of B. and O. R. R. System, Division No. 33, Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

A booster meeting for Lee Donaldson, candidate for Legislature in the Thirteenth District, will be held at Etna Elks home Monday night.

EVANS ATTACKS GOV. PINCHOT

The plight of workingmen during Gov. Gifford Pinchot's administration has been tragic, according to Attorney Raymond D. Evans, campaign manager for Senator David A. Reed, candidate for re-election.

Evans said:

"Through ill-advised legislation, the scope of the remedies of workingmen has been materially reduced and Gov. Pinchot, although aware of these handicaps, did not raise his voice or exert influence to secure relief for them.

"He has converted the Workmen's Compensation Board into a political bargain counter.

"As a result the calendars have been so congested that workmen, their widows and orphans, have been in want, starving and even evicted while waiting for disposition of their cases."

Pinchot's concern for the workingman is simply a matter of getting votes, Evans concluded.

U. S. DENOUNCED IN RELIEF JOB COLLAPSE

'Nation Traitor,' Shout County Officials Left 'Holding the Bag'

Only a few hundred workers in Allegheny County, instead of 18,000, can be employed on the Relief Works program under the new federal allotment for May, according to Philip H. Lantz, deputy director.

The money Allegheny County will receive—a total of about $160,000—would not meet the relief work payroll for even two days under complete operation, he said. The daily payroll, when the Civil Works program was going full blast, was $110,000, and the RWD daily payroll, if workers were paid union wages, would be about the same, he stated.

Lantz made this statement after being informed that the federal government yesterday allocated $7,632,021 for relief purposes in Pennsylvania during May. About $6,250,000 of this will be needed for direct relief, leaving only $1,250,000 for continuation of all work programs throughout the state.

'TRAITOR' CHARGE

The federal government was charged today with proving "traitor" to its own promises in permitting the Relief Works Division program to collapse, leaving city and county "holding the bag" and losing thousands of dollars daily.

The charge was made in a telegram sent yesterday to Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins by Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston, it was learned today. Johnston's telegram appealed for immediate resumption of the program of created work, declaring that Hopkins himself had promised city and county the program would go through if local municipal authorities provided funds for equipment.

SUSPENSION ASSAILED

Johnston's attack was preceded by a scathing denunciation of the suspension of the work program by E. L. Schmidt, chief planning engineer for Allegheny County. He said $1,500,000 were tied up in tools and materials in the county and that thousands of dollars are being lost daily as the result of the suspension.

Danger that the collapse of the work program may be far more permanent than at first believed loomed today.

As one solution, John W. Lawrence, chairman of the County Relief Board, has personally appealed to Gov. Pinchot to convene an extraordinary session of the Legislature to appropriate additional funds for relief.

The treasury of the county relief headquarters had a balance of only $5,500 yesterday after issuance of the relief orders for Monday, according to George P. Mills, director. Approximately $50,000 is needed each day to care for the needs of the quarter million persons dependent on it for aid, Mills said.

WEIRTON FIGHTS NRA SUIT

Paragraph 7-A of the National Recovery Act, guaranteeing the right of collective bargaining, had been attacked as invalid today by the Weirton Steel Company.

In answer to the NRA violation suit brought by the government in the Federal Court at Wilmington, Del., the steel firm declared the collective bargaining section violates the Fifth and Tenth Amendments of the Federal Constitution.

The existing relationship between the company and its employes, the answer claims, is not part of interstate commerce and does not come within the scope of the NRA, according to an International News Service dispatch from Wilmington.

The Weirton company asks that the suit be dismissed. The government's plea for preliminary injunction against the concern will be argued Monday.

PEACE IN ORIENT JAPAN'S DUTY, U. S. TOLD

American, British Ambassadors Given Special Statement

International News Service.

TOKIO, April 28.—Having asserted her guardianship over the peace of the Far East and warned the other powers and the League of Nations against selfish exploitation of China, Japan was confident today her position with regard to affairs of the Orient would not be further questioned by other signatories to the Nine-Power Pacific treaty.

"Japan bears the responsibility for maintenance of peace and order in Eastern Asia with other Asiatic powers, particularly China," said a diplomatically worded statement handed by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota to Joseph C. Grew, the United States ambassador. The same statement was sent to Sir Francis Lindley, the British ambassador. The statement continued:

"The time has passed when other powers or the league can exercise their policies only for the exploitation of China."

Hirota's statement, which was described as the official position of the Japanese government, was made after Great Britain and the United States had insisted upon clarification of an "unofficial verbal statement" made by a Foreign Office spokesman on April 17 which was widely interpreted as a declaration of Japanese overlordship of China.

Assurances that Japan does not wish to infringe on the independence of China and has no territorial ambitions to gratify either in China or Manchukuo were contained in Hirota's statement.

FUNDS TO BUILD NAVY URGED

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP.)—Declaring that the country has a "third-rate navy," the Navy League of the United States said last night there was a "particular need" for funds to carry out provisions of the Vinson Act, which authorizes construction of a treaty strength navy.

The British and Japanese navies, the league said in a statement, are within easy range of a treaty navy in 1936. It added:

"The United States Navy lacks 102 ships of that goal and has definitely declined from superior battle strength at the beginning of 1922 to a navy of the third rate at the present time."

SLOAN'S LABOR CHARGE DENIED

DETROIT, April 28.—(AP.)—Charges made in Boston Thursday by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, that the American Federation of Labor was trying to disrupt the American automobile industry by a campaign for a closed shop, were denied here yesterday by William Collins, national representative of the A. F. of L.

Collins said Sloan's charges were "not in accord with the true situation that now prevails in the automobile industry."

Recalling the federation's viewpoint voiced by Samuel Gompers in 1923, Collins said:

"We have maintained a policy of the American Federation of Labor that was made in 1923 before the New Deal or the NRA, when President Gompers issued his warning to American industry to set its house in order or else the government would have to do it for it."

Allegheny General To Sift Loan Pact

The proposed agreement between the Public Works Administration and the Allegheny General Hospital for a loan of $2,000,000 to complete the new $8,000,000 hospital building in North avenue, North Side, will be considered at a meeting of the directors of the hospital Wednesday, it was announced today. Sixty days will be required for a study of the agreement, according to Dr. G. Walter Zulauf, superintendent of the hospital.

Paper Mailers Refuse Offers To Arbitrate

PUBLISHERS' OFFER

The publishers' proposal to the union follows:

April 26.

Pittsburgh Mailers Union No. 22, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen:

The Pittsburgh Publishers Association offers to you the following proposition:

1—In an effort to compose the present differences, the publishers suggest that a committee representing the mailers' union and the publishers, go to Washington tomorrow to confer with President Roosevelt or Gen. Johnson or Senator Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, and that conciliation be conducted under the auspices of any representative that they may suggest; or

2—That the publishers are willing to conduct meetings in conciliation under the direction of any conciliator suggested by the Regional Labor Board or any representative whom Gen. Johnson or the National Labor Board may send to Pittsburgh, or who may be suggested under the jurisdiction of the National Recovery Administration; or

3—That in case conciliation fails, that the publishers are willing to go to arbitration under any system mutually agreed upon or suggested by the parties above mentioned; and

4—Any decision reached by either conciliation or arbitration or any increase therein granted shall be retroactive to April 15, 1934.

The Pittsburgh Press,
The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,
The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

JOHNSON'S REQUEST

Gen. Johnson sent the following telegram to the publisher's, and an identical copy to the union:

Pittsburgh Publishers' Association,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Request you make every effort to avoid strike pending investigation by me.

HUGH S. JOHNSON,
Administrator, NRA.

The National Labor Board sent this telegram to the publishers and a copy to the union:

Pittsburgh Publishers' Association,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

National Labor Board urges parties take no summary action in dispute between mailers' union and Pittsburgh publishers until Pittsburgh Regional Board has opportunity to provide arbitration machinery for peaceful settlement of dispute. Regional Labor Board exists as agency for settlement of labor disputes without need for resort to strike action.

NATIONAL LABOR BOARD.

REGRETS WALKOUT

Munro Roberts, secretary-treasurer of the Mailers' Trade District Union, made this statement:

To the Pittsburgh Publishers' Association:

Gentlemen:

It is with much regret that I must report to you that my efforts to have the mailers of your city conciliate further with you have proven futile.

While the organization has voted not to report for work Friday morning, I want you to know that this action does not have the sanction of the Mailers' Trade District Union. It goes without saying that I exceedingly regret I was unable to forestall this, especially in view of your conciliatory attitude.

You can rest assured that the Mailers' Trade District Union will do everything within their power to supply you with the necessary help and you have the sanction of the International Union to advertise for men in other cities if you so choose.

Yours very truly,
MUNRO ROBERTS,
Secretary-Treasurer.
Mailers' Trade District Union.

State Asks Bids On Veterans' Bonds

HARRISBURG, April 28.—(INS.)—Bids will be opened May 8 for the sale of the second issue of the $50,000,000 soldiers' bonus bond issue, it was announced here. The issue will be for the entire amount yet unfloated, $20,000,000.

M'LEOD FORCES CHEERED BY 'CONCESSION'

Substitute Bill Urged By Steagall; Foes Weakening

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—McLeod bank payoff bill forces wrung a major concession from the administration.

Chairman Steagall of the House Banking and Currency Committee introduced a substitute relief measure as a rider on the bill extending for another year the $2,500 temporary deposit guarantee in the 1933 Bank Act.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation would be authorized to expand its capital to 2,500 million dollars and purchase or make loans on the assets of all banks closed between December 31, 1929, and January 1, 1934.

SEEKS QUICK PASSAGE

Steagall declared it is designed to "get something done this session," in announcing he will press for quick passage.

Advocates of the McLeod bill, providing for full payoff, meanwhile continued their efforts to get their own measure before the House.

Representative McLeod said:

"This administration concession shows that bank relief legislation can't be stopped. Steagall's action is a definite admission that depositors are entitled to relief. The next logical step would be for the administration to get behind the full payoff bill.

"The insurance corporation has had similar power for a year, but has never invoked it. Steagall's bill, however, gaurantees the corporation debentures and thus paves the way for their ready acceptance by bank receivers who had to deal with the corporation."

The McLeod petition to assure a vote on the original bill May 14 now has 82 names and needs only 63 more.

Union Chief Pledges To Seek Peace Here

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP.)—Chairman Wagner, of the National Labor Board, yesterday obtained a long distance telephone promise from Jacob Lobiner, head of the Pittsburgh Newspaper Mailers' Union, that he would urge the striking mailers to meet with the newspaper publishers in an effort to compose their differences.

with their bite and poison the lungs of animals that breathe them in.

THE ARKANSAS and the National Department of Agriculture might try fighting these dangerous creatures with airplanes, flying above them, scattering under pressure a fine rain of petroleum, enough to destroy the breathing of the buffalo gnats, not enough to hurt anything else.

Probably in future the airplane will do man's fighting against the buffalo gnats. Florida might try the rain of petroleum sometime for the salt-water mosquitoes that appear in their billions. Or Standard or Gulf Oil might have their laboratories experiment for the public service, and increase sales.

CHARLES OUTLAW, sixty years old, with gray hair, sat down in the Texas electric chair yesterday, saying: "Warden, I'm too old to die with a lie on my lips. I did not do it."

Law and the jury thought he did murder Mrs. Frank McCall, besides beating her invalid husband, who died later, her crippled mother and her small daughter.

The man may not have been too old to "die with a lie on his lips," for one who will commit a murder almost invariably will lie about it to the very end. It might have been more convincing if he had said: "I'm too old a man for society to kill without disgracing itself."

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

Schnader Party Chiefs' Choice, Says Martin

By SYDNEY H. EIGES
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 28.—Attorney General William A. Schnader has stepped ahead of the crowded gubernatorial field in winning the support of Republican county leaders, in the opinion of Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman.

Maintaining an attitude of neutrality, Martin said the sentiment of a majority of the county leaders today was crystalizing behind a slate including in addition to Schnader:

David A. Reed for United States Senator; State Senator Harry B. Scott, Lieutenant Governor; M. Harvey Taylor, Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Judge Frank M. Trexler, State Supreme Court.

Although he was once reported to have favored the gubernatorial aspirations of Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, the state chairman declined to comment on the race for Governor until after the primary.

Schnader, in a radio address at Butler last night, continued to stress party harmony and asserted that while he welcomed the support of all factions he would play favorite with none.

Charles J. Margiotti, Punxsutawney attorney, verbally lashed both Schnader and Shannon in an address at Philadelphia. He charged Schnader was the "hand-picked candidate of the Mellon, Grundy and Vare forces," and that Shannon at one time sought the same support.

Paul W. Houck, Republican chairman in Schuylkill County, declared the Reed-Schnader-Scott-Taylor-Trexler ticket was favored there.

Roosevelt's College Boys Breaking U. S.--Mencken

Universal Service.

BALTIMORE, April 28.—"Every nickel that the professors at Washington are throwing away" eventually must be dug up from the pocket of the average American taxpayer, H. L. Mencken, writer, editor and critic, declared in a radio broadcast here. Mencken said:

"When I say that Uncle Sam is going broke, it is the same as saying, of course, that the American taxpayer is going broke. He hasn't got the full smash of it yet, but pretty soon he will feel it.

"If any of you think you can escape your share of the bill, then you are fooling yourselves badly.

"Either directly or indirectly, you will all have to pay up. Even if you are getting some of the gravy today, you will have to pay it back when the bills come in.

"And the poorer you are, the more, relative to your income, will you have to pay.

"Has all this waste of money done us any good? I doubt it. We have moved toward recovery, not because of it, but in spite of it.

"I end with what the pastors call a message. This message is not addressed to the taxpayer; he has begun to fret and stir already, and in a little while he will be blowing steam out of every pore.

"I address it, instead, to the gentlemen of the brain trust, some of whom I admire and venerate, though I do not like their medicines. You are wearing out your welcome, gents, and had better begone in peace before the country rises against you."

GRANT'S GRANDDAUGHTER URGES ADEQUATE DEFENSE

20 GROUPS HEAR LEGION RALLY SPEAKER

Gen. Reilly Declares U. S. Only Country Not Arming

American women who believe in preparedness should vote and work to make sure that American troops do not go into another war unprepared.

So pleads a granddaughter of Gen. U. S. Grant. She is Princess Cantacuzene-Speransky, the former Julia Grant, now national president of the national defense committee of the American Legion Auxiliary.

On the anniversary of Grant's birth last night, she was the principal speaker at a national defense rally in Carnegie Music Hall.

SUPPORTING LEGION STAND

Outlining the auxiliary's preparedness program, she said:

"The American Legion Auxiliary takes its program from our menfolk to stand behind the National Defense Act of 1920. And in favor of drafting all groups so that there shall be no profiteering in the next war."

Following her marriage, Princess Cantacuzene-Speransky lived in Russia for many years. Communists, she asserted, have orders from Moscow not to recognize the American flag, to work for the overthrow of the government, and to win the youth of the country.

MEHARD SPEAKS

Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, of the Officers' Reserve Corps, was another speaker. Vigorously denouncing unpreparedness folly, he said:

"The Kellogg Pact was not a renunciation of war, although our children are taught that it was. America has been continuously setting an example of not arming. No other nations have followed our example."

The concluding speaker, Brig. Gen. Churchill Mehard, said:

"Let's keep our noses out of other people's business, but at the same time just let it be quietly known that nobody had better step on our toes either."

Last night's meeting was sponsored by the National Defense Committee of the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Pennsylvania. Twenty patriotic organizations participated.

3 HIGH SCHOOLS OF COUNTY WIN

Three Allegheny County high schools won laurels yesterday at Johnstown in music contests for state championships in the Forensic League.

Bellevue High School's 45-piece mixed orchestra won the state Class "B" championship, outplaying competing musical aggregations from Evansburg, Ebensburg-Cambria and Mahoney Township. R. H. Ruthart is director of the Bellevue orchestra.

Second place in the contest for three to five-piece instrumental ensembles was awarded Crafton High School. The Ebensburg-Cambria ensemble took first place.

Clairton High School's girl trio won second place in the contest for that class, the Edenburg High School, Knox, being first.

Nearly 5,000 high school students from all sections of the state are competing in the championship contests in music and oratory, which contests are scheduled to close today.

DESERTED WIFE GIVEN DIVORCE

Her husband wanted his wife to work, and when she didn't he left her, Agnes G. Hogsed, of 671 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, testified before Judge John P. Egan, who today granted her a divorce from James A. Hogsed. Asked what her husband did she replied:

"Works for Jones & Laughlin, superintendent of pipe division."

Mrs. Hogsed testified she is supporting her two children, a son of 22 and a daughter 14. Regarding her ability to work Mrs. Hogsed told the Court:

"My husband seemed to feel I should work. The doctor told me I couldn't work. I thought I had really done my share."

Mrs. Hogsed averred that when her husband left there was nothing in the house to eat and he refused to give her any money. They were married June 30, 1910.

Rev. A. L. Lindquist Dies in Minnesota

ST. PETER, Minn., April 28.—(AP.)—The Rev. A. F. Lindquist, former McKeesport (Pa.) pastor and secertary to the New York Conference of the Lutheran Church, died here yesterday.

He was 69 and had been in ill health for five years.

M'NAIR WANTS NEW RAILWAYS

Mayor McNair has informed the Public Service Commission that he is still opposed to unconditional extension of the traction agreement and that the entire railways system in Pittsburgh should probably be eliminated.

The letter, written at the request of W. G. Negley, counsel for the Allied Boards of Trade who have been opposing the extension of the agreement, thanks the commission for previously postponing action on the contract.

Concerning the Pittsburgh Railways Company, which is asking for an extension of the agreement, the Mayor says:

"The whole system should be scrapped and another substituted, possibly."

VORONOFF WEDS KIN OF MAGDA

BUCHAREST, April 28.—(AP.)—Prof. Serge Voronoff, the famous monkey gland rejuvenation expert, now aged 68, has married Hilda Schwartz, 21 years old. The bride is a cousin of Mme. Magda Lupescu, the friend of King Carol.

The couple went to Paris on their wedding trip.

Prof. Voronoff's first wife, who died in 1921, was an American woman, Miss Frances Evelyn Bostwick, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jabez A. Bostwick, of New York. Her father left her a fortune from his large holdings of Standard Oil stock.

Bird's Disaster Due Not to Hawk But to Love

CHICAGO, April 28.—(AP.)—A woodcock's spring romance came to a sudden and violent end when it careened dizzily against a store window.

Children rescuing the bird believed it had been pursued by a hawk, but attendants at the Field Museum said it was merely in love.

A woodcock, they said, falls in love each spring and chooses a nest. Then it performs its "mating flight," swooping and dashing about.

PAY CHECK FAKE BRINGS TERM

Pleading guilty to mulcting more than a hundred small store owners by getting them to cash forged pay checks, Albert F. Miller, 40, of Carrick, was sentenced today to three to six years in the workhouse.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall pronounced the sentence after learning that Miller was unable to make restitution to his victims.

Miller admitted he used rubber stamps to make checks that bore the appearance of pay checks from large corporations. On Saturday nights he made purchases at small stores and cashed the checks, taking the balance of the checks in cash, he said.

The total loss to storekeepers was approximately $600, the court was told.

VETERANS HERE PARADE, HONOR GEN. HALLER

Court House Tribute Paid to Polish War Hero

Poland's powder blue and American's khaki brought military brightness to downtown Pittsburgh streets today as the city honored Gen. Josef Haller who led the Polish Volunteer Army in the World War.

Gen. Haller again led the remnants of the colorful corps of Polish fighters he organized here 17 years ago, as they paraded from Fort Pitt Hotel to the Court House.

Swinging into step with the Polish troops were the band of the 107th Field Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, and county and city police.

From a platform in the inner yard of the Court House, Gen Haller explained:

"My mission in the United States is one of mercy, namely to raise among my countrymen funds for the disabled Polish Army veterans now residing in your country."

Judge Ambrose B. Reid then termed Gen. Haller "a splendid hero."

Other speakers were Col. C. C. McGovern, Commissioner W. D. Mansfield and Judge Frank P. Piekarski. Miss Barbara Bursch opened the brief program by singing the American and Polish national anthems.

Gen. Haller was to meet with Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, attend a luncheon this afternoon in Fort Pitt Hotel, speak at 6 p. m. over station WCAE and later attend a polo game at the Hunt Armory.

He will be in the Pittsburgh district until next Friday.

PARROT FEVER VACCINE FOUND

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 28.—(AP.)—It now is possible to vaccinate against psittacosis, the dread "parrots' disease," Dr. Thomas M. Rivers, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, disclosed here last night.

In a lecture at the Yale School of Medicine he said that seven laboratory workers at the Rockefeller Institute already had received the vaccination. He said:

"The virus of psittacosis, which is filterable, is found in sputum of humans who have the disease, and can easily be demonstrated by injecting the sputum into white mice, who develop the disease."

The pneumonia, which develops in scases of psittacosis, is the work of the virus itself, and not a secondary development caused by bacteria, as has hitherto been thought, Dr. Rivers asserted.

'Dillinger' Taxicab Carries Newlyweds

Davis Boy Repudiates Confession in Slaying

of court, Davis was put under cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk.

His answers were quick, usually well-phrased and he seemed perfectly at ease. Ordinarily quiet, he frequently would flash back his replies to Clunk's queries in a sharp, loud voice.

OFFERS ALIBI ON STAND

First step in Defense Attorney Robert B. Ivory's presentation of his case was an effort to establish an alibi for the schoolboy defendant as to his whereabouts on the night of September 3, 1933, when Brantlinger was fatally shot at the Melrose filling station near Bridgeville.

From the stand Davis declared he had spent the entire evening in his home, and at the time the shooting occurred—about 11:30 p. m.—was in bed. Twice, he testified, he was called downstairs after retiring—once to talk to a neighbor about some work he was to do, and again to answer a knock at the door. He did not hear of the killing until the following morning when he read it in the newspaper, he said.

Then Tom told of the night he left home 10 days later, "because father and I had an argument." Upon questioning by Ivory he declared his father had ordered him out. He said:

"I decided I'd show him that I'd make good and come back. I headed West because I'd read of the Superstitious Mountain expedition in Arizona—for gold, I think—and if I couldn't make a strike, I figured, at least I could find work."

The state contends Davis left home because a check by state police of all Ford automobiles in Allegheny County, in an effort to locate the murder car, had narrowed to the vicinity of LaSalle avenue and Broadway, Dormont, where he kept the stolen automobile he drove to Illinois.

RIFLE AT UNCLE'S

The rifle found in the automobile at the time of his arrest in Carlyle, Ill., which the state contends was the weapon used to kill Brantlinger, was at the home of an uncle in Cheswick, Pa., September 3, he declared. The automobile, he said, he had bought for $60 from "a fellow named F. Karl, who said he would turn over the title when the $60 was paid." He had paid only $30 when he left home, he testified.

Explaining the gun battle on the streets of Carlyle, in which Deputy Sheriff J. C. Donnewald was shot in the arm and Tom in the wrist, the boy said:

"He (Donnewald) told me after he found the knife (a hunting knife) in the car that you can't carry a knife in Illinois, and that I'd get life. When we reached the porch of the jail I was plenty scared. He had me by the collar and I was trying to pull away. I said, 'Please, can't you understand—', but he wouldn't listen.

"I saw him reach for his gun. I thought he was going to shoot me, so I got a hold of the gun and hung onto it. It went off and he fell. Then he ran into the jail. I picked up the gun and ran down the alley toward the car. I got away in his—Mr. Donnewald's—car. Mine was out of gas."

Throughout his testimony, the young defendant gestured frequently and talked rapidly. Occasionally he chewed his lips and glanced ceilingward in an attitude of thought before answering a query from his attorney. Consistently he avoided looking toward his mother, who, tears streaming down her face, sat directly in line with the witness chair.

LINDY KIDNAP HUNT DENIED

BOSTON, April 28.—(AP.)—A group of extortionists and not the Lindbergh baby kidnapers, Clarence D. McKean, chief of federal investigators here, said last night was sought by federal agents in Rutland, Vt., during the past week.

The activities of the federal men, coupled with reports that more than half of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money had been found in New England gave rise to the belief that the government's search for the kidnapers of the Lindbergh child had moved into Vermont.

A boy was questioned by the federal officers after he had picked up a package planted as a decoy in a Rutland park. The youth convinced the federal men, however, he had come upon the package by accident.

McKean declined to divulge the identity of the extortionists or their victim. He did not indicate how much money was involved.

LIFER ESCAPES BY SEWER

CHESTER, Ill., April 28.—(AP.)—Another Midwest criminal, Randol Eugene Norvell—sometime aviator, bondsman, gambler, kidnaper and finally a "lifer"—roamed free today, another fugitive testimonial, like John Dillinger, to the vulnerability of prison bars.

On both sides of the Mississippi River officers hunted Norvell, "brains" of the August Luer kidnapers of last July, and his companion, James O'Connell, who crawled through a sewer yesterday to escape from the Southern Illinois Penitentiary.

quest, calling police while waiting for the bartender to pour the drinks.

McCann told the police he saw in the automobiles what looked like sawed-off shot guns, and he thought the motorists were Dillinger and his gang. He said he was not able to get the registration number on the Illinois car but that the plates on the Wisconsin car bore the number 10649.

Police headquarters immediately broadcast a notice to police cars telling them to watch out for the party. The information was also conveyed to the state constabulary, and the Sheriff's office was notified. Sheriff's deputies set out in search of the suspects but a drive as far as the Pennsylvania border failed to disclose any trace of them.

Shot Dillinger Pal, Wisconsin Officer Says

CHICAGO, April 28.—(AP.)—The law's bullets are putting creases one by one, in the John Dillinger gang, but the outlaws haven't lost enough blood to halt their gun-roaring terror over the central West.

George (Baby Face) Nelson, diminutive gunner, is the latest reported casualty in the Dillinger ranks.

A $6,000 bank robbery in a Chicago suburb is the latest outrage charged to the now widely scattered gang.

Al Johnson, a special deputy, reported today at Superior, Wis., he believed he had wounded Nelson in an exchange of shots with him near Solon Springs, Wis., last night. The deputy was wounded slightly.

An alarm broadcast shortly after 10 a. m., today urged officers on a trunk highway north of Pine City to watch for a gray (Ford V-8) sedan, containing two men, one of whom was thought to be "Baby Face" Nelson.

Two men who stole the sedan at Moose Lake at 5 a. m. today, were the object of a widespread search in East Central Minnesota, with authorities warned to approach the car with extreme care.

Johnson said of his brush with Nelson:

"I took a pop at him and I think I hit him. His car careened to the side of the road."

5,000 IN SEARCH

While 5,000 or more heavily armed peace officers, augmented by hundreds of volunteers, searched from Louisville northward to the twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, without further definite trace of Dillinger or Nelson, another of the Dillinger men was identified as the leader of a quintet of robbers who raided a Villa Park bank yesterday.

He was Homer Van Meter, the swashbuckling ally who recently helped his chief in a sensational raid on the Warsaw (Ind.) Police Station, where they replenished their stock of guns and ammunition.

Waving their guns, the robbers swooped down on the Villa Park Trust and Savings Bank, terrorizing four employes and scooping up the money. They fled in an automobile.

Weather Conditions

High pressure is centered over the Ohio Valley this morning, and covers most of the eastern portion of the country, while lows are located over the Gulf of Mexico and in the far West. The high caused a further marked drop in temperature over the Atlantic and Coast states and as far west as Western Pennsylvania. Heavy frosts and below freezing temperatures occurred this morning over Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia and northward over New York. At Parkersburg and Cincinnati new low temperature records were made for so late in the season. The weather is cloudy over the Gulf states, and northward over Tennessee and showers and thunderstorms were general during yesterday and last night. Over the northern states the skies are clear from the Atlantic Coast to the Pacific.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 2.7 feet. Lock No. 7 (Monongahela) 11.6; Pittsburgh, 11.5; Dam No. 4, 9.4; No. 6, 8.4; No. 10, 10.0, and No. 12, 9.5. The dams are up.

Thousands of Letters Received in Motto Contest As Junior Birdmen Compete for Train Trip Prizes

By JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, junior pilots.

Spiraling into the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph office at the rate of about 200 a day, new memberships are increasing our enrollment by the hour and reports from all Junior Birdmen wing cities estimated a total membership registration of 30,000 in the country during the first week. It is doubtful whether any organization in the history of our nation has ever had the response that the Junior Birdmen announcements and daily columns have evoked from the boys and girls in every town and city. Like a call to arms they have rallied and affiliated themselves with our organization by the thousands each day. You members should be proud to belong to our club!

Entries in our national motto contest are arriving just as fast. Our mailmen are pretty heavy these days with hundreds of boys and girls sending in mottoes in pursuit of those four three-day railroad trips to Washington and the 10-day coast-to-coast trip in a luxurious Pullman train which are being awarded.

Even though many members have not received their membership wings and cards yet these boys and girls are entering our motto contest, for remember, Rule 1 states that any boy or girl who sent in his or her membership application, but who has not as yet received the official membership, may enter this competition.

Coast-to-Coast For Winner

In yesterday's column I told you about these three-day trips to Washington that the Sun-Telegraph Wing is offering you local members of the Junior Birdmen. There are four of these trips—two for the members in Group "A" sending in the best mottoes and two for the members in Group "B." I also explained to you the reason for the radical change in the prizes from airplane trips to the same prize trips by fast limited Pullman train.

The reason for this was because so many of the members wrote me that they feared should they be a lucky winner in our motto contest, that their parents would not permit them to accept an air trip to Washington, or the grand prize of an air trip from coast-to-coast. You know, members, I told you some time ago that this is your organization and we will do just about anything that you say. And so, when those many letters arrived, I decided that is was best to be guided by your wishes.

This should enhance the trips a great deal, for you will be taken on the finest trains in the country, traveling in luxurious Pullman cars and having your meals in the spacious diners with the unexcelled service that all Pullman dining cars give you.

Write a Motto!

Here again are the rules of the contest:

1—No boy or girl may compete in the Junior Birdmen National Motto Contest unless he or she is a member of the Junior Birdmen organization. Boys and girls who sent in applications but have not as yet received their membership may submit mottoes. By the time the winners are chosen their membership will have been sent out and their name included on our records.

2—All mottoes must be sent to the Junior Birdmen wing through which you enrolled. Be sure you put the words "Motto Contest" in lower left corner of your envelope when you address it.

3—Members may send in as many mottoes as they choose. Be sure to put your name and address on each list you send in.

4—In case of a tie, all tying contestants will receive the full award.

5—Mottoes may contain any number of words, but preferably few.

6—All mottoes must be in the mail by Monday, midnight, April 30th.

7—Announcement of the winners of the local wing will be made in the Junior Birdmen column of Sunday, May 6th. Announcement of national winner will be made at a later date.

Get your mottoes in at once. You have until Monday, midnight, to post them in the mails. I will give you the complete details of the trip to Washington in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

Happy Landings!

Don't forget those friends of yours you were going to tell about our Junior Birdmen Club. And don't forget to make preparations for the organizing of your own flight squadron. We will inaugurate this feature on May 7, and that isn't far off.

Thirdly, I'm waiting for you to send in your picture—a good clear one that will reproduce in the paper. See that your name and address is attached or else put on the back of it. If you have any questions, send them along also.

Happy cruising until tomorrow —and HAPPY LANDINGS.

Junior Patrol

You can make your alertness pay, fellows!

It only takes one good idea sometimes, fellows, to become famous. Franklin and his kite is a good example. For many years, men didn't know what lightning was. Franklin thought it might be electricity. He put up a kite into a thundercloud with a key attached to the silken cord in his hand.

Soon the current ran down the cord and sparkled on the key. Franklin knew then that lightning was electricity. Later, all the wonders of our electrical world were discovered by other men. But Franklin paved the way. Now we can make artificial lightning in our laboratories. And electricity lights whole cities and the lamps in our homes and runs trains and signals and great motors that do much of the world's work.

That's why we say "Be alert, fellows." You may be the one to discover a wonderful thing like electricity. You may happen across some really new idea that will help man to live better and more easily.

Only a few months of school remain now. We hope that every Junior Patrol member is doing his best to make good grades and to learn the many new things that a fellow needs to know today.

We heard a wise teacher speak the other day. He told a large crowd of people who are interested in the public schools that boys and girls today have to learn new things because the world requires them.

For instance, he said about 100 years ago almost no schools in this country taught drawing or design. And then manufacturers began to notice that many things made in Europe looked better and more beautiful than things made here in America, like dishes and wood carvings and clocks and jewelry. So they decided to start teaching art and drawing and design in American schools. And now there are many fine American artists. And the goods in our stores are mostly American made and designed.

We are getting many new memberships every day, fellows. Tell your friends about the Junior Patrol and ask them to join now, before vacation starts. And if you don't belong to a patrol already, join up.

'Duties of Husband' Topic for Sermon

The third of the Rev. Dr. M. B. Fuller's series of sermons on "Married Life and Home" to be given in the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey streets, tomorrow night will deal with "The Duties of the Husband in the Home, and the Art of Living Together." At the morning service, he will continue his sermon on "Faith and Feeling."

Salvation Army Plans Farewell For Vet Officer

MAJOR ANNA COATE

Major Anna Coate Retiring After Life's Service

A veteran officer, well known in the district and in Salvation Army circles, is to retire from active service in the army tomorrow and in her honor an impressive farewell service will be conducted at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the Salvation Army Building, Boulevard of the Allies.

She is Maj. Anna Coate, who has spent her life as a Salvationist and who, for the past several years, has been in charge of the Salvation Army Maternity Hospital and Home in Bellevue. She has reached the advanced age at which a Salvation Army officer is retired.

In her honor, Col. Ciara Vanderschouw will come from New York to conduct the farewell. Miss Vanderschouw, secretary of the women's social work of the Salvation Army in the eastern states, will at the same time welcome Adjt. Bertha Williams, of Cleveland, to Pittsburgh. Miss Williams is to succeed Maj. Coates.

Col. and Mrs. C. B. Campbell, divisional commanders, the Salvation Army Band, the male chorus, and the Songster's Brigade, will also pay honor to the retiring officer.

'BROTHER DAY' TO BE MARKED IN CHURCHES

Through the National Conference of Jews and Christians, America will forget its religious differences tomorrow in the observance of a nation-wide "Brotherhood Day." Catholics, Protestants and Jews have all made plans for such an observance.

Many of the rabbis and pastors, including Dr. Edward Bleakney of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, Alabama avenue; Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer of the Rodef Shalom Congregation, Fifth and Morewood avenues, and the Rev. B. F. Crawford, of the Perrysville Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, who are serving on the local committee, will speak on this subject.

At 7:45 p. m. representatives of the various religious faiths will gather at the First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue and Bayard street, for a joint celebration. Under the title of "The Town Where Hate Should Die" they will unite with Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, pastor, in proclaiming a message of good will and understanding.

Included in the service will be a farewell organ recital by J. Wesley Linsenbigler.

Masonic Veterans To Attend Sermon

Led by its president, Albert Pafenbach, the Association of Masonic Veterans of Western Pennsylvania will attend evening service at the Mt. Washington Methodist Episcopal Church, Sycamore street, at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

Veteran member Dr. George E. Brenneman, pastor of the church, will preach the sermon. Gilbert C. Friar will direct the choir in a musical program arranged for the service, with members of the Orpheus Male Choir taking part.

Pastor to Continue Talks on Testament

The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, pastor, will preach in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, tomorrow night on "The Iron Gate," a sermon for the help of all who are in any trouble. His morning theme will be "The Greatest Friend in the Old Testament," the seventeenth in his series on "The Heroes of the Old Testament."

Evangelist Canada To Close Meetings

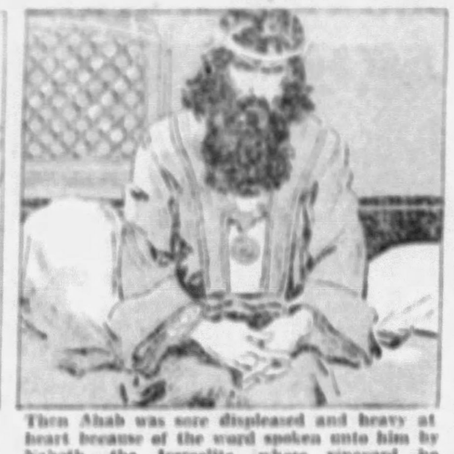
Evangelist Canada who has been conducting special meetings daily in Pittsburgh Evangelistic Temple, Union avenue, since April 15, will give his final message Monday. With him at the Temple is the Anderson Trio, musical artists.

The Story of Jezebel

CHAPTER II

Told in Pictures By DAN SMITH

And it came to pass that King Ahab sought to buy from Naboth a vineyard that was hard by Ahab's palace, either for money or for a better vineyard, but Naboth refused to sell the inheritance of his fathers.



Then Ahab was sore displeased and heavy at heart because of the word spoken unto him by Naboth, the Jezreelite, whose vineyard he wanted to buy, and Ahab went into his house and would eat no bread.

Then Jezebel, his wife, who was a daughter of Ethbaal, king of the Zidonians, came in unto Ahab and asked him, "Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread?" and he told her. Then she said to him, "Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? Arise, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry." And she promised Ahab that she would give unto him the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezreelite.

'Mother' Theme Picked For Religious Rally

Program of Songs Arranged for Volunteers

Capt. Edna Super has arranged a program of "mother songs for tomorrow night's services in the chapel of the Volunteers of America Building, East Diamond street. The meeting will be a real, old-fashioned religious rally with "Mother" the theme of the service, preliminary to the Mother's Day which the Volunteers hold annually.

Capt. Super, who is an expert on many instruments, will be introduced by Lieut. Col. Josephine Wise. Lieut. Wise will speak on "Duty."

CAPT. EDNA SUPER

Service to Honor Pioneer Missionaries

In his morning sermon tomorrow in Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Forbes street and Murray avenue, the Rev. Dr. Jacob S. Payton will commemorate the departure 100 years ago Monday of the three missionaries who preached the first sermon in the Pacific Northwest and lay the foundations of Christian civilization in the Oregon country. He has entitled his talk "Three Spiritual Adventurers."

Forum to Review Roosevelt Book

At the 7:45 p. m. service tomorrow in the East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue and Alder street, the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers will conduct an open forum on "Does America Turn to the Right or the Left?" The forum will be a review of President Roosevelt's book by the same name.

PRIESTS TO GIVE RELIGIOUS LECTURES

For those of any or no faith, interested in religious questions, the Fathers of the New York Apostolate will hold a course of explanatory lectures, opening tomorrow at St. James' Cathone Church, Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg. Tomorrow's talk will be at 11 a. m., with the lectures throughout the week, excepting Saturday, to be held at 8 p. m.

In addition to the questions which the priests will answer, special topics will be discussed daily. They are: "The Lay Apostolate," "Christ — God or Impostor?" "Christianity—a Church or a Book?" "The Pope—Christ's Vicar or Tyrant?" "The Church—Authority or Arrogance?" "Marriage —God-given or Man-made?" "The Mass—Empty Ritual or True Worship?" and "Religion—One Fold or Many Churches?"

CATHOLIC GAIN IN U. S. SHOWN

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP.)—Roman Catholics in the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii now number 20,322,954, according to the official Catholic directory issued today—a gain of 54,191.

During the last year, 49,161 converts were received into the Catholic Church.

An increase of 62 high schools brings the number of such schools to 1,028 with 182,708 pupils. The directory shows a drop of 33 in the number of parochial schools, with 2,224,553 pupils.

The directory says there are now 29,619 priests, 18,224 churches, 185 seminaries, 18 archbishops including the cardinals, and 107 bishops.

'Death Probation' Topic for Scientists

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text will be: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though they were dead, yet shall live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

'Brotherhood' Topic For Rabbi's Sermon

"The Challenge of Brotherhood to Religion" will be the subject of Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer's sermon in the Rodef Shalom Congregation, Fifth and Morewood avenues, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. This will be the last Sunday morning service of the season.

NEW STATE REGARDED AS CERTAIN IN FUTURE GREAT BRITAIN

ENGLISH DEBUT OF FASCISM DOUBTED

Editor's Note: Fascism will not come in England for another two years if ever, H. R. Knickerbocker writes in the sixth and last chapter of his series of the British Black Shirts.

England, Knickerbocker points out, has not experienced the same conditions that led to the establishment of Fascist government in Italy and Germany.

Regardless of what party controls, there will be a new state, Knickerbocker writes, giving the views of Walter Elliott who may be the next Conservative prime minister.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

London, April 28.—Will Britain go Fascist? Will it submit to terror? Terror is the method of real Fascism. The reason why the dictates of Mussolini and Hitler are carried out without any opposition is because in the last analysis castor oil and concentration camp await any opponent.

Planned national economy and the desire to attain it is another thing. It is the one element common to Russian Bolsheviks, German Nazis, Italian Fascists, Mosley Black Shirts, Morrison Laborites, Elliot Conservatives, and Roosevelt Democrats.

Fascists and Bolsheviks unite in declaring they can attain their plans only through terror. Others believe they can attain their plans through persuasion and democracy. On the decision whether terror is necessary, whether it will win in Britain depend the liberties not only of this country, but perhaps of our own.

TWO YEAR LIMIT

For the short run one can venture a positive answer to the question "will Britain go terrorist—Fascist?" The answer is "No, not at least within two years."

For the long run it is only possible to judge Britain by the example of those countries which have gone Fascist. Rule out in the first place the natural British assumption that Britons are "different from Germans and Italians." If the history of post-war Europe has taught anything it has taught that the elemental forces moulding mankind attack each nation with impartial violence and that given the same conditions, Italians and Germans and Frenchmen and Britons will react nearly the same way as makes no matter.

But what were the conditions that brought about Fascism in Germany and Italy? What were the conditions that obtained in those two countries that do not obtain today in Britain? In other words, what are the arguments against Britain going Fascist.

INFERIORITY COMPLEX

Perhaps of paramount importance was the fact that in both Germany and Italy there was a national feeling of inferiority. There was a national disgrace to wipe out. Germany lost the war. She felt she had to wipe that off the record. Hitler has persuaded Germany today that she won the war.

Italy nominally was a victor, but the shame of the Italian rout at Caporetto was, until Mussolini came to power, in the back of every Italian mind. The populace spat upon Italian officers. The flag was a rag. Mussolini taught Italy to hold its head up. Above all, Fascism in both countries restored the national pride.

England has no disgrace to wipe out. Her output of national pride is the largest industry.

In both Germany and Italy Fascism came at a moment when the economic depression was at its worst, unemployment at its greatest. Both Mussolini and Hitler had the luck to get in at the bottom, so that the natural cyclic movement in world economy was booked in their countries to their credit.

MOVING UPWARD

Mosley in England launched his Black Shirts movement just as world and British economy have started to move upward.

In both Germany and Italy there existed a great middle class which had lost three-fourths of its savings by inflation. The economic discontent of these Italian and German middle classes has no counterpart in Britain.

In both Germany and Italy the fancied menace of Red revolution was strong. It made no difference that the menace was only fancied, as proved by the collapse of the Reds in both countries.

It was not the fact but the fear that counted. The fear was strong enough to mobilize the propertied classes to defend themselves. This fear does not, as yet, exist in England.

Finally, in both Germany and Italy the government had ceased to govern. Political murders cost hundreds of lives yearly before Mussolini and Hitler came in. The murders were committed, it is true, at least as frequently by Fascists and Nazis as by their political opponents. But if the liberal governments in power had really governed they would have suppressed the murderers on both sides.

STILL GOVERNING

The British government is still governing. Political murder is unknown. Parliament may be discredited among a few critical minds, but the average man in Britain still accepts it.

All these five factors speak against Britain going Black Shirt Fascist. Britain has no emotional need for Fascism to reinforce its national pride; it is enjoying, at the moment, the beginning of economic recovery; its middle-classes are still too powerful, economically, to feel the need of a strong-arm movement to protect themselves; the fear of Red revolution is as yet latent in England, and the British government is still governing.

What could change these conditions to make the chances speak in favor of Fascism?

First, if recovery relapses into depression. Second, if a labor majority in the next Parliament should encourage the hitherto lamb-like Socialists really to attempt to dispossess the owners of the means of production. Third, if Labor should win not quite a majority and refuse to take the government, with the result that the government would cease effectively to govern.

FAILURE OF CAPITALISM

But over and above all these specific factors there does exist in this country a very widespread discontent with the failures of capitalism. The plans of Walter Elliot, minister of agriculture, are the best sign-posts in that direction. Elliot is touted as the next Conservative prime minister.

He has declared:

"Of course there is a revolution at work in our world. There is a revolution and we are in it. What is more, there is revolution and we are doing it. Our job in Britain is to do the revolution and do it better than anyone else. You ask me where we are to go ahead to. I say without hesitation to the new state.

"You ask me how the new state will look. I say it will be a state in which the people as a whole will have a great deal more spare time on their hands than they have today. The machine state, the scientific state, will continue to produce unemployment. If we absorb them into the body politic, production will no longer be a full-time job for every adult citizen as it was in Great Britain in the nineteenth century.

RECONCILE CLASHES

"Now before we can make much progress with the new state we have to resolve the clash between liberty and security at home, just as we have to resolve the clash between peace and justice abroad. I think everyone would agree that liberty and security are not similar; they are dissimilar, contrasting and even conflicting ideals. It may take a little more thought to agree that justice and peace are distinctive ideals, and even at bottom conflicting ideals—yet it is so.

"If you ask me where I stand, I say I stand for organization at home, which is to say that I am willing to give up a certain amount of liberty for a reasonable amount of security; and I stand for collective action abroad, which is to say that I am willing to give up a certain amount of peace for a reasonable amount of justice."

That, if you like, shows the British character in best form. This may, after all, be a difference between the British and the Continentals. The calculated willingness to take a "reasonable" loss for a "reasonable" gain may once more guide this country, as it has in the past, through the currents of economic revolution without tossing her as violently as others have been tossed.

STRAINS TERRIFIC

"Lastly, I would say, that the stresses and strains of the new era are so terrific that an attempt to solve our problems within smaller areas of the world is more likely to succeed than within larger.

"If you say that this is economic nationalism, I reply that economic nationalism is denounced by many people who have not really applied their minds to the problems involved and who speak of economic nationalism as though it were a disease instead of being, as it certainly is, a symptom of the coming of the leisure state.

"In government, straight government, no doubt it would be an advantage if all the world were run from one center with one great set of files, with indexes and typewriters and telegraphs and dictaphones all clicketting away and settling every five years how all the world was to be ordered for five years to come.

"But we have waited too long for that dream to be born, and indeed it will never be born, never in our time, never for thousands of years to come. Furthermore, even as a dream, it is to the average man a dream lacking beauty. In fact it is a nightmare. We have to organize our own communities and look at our own back-doors for the solutions to our problems.

"The world is too vast and too diversified to get into the strait-jacket of a single international plan."

AMERICA'S PATH

A good many people in this country call that "top-hat Fascism." A good many others point out how much it resembles what President Roosevelt has said, and how nearly it resembles the path along which America seems to be moving.

But Mr. Elliot replies:

"We are tackling the questions of today with no violent change of policy such as it would seem has been necessary in the United States. We have tackled them with no violent revolution such as apparently was found necessary in Germany or in Russia. Yet I think we have got as far along the road as any of these three."

In this symposium on British Blackshirts, three possible prime ministers of England have had their opinions recorded. Their possibilities to become prime minister are of different degree. One is a possible Fascist Prime Minister, Sir Oswald Mosley. One is a possible Labor Prime Minister, Mr. Herbert Morrison. And one is a possible Conservative Prime Minister, Mr. Walter Elliot.

Out of all their opinions there emerges one common purpose. It is not in the intention of any one of the three to permit a continuation of the planless, undirected, free competition of the liberal capitalist system under which we have lived for the last 100 years.

The best brains of the two strongest political parties in England and of the youngest party are at one in this purpose. Whether they reach their goal by blackshirt Fascism, or top-hat Fascism, or labor Socialism, the result for Britain will probably not be vastly different. For they fight among themselves, but the one enemy they have agreed to slay is the old state. By one path or another, Britain too is moving towards a New Deal.

BRITISH BLACKSHIRTS DRILLING IN LONDON . . . . NOTICE THE YOUTHFULNESS OF THE MEN ATTRACTED TO MEMBERSHIP

RUSHMORE TEXT NEWS DUE

Important information will be announced tomorrow in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph for the thousands of participants from the tri-state district in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition.

It will be of concern to every entrant who is submitting an entry direct to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, care of the Sun-Telegraph. It will be of equal importance to every competitor and the committee chairman connected with each veterans', women's and civic organization, as well as schools, directing a participating unit in co-operation with the regional committee.

It will be valuable news to those participants of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia who have just started the task of writing or planning to enter a 600-word text in the historic project.

Never again will there be an opportunity given to every man, woman and child of the country to participate in the creating of a national monument such as the memorial now being carved in the Black Hills of South Dakota. Inscribed on its side will be America's epic in 600 words. Every person is invited to submit a text that will be considered for the basis of that inscription which will last a million years. Read tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Learn the details of this patriotic endeavor, study the rules of the competition now being conducted by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers. Then prepare a text as you think it should be written.

Radio Offers Dramatics, Melodies

The best first aid for loneliness is to pick out someone lonelier than you are and take him to lunch, is what Beatrice Fairfax sets out to prove in tonight's dramatization on WCAE at 9:30.

Many of Claude Morris' radio fans have asked to see his picture before he leaves KDKA on Monday, for a stage career. Here he is; and the best of luck to him.

'Pa' Gives Our Family 'Time' Tonight

A lesson in daylight saving is heard in "Our Family" program on WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight. Last year each one in the family, in turn, set the clock an hour ahead and "Pa" tonight reads a lecture.

At 7:45, WCAE broadcasts the Front Page dramas.

Earlier in the day, WCAE gives the alumni of both Pitt and Tech a treat with the transmission of the Carnivalian Jubilee at 3, and the Panther's Glee Club at 4:30 p. m.

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER

Grete Stueckgold does quite a lot of concert work. Last week she traveled to Washington.

At Newark a handsome young man boarded the train and sat near the singer, who could not fail to see that he was deeply absorbed in the radio page of a newspaper containing a picture of Miss Stueckgold.

At Philadelphia, Grete went to the diner, and when she returned, the young man had vanished. But in the singer's Pullman chair was a scrap of paper. She unfolded it and read:

"Dear Miss Stueckgold:

"I am your ardent admirer. I recognized you. Won't you please sing 'Villa' on your next broadcast and make me one of your happiest listeners?"

She'll sing it on her May 5 program.

An administrative order by Hugh S. Johnson today exempted 24 broadcasting stations owned and operated by colleges, religious institutions or states from applying the minimum wage provisions of the NRA code for the broadcasting industry.

The stations were exempted because they do not sell or offer for sale their broadcasting time for profit. The order was conditioned by a provision permitting the filing of objections prior to May 4.

Among stations exempted: WBAK, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Harrisburg; KSAJ, Grove City College, Grove City, Pa.

A special service worker in her spare time, Marjorie Anderson, the pretty society girl who stars on the Beatrice Fairfax show, is writing up some true life stories for those heart problem dramas Saturday nights on the NBC red network.

President Stood by As Senate Moved To Soak Rich

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The administration did not lift its little finger to stop the Senate plan for soaking the rich in the new tax bill. Instead, its henchmen in the House surrendered to the Senate after only a polite struggle in the secret conference committee.

The surrender came so fast, reports got around that the administration secretly wanted to experiment with the Senate plan for a year or so. Administration men rushed into print with denials of such reports, but the actions of the conference committee spoke louder than the denials.

If President Roosevelt signs the bill it will mean that we are going to experiment with a tax theory which goes at least 65 per cent of the way toward confiscation of great wealth.

SPEAR HEAD

The 65 per cent maximum tax on large estates is the spear head of the indirect confiscation experiment. The upward adjustment of surtaxes on large incomes and the strong gifts tax are somewhat in line with the same theory. Chairman Pat Harrison once admitted almost that much on the Senate floor.

Just now, these new rates are largely paper taxes because there is so little wealth to pay them. But if people start making money again at a 1929 clip the rates will become very realistic.

The rich have been soaked before with rates almost as high. It did not mean anything then because there were so many loopholes. All these loopholes are supposed to be plugged in the current bill.

ADVICE

Every person who pays income tax should see a tax adviser as soon as this bill becomes law. Businessmen particularly should get expert advice to conform with the revolutionary administrative changes.

The bill is ostensibly a slight reduction in taxes for every married man with an earned income of less than $30,000 a year. But the taxpayer will have to be well advised to get all that is coming to him.

JAPAN

The Japanese situation has been played down publicly to allay undue excitement. But President Roosevelt has personally devoted more time to it in the last few days than to any other single subject.

His main difficulty was to get a copy of the new Japanese protectorate policy over China.

The State Department combed the world for it without success. The private excuse offered by the Japanese Foreign Office was that it was an oral statement and no copies existed.

News correspondents in Tokio whispered to the American embassy there that the Foreign Office Minister, who announced the policy to them, read his words from several sheets of paper.

REPLY

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement about new naval construction was meant to be our first reply to the Japanese. He had planned for some time to ask for funds to build more ships this summer, but he chose this specific time for maximum effect in Tokio.

The day he made his announcement, a certain official of the State Department said:

"The only thing that ever seems to frighten the Japanese is for us to do something to our Navy."

FIGHT

The administration labor crowd has fallen out over the Labor Board Bill.

The trouble started when Donald Richberg, the great labor lawyer in the NRA, had an idea that he could work out a bill better than Wagner's. At a White House conference attended by Richberg, Wagner and Labor Secretary Perkins, it was agreed to let Richberg do the job.

The results were not at all satisfactory to Wagner and Miss Perkins. They privately called the Richberg draft a measure for labor peace at any price.

Wagner and Miss Perkins put their heads together on a new substitute of their own.

BY-PLAY

The bill will create a general labor board to take all the strike disputes off Mr. Roosevelt's neck. He has been irritated considerably by the troublesome steel, automobile and rail strike threats.

The bill also will make Miss Perkins' Labor Department a more important factor than it now is. She has been smarting at the whispers of labor leaders that her department is "nothing more than a statistical bureau."

Richberg has been working in cahoots with Gen. Johnson on the Labor Board bill. Not long ago, Johnson sent out a private order to his local NRA boards advising them to settle labor troubles. Those who favored the General Labor Board idea thought the order was an attempt to muscle in on Labor Board territory.

It was noteworthy, also, that the Fisher Body Manufacturers walked straight past Mr. Roosevelt's new Automobile Labor Board and took their recent strike troubles to the NRA.

NOTES

Some one will arise shortly to ask the administration about its promise to repeal the capital stock tax when prohibition was repealed. Despite the promise, the tax is in the new revenue bill . . . Prof. Tugwell is burning midnight oil preparing another conservative speech. It will be delivered at a bankers' meeting in New York shortly . . . The new Navy cruiser San Francisco was scheduled to make a shake-down cruise to South America. Since the Japanese started their new diplomatic maneuvers, a new order was issued to make the shake-down cruise to Hawaii instead of South America. The Navy boys wink and say they intended to send it to Hawaii in the first place.

New Naval Activity Seen as 'Reply' To Japs

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The welcome news that the questionnaire forms for dependents of deceased veterans have been or are being mailed out was given yesterday by Lieut. Guy Griffith from the Globe Trotter's microphones.

As the Lieutenant promised the questions are simple and easily answered so that none who are veterans' dependents need fear or worry about making correct answers to the questions.

The most complicated questions are 9 and 10.

9—Did the veteran have executor or administrator? If so, when was estate settled?

10—If estate is unsettled, name the executor or administrator, and give address.

I have printed questions 9 and 10 above so that you can acquire the information necessary and be ready to fill in the blank the moment your questionnaire arrives. This will save you time.

I promise that all the other questions can be answered from your own knowledge without any difficulty or hesitancy whatsoever.

We have more checks for veterans whose present whereabouts are not ascertained.

The names on the checks are MIKE KLISAVAGE, TONEY ETHRIDGE, HARLEY L. HUPP.

The above mentioned are asked to present themselves to Lieut. Griffith at 406 Nixon Building, with necessary credentials for identification and receive the checks.

An attractive event of this evening will be the wedding of Sarah Elizabeth Conner, daughter of Mrs. Davis Conner, of Tennyson avenue, and Dr. Asa D. Young, son of Dr. Eugene Yetman Young, of Champaigne, Ill.

The ceremony will take place at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Conner home with only the two families and close friends attending. Officiating will be the Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Bayard street.

Weddings Listed For Next Week

The leading events of next week will be weddings. A week from today Margaret Phillips, daughter of the junior Thomas W. Phillipses, of Phillips Hall, Butler, and Augustus Craig Succop, son of the C. H. E. Succops, of Castleman street, will be married at Phillips Hall.

And on Friday Jane Graham Bowman, the Arthur Henry Bowmans' daughter, will marry Henry Jared Wallace, the Richard Wallaces' son. Their marriage will take place in the Bellevue United Presbyterian Church.

Smart Set to Hear Georgia Orwig

Many of the social set will go to hear Georgia Orwig, Pittsburgh daughter, and pianist, and the Pittsburgh String Orchestra, Tuesday night in the Hotel Schenley ballroom.

This afternoon many of the smart set and their children and their friends' children are attending the Junior League plays being given in the Frick Training School.

Members of the Mary Hilliard Society, Westover alumnae, will have a luncheon, and elect officers May 8 at the Edgeworth Club. Margaret Campbell will be hostess for the day and Rebecca Doyle, as president, will be in charge of the meeting.

There'll be an annual meeting of the Ogontz Alumnae Association Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Duquesne Club.

Ruth Scrivens to Wed J. A. Jordan Today

A very pretty wedding with the bride and her attendant wearing springlike frocks will take place at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Edgewood Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Walter Moser, pastor, is to officiate.

The bride is Miss Ruth Scrivens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scrivens, of Edgewood, and she will marry James A. Jordan, of Wellesley avenue, son of Mrs. J. E. Jordan, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Jordan will be here for the wedding.

The church will be decorated simply with ferns and palms. The bride will wear a gown of mousseline de soie in a delicate shade of peach with ruffled shoulderline and ruffles around the bottom of the long skirt. Her shepherdess hat will be of straw in the same shade as her dress, and she will carry lilies of the valley, Ward roses and pale blue nigella.

Miss Christine Marjorie Griggs, the maid of honor, will wear brown chiffon with a wide brimmed straw hat and will carry yellow Johanna Hill roses, white lilacs and blue delphinium.

Robert Warren Higgins will serve as best man and ushers will be Ralph Henry Scrivens, brother of the bride; William Carlson Jordan, of Brooklyn, brother of the bridegroom; Kenneth M. Rose, of Pittsburgh, and Donald Arthur Maxwell, of Cleveland.

After a small reception for the families and close friends in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Cady, of Edgewood, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan will leave on their wedding trip and will live in Edgewood later.

Among the out-of-town guests will be the bride's grandfather, Stephen E. Shelley, of Ridgewood, N. J.; the bridegroom's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Iserman, of Teaneck, N. J., and their children, Beverly and Jordan Iserman, and an uncle and aunt of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Payne, of Ridgewood, N. Elizabeth M. Long Bride Of R. W. Miller

At 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, Miss Elizabeth M. Long became the bride of Ralph Walter Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Miller, of Apollo, Pa. The Rev. Ralph B. Urmy officiated.

The bride, a daughter of Mrs. Thomas Edward Long, of Bellevue, wore a gown of white lace and a tiara of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Mary S. Long, as matron of honor wore wine colored chiffon with lavender accessories and carried lavender and spring flowers.

The bridemaids were Mrs. Lynn Hemphill, in green lace; Mrs. John E. Herr, in pink lace; Miss Virginia Sheplar, in ecru lace and Miss Lyda Belle MacKenzie, in blue lace. They all wore braid hats to match their frocks and carried roses, delphinium and other spring flowers.

After a motor trip through the East Mr. Miller and his bride will be at home in Peebles road, Allison Park.

RICH FABRICS FOR LITTLE WRAPS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The coolie influence is strong in this white ribbed silk coat with its heavy white braid frogs.

FOR THE NEXT two months, at least, light weight evening wraps will play an important part in dress-up clothes. Maybe a scarf or silver fox or chinchilla is all that any one needs—but we all haven't got those precious pelts in our wardrobes.

SO THE LITTLE wrap that hugs up one's throat against foul weather breezes has its place in the scheme of things, and to be the scheme of things, and to be worth while, it should be noticeably chic. Velvet with fur laid on delicately is always a stand-by. Black velvet with white fur, jewel-toned fabric wedded to one's best fur neckpiece for the night, taffeta, all windblown or quilted into a cape, and slipper satin in some rich shade are all good bets.

DESIGNS THAT preserve long lines, even though a jacket itself may be short, seem to be the order of the spring wrap silhouette. The Russian or Chinese three-quarter length, pinched together trigly at the waist or left to hang open in a loose line, is undoubtedly the newest. Bolero and surplice models are also smart, and capes of three-quarter length look very 1934 if the fabric is interesting enough.

One should not forget that very quaint materials—Ottoman silks. Oriental brocades and even the most modernistic linens are naturals for giddy little wraps.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Black velvet is perfectly good for spring evenings, as this slim wrap shows. The edgings are all ermine, and the whole design has a somewhat Russian feeling. Grand for a trained gown.

Anna Semmelrock To Wed in Summer

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Semmelrock announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Louise Semmelrock, to J. Reed Wehrle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wehrle, of Evergreen avenue, Millvale.

Miss Semmelrock is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Her fiance was graduated from the Springfield International Y. M. C. A. College. A mid-summer wedding is planned.

Federation Speakers Heard

When Mrs. J. M. Steim, State Federation chairman of juniors, spoke yesterday before the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, she commented on the fact that it was 21 years ago yesterday that the first junior section was formed by Mrs. Winfield Scott McHenry, in Ridley Park. There were 18 juniors then. Today there are approximately 7,500, according to Mrs. Steim.

Mrs. S. D. Pearson, district chairman of conservation, urged the clubwomen, not as clubs, but as individuals, to write to J. Audley Boak, master of state grangers, asking that all grangers placard with "no trespassing" signs places where dogwood and wild crabapple grow.

Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district president, stressed the increasing co-operation between organizations which has marked her administration. Mrs. Gertrude Breslau Fuller also spoke and there was music, both morning and afternoon, by Gertrude Sykes King, with Margaret Gardner accompanying, and the county choral under Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson.

Mrs. Mary Thompson Denman, speaking on "Legislative Prospects for 1935" urged the women to study legislative measures in the interim between sessions of the Legislature and she then went on to discuss election, educational, child welfare and housing measures which the State Federation has sponsored, some of which were defeated at the last session and will be presented at the next session.

Ida Hirst Gifford demonstrated the talking book for the deaf and W. McClean Work talked humorously and informatively on "The Modern Newspaper," concluding the day's proceedings, which were conducted in the Chamber of Commerce.

U. S. Daughters To Dedicate Tablet

On Sunday afternoon, May 6, members of Dolly Madison Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, will go to Grove City to dedicate a memorial tablet on the Center Presbyterian Church, where several soldiers of the War of 1812 are buried.

Mrs. S. R. Montgomery, regent of Hugh Mercer Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, whose great-great-grandfather is one of the soldiers to be memorialized, will speak, as will also Dr. Weir C. Ketler, president of Grove City College.

Gordon Hill, great-great-grandson of another of the soldiers, will direct the Haydn Male Quartet which is to furnish music.

Woman's Club Election May 15

MARIA'S LETTER TO DICKENS REVIVES LOVE MEMORIES

Boy and Girl Romance Reopened by Note Of Far Past

In two previous installments the parallel between the romance of David Copperfield and Dora in "David Copperfield" and his own youthful romance with Maria Beadnell was outlined. Today's installment reveals the revival in 1855 of his romance with aria Beadnell. Then he was famous and the father of nine children; she had married Henry Louis Winter, a middle-class businessman, and was a mother. Suddenly after a lapse of Mmore than 20 years she wrote him a letter. His response, which precipitated the middle-age phase of their romance, is contained in the accompanying installment.

By H. H. HARPER

A GREAT storm was sweeping over England on the 8th of February, 1855, and the white spirits of unrest were riding high in the blast, prompting uneasy souls to all sorts of strange impulses. It was then that Maria Beadnell Winter, longing for a word from that fond lover of long ago, wrote him a letter.

It was a timid letter, with humble apologies, a bit of news of old friends—recalling long-cherished memories—congratulations on his great success—anything that might make a page or two, reminding him of his old love.

But little did Maria Beadnell realize that it was destined to open a floodgate of memories that have enriched Dickens literature far more than anything else discovered since his death.

Coming home from the office of Household Words, Dickens had dined with his family, and later found his favorite seat before the study fire, where he sat alone reading as the storm shrouded the city in a pall of drifting snow. His own words, written the following morning, constitute the opening chapter of the most surprising self-revelations that ever fell from his pen. The letter he wrote read:

Tavistock House,
Saturday, February, 1855.

My Dear Mrs. Winter:

I constantly receive hundreds of letters in great varieties of writing, all perfectly strange to me, and (as you may suppose) have no particular interest in the faces of such general epistles.

As I was reading by my fire last night, a handful of notes was laid down on my table. I looked them over, and recognizing the writing of no private friend, let them lie there, and went to my book. But I found my mind curiously disturbed, and wandering away through so many years to such early times of my life, that I was quite perplexed to account for it.

There was nothing in what I had been reading or immediately thinking about, to awaken such a train of thought, and at last it came into my head that it must have been suggested by something in the look of one of those letters. So I turned them over again, and suddenly the remembrance of your hand come upon me with an influence that I cannot express to you.

Three or four and twenty years vanished like a dream, and I opened it with the touch of my young friend David Copperfield when he was in love.

There was something so busy and so pleasant in your letter—so true and cheerful and frank and affectionate—that I read on with perfect delight until I came to your mention of your two little girls.

In the unsettled state of my thoughts, the existence of these dear children appeared such a prodigious phenomenon that I was inclined to suspect myself of being out of my mind, until it occurred to me that perhaps I had nine children of my own!

Then the three or four and twenty years began to rearrange themselves in a long procession between me and the changeless Past, and I could not help considering what strange stuff all our little stories are made of.

Believe me, you cannot more tenderly remember our old days and our old friends than I do. I hardly ever go into the city but I walk up an odd little court at the back of the Mansion House and come out by the corner of Lombard st.

Hundreds of times as I have passed the church there—on my way to and from the sea, the continent, and where not—I invariably associate it with somebody (God knows who) having told me that poor Anne was buried there.

If you would like to examine me in the name of a good-looking Cornish servant you used to have (I suppose she has twenty-nine great grandchildren now and walks with a stick), you will find my knowledge on the point correct, though it was a monstrous name too.

I forget nothing of those times. They are just as still and plain and clear as if I had never been in a crowd since, and had never seen nor heard my own name out of my own house. What should I be worth, or what would labour and success be worth, if it were otherwise!

Your letter is more touching to me from its good and gentle association with the state of Spring in which I was either much more wise or much more foolish than I am now—I never know which to think it—than I could tell you if I tried for a week I will not try at all. I heartily respond to it, and shall be charmed to have a long talk with you, and most cordially glad to see you after all this length of time.

I am going to Paris tomorrow morning, but I purpose being back within a fortnight. When I return, Mrs. Dickens will come to you, to arrange a day for our seeing you and Mr. Winter (to whom I beg to be remembered) quietly to dinner. We will have no intruder or foreign creature on any pretense whatever, in order that we may set in without any restraint for a tremendous gossip.

Mary Anne Leigh we saw at Broadstairs about fifty years ago. Mrs. Dickens and her sister, who read all the marriages in all the papers, shrieked to me when the announcement of hers appeared, what did I think of that? I calmly replied that I thought it was time. I should have been more excited if I had known of the old gentleman with several thousand a year, unaccountable grown-up children and no English grammar.

My mother has a strong objection to being considered in the least old, and usually appears here on Christmas Day in a juvenile cap, which takes an immense time in the putting on.

The fates seem to have made up their minds that I shall never see your father when he comes this way. David Lloyd is altogether an imposter—not having in the least changed (that I could make out when I saw him at the London Tavern) since what I suppose to have been the year 1770, when I found you three on Corn hill, with your poor mother, going to St. Mary Axe to order mysterious dresses—which afterwards turned out to be wedding garments.

That was in the remote period when you all wore green cloaks, cut (in my remembrance) very round, and which I am resolved to believe were made of merino. I escorted you with native gallantry to the dress maker's door, and your mother, seized with an apprehension—groundless upon my honor—that I might come in, said emphatically: "And now Mr. Dickin"—which she always used to call me—"we'll wish you good morning."

When I was writing the word Paris just now, I remembered that my existence was entirely uprooted and my whole being blighted by the Angel of my soul being sent there to finish her education!

If I can discharge any little commission for you, or bring home anything for the darlings, whom I cannot yet believe to be anything but a delusion of yours, pray employ me. [Was this an invitation to Maria to write again? Editor's note.] I shall be at the Hotel Meurice—locked up when within, as my only defence against my country and the United States—but a most punctual and reliable functionary if you will give me any employment.

My dear Mrs. Winter, I have been much moved by your letter; and the pleasure it has given me has some little sorrowful ingredient in it. In the strife and struggle of this great world where each of us lose each other so strangely, it is impossible to be spoken to out of the old times without a softened emotion.

You so belong to the days when the qualities that have done me most good since were growing in my boyish heart, that I cannot end my answer to you lightly.

The associations my memory has with you make your letter more—I want a word—Invest it with a more immediate address to me than such a letter could have from anybody else. Mr. Winter will not mind that. We are all sailing away to the sea, and have a pleasure in thinking of the river we are upon, when it was very narrow and little.

Faithfully your friend,
CHARLES DICKENS.

Maria could scarcely have expected such a long, cordial letter as this. She had mentioned the hope that they might meet to talk over old times and old friends, and he "heartily responded" to the suggestion. Facetiously he called her the "Angel of his soul" and the closing paragraph contained as poetic a touch as any fond sweetheart could desire.

SELLARS 'FIRED' AS SLUM RAZER

The city is once more about to lose the services of the director of its slum-razing campaign, Lee T. Sellars.

Sellars, who has been seeking waivers from owners of dilapidated and unsanitary buildings to permit the city to wreck the structures, has been ousted by the Civil Service Commission from the position of supervisor in the Division of Housing and Sanitary Inspection, to take effect Monday.

The commission has ruled that the job must be filled by someone who is promoted from the ranks of the sanitary inspectors.

Gen. Reilly Stresses Need for U.S. Defense

Insists Nation Stay Out of League And Court

The urgent need for adequate national defense was emphasized by Brig. Gen. Henry J. Rielly, in a brief radio address from WCAE yesterday. Gen. Reilly, in Pittsburgh for the national defense rally in Carnegie Music Hall last night, appeared with the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter.

Brig. Gen. Reilly is of the Officers Reserve Corps. He reviewed the workings of the various units of the reserve forces and urged that these reserve groups be strengthened. He declared that that the only way the United States could be safe from war was to have a strong air force, and a strong Army and Navy, sufficient to protect this nation in times of emergency.

He declared in an interview that this country should remain free from the World Court and League of Nations inasmuch as the workings of the League and Court had not proven satisfactory.

Scores of other patriotic Americans also expressed similar sentiments yesterday by signing the petitions being circulated by the Sun-Telegraph, protesting against entrance of this country into the League and World Court. More than 37,000 persons already have signed the petitions.

'HEX' SLAYER ASKS PARDON

International News Service.

YORK, Pa., April 28.—John Curry, who as a lad of 14 was given a life sentence in York County's "hex" murder case in 1928, today seeks a pardon from the commonwealth.

His case will be considered by the State Board of Pardons at its May meeting.

Curry and William John Blymer and Wilbert G. Hess were convicted of murder for the "hex" slaying of Nelson Rehmeyer, an aged recluse, from whom they sought to obtain a lock of hair to break a spell that had been cast over Hess' cattle. Rehmeyer awoke as the trio sought to steal a lock of his hair and was slain.

Curry and Blymer were sentenced to life terms in the Eastern State Penitentiary and Hess was given from 10 to 20 years.

Credit Men Hear Transportation Talk

"Transportation and the Government" will be the subject of an address by John M. Fitzgerald, of New York, at the weekly meeting of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania in the Chamber of Commerce at noon Tuesday. Fitzgerald is vice chairman of the committee on public relations of the Eastern Railroad Presidents' Conference.

Health Up to Cooks, Prudence Penny Holds

Girl Wins $5 Prize With Chicken Salad Formula

The welfare of the family, it is Prudence Penny's firm contention, rests in the hands of the one who provides the "three meals a day." What a pity, then, if the housewife unknowingly buys sickness instead of health when purchasing her daily foods.

What recipes of yours are particularly suited for spring and summer use? Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, would like to receive them from you. Incidentally, each recipe published in her prize column is awarded a $5 or a $1 prize. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MILDRED RICHARDSON,
712 California Avenue, Avalon.
INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN SALAD IN ASPIC.

Prepare a thick slice of tomato for each portion, dressing the slices with salt and pepper and a few drops of vinegar. Chill in refrigerator. Soak two tablespoons gelatin in a little cold water and to one and one-half cups highly seasoned chicken broth of stock. Cool, and when jelly starts to thicken, add three tablespoons mayonnaise, a little chopped green pepper and one-half cup slivered almonds. Add two tablespoons diced celery and one and one-third cups chopped cold cooked chicken. Brush individual molds with olive oil and fill with salad mixture. It will get too stiff unless you work fast. Unmold and place each portion on a slice of tomato and serve with lettuce hearts dressed with mayonnaise.

Five $1 Prize Winners

ELIZABETH E. WESTON,
1046 Biltmore Avenue, Dormont.
BANANAS AU GRATIN

Six bananas.
Juice two lemons.
Twelve cheese wafers.
Two tablespoons butter.

Peel and halve bananas, dip in lemon juice and roll in finely crumpled cheese wafers. Place in buttered baking dish, dot with butter and bake in hot oven 425 degrees Fahrenheit 12 minutes or until tender. This makes six portions.

MISS LOUISE CARDY,
1335 Sassafras Street, Franklin.
GINGER CHEESE MUFFINS

First sift together two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt. Beat one egg well, add gradually one-half cup milk, then one-half cup molasses. Slowly add this mixture to sifted dry ingredients, stirring constantly. When smooth, add four tablespoons melted shortening. Lastly, fold in two-thirds cup grated cheese. Half fill greased muffin tins with the mixture and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees fahrenheit) 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot with butter. Makes 16.

AMELIA LABIK,
326 S. First street, Duquesne.
GERMAN STEAK.

Cut two pounds of thin cut round steak into three-inch strips. Roll these strips around several slices of raw potato and a slice of onion. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Tie each of these little bundles up and around each wrap a thin piece of bacon, skewering. Dust with flour and simmer in a Dutch oven for one hour, turning with more flour occasionally, and turning often, adding moisture when needed. Cook until the steak is done and the potatoes are tender.

MRS. JOHN FAGUE,
852 Van Kirk Street, Clairton.
STEAM CHERRY PUDDING.

One and one-half cups of flour.
Two and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-third cup butter.
Two-thirds cup sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup milk.
Three egg whites.
One-half cup candied cherries cut in half.
One-half cup dried apricots cut in half.
One-third cup citron cut in thin slices.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; cream shortening add sugar gradually add flavoring, add dry ingredients and milk alternately to cream mixture. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites, fold in prepared fruits. Fill deep greased pudding mold two-thirds full and steam. Recipe serves six. Time, 1¼ hours.

Scarlet Sauce.

One-half cup sugar.
Three tablespoons of corn starch.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.

Add fruit juice slowly. Two cups cherry or cranberry juice, or any red fruit juice may be used. Cook until thick and clear, add two teaspoons lemon juice. Serve hot.

WILMA FUELLGRAF,
325 Franklin street, Slippery Rock.
RAISIN PUFFS WITH VANILLA SAUCE

Three tablespoons butter.
Four tablespoons sugar.
One cup sweet milk.
One cup raisins.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
Two and one-half cups flour.

Sift dry ingredients, rub in shortening, add raisins, mix a stiff batter with milk. Bake in greased muffin tins, in a moderate over about 30 minutes.

Vanilla Sauce

One and one-half pints sweet milk.
One cup sugar.
One tablespoon butter.
One tablespoon corn starch.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Pinch of salt.
Cook in sauce pan until it thickens.

Ellenbogen Urges Parley On P. O. Ramp

A recommendation for postponement of construction work on the ramp of the new postoffice, pending conferences between federal and city engineers on a solution to probable traffic difficulties, has been made to the Treasury Department by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen. He notified Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston of the recommendation yesterday. Ellenbogen believes the present plans for ingoing and outgoing mail trucks is impracticable, and holds that they will cause serious traffic congestion at Seventh and Bigelow boulevard.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

Make This at Home

She Will Look Good Enough to Eeat in It

Pattern 1832

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

This is a perfectly delicious little frock. Any little girl—yours for instance—will look good enough to eat in it. Do you know what it does? It takes the latest grown-up styles and makes them "little girlish." See the tiny puffed sleeves and that clever quite ladylike button-over yoke. As for the skirt—we have just been looking at a matron's gown which had exactly the same slenderizing V in front. Your Emmy Lou or Dorothy, or whatever her name is, will be thrilled to the core at the thought. And in passing we might remark—the little frock is nothing at all to make! Adorable in cottons.

Pattern 1832 is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 2 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE LATEST EDITION OF OUR PATTERN BOOK features all the best seasonal styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Defiance

Born to the cynic's state, no doubt, no doubt,
And rating virtue far below its part—
We feel that darkness marks the final rout,
That nothing lies beyond a flaming star;
So, knowing this, the time is all too short
To taste the potent wines that Eros brews,
To know the sweet exhaustion of the sport
That spurs the finest fancies of the muse.

So, rest your heart, for I have words to say
In praise of all the nights that we have known,
And, when we come, arms locked, to Judgment Day,
All kisses kissed—the final trumpet blown;

If we were wrong—if sinners scorch and sear—
We will go laughing down to hell, my dear!

Form of Criticism?

Henry Clay reports that a Pottsville, Pa., movie theater's lights out front read this way:

FRANK BUCK'S
"Wild Cargo"
Mickey Mouse.

Overheard

Two drunks met at 50th street and the Canyon.

"Hey, you!" hiccoughed the first, "ever been in Pennshylvania?"

"Aw," aw'd the other, "I lived in Philadelphia two yearsh!"

"Don't evade the question," was the reply, "were you ever in Pennshylvania?"

In Other Words

Leslie Howard, one of the better actors, in a Hollywood interview, scolded his neighbors for being gossips.

"Suppose," he said, "a man is just being courteous and gives a girl a lift home, the buzzing starts again—it must be an affair. Hollywood says—and so it goes."

And so it is!

Street Scene

On 57th street between 2nd and 3rd avenues an old bank is now a movie theater. Passers-by may still see much of the bank frontage to recognize that a bank had been renovated into a movie.

And some of us can remember all the way back when banks used to take over movie theaters!

Of All Things!

At one of the private schools recently the tots in the class of 6-year-olds were taken to another room, alone, and there given a so-called intelligence test. One child was relating her experience:

"They asked me what was wrong with this sentence: 'A train was wrecked and not many people were killed—only 30.' Now isn't that silly—not many—when 30 were killed!"

She so asserted herself, therefore she was marked "intelligent." But what stumped her was:

"How much is a red stamp and how much is a blue one?"

Of course, she didn't know—nobody ever told her! She never bought a stamp. Because she failed at that, however, she was most unhappy. Her father comforted her a little. He told her that even teachers, who are older than 6—and sometimes older than 36, could be stumped on some question. And to ask any teacher at the school the following query:

How much if a hatful of nickels?

Slanguage

Gangsters, hoboes and others have their slang—but none of us suspected that the profession of lawyers also used it. A "lightweight" is a judge who knows no law -a chump . . . "To ring the bell" is to get a verdict for the full amount sued for . . . "Smear" is a case with no merit . . . "On the nose" is a case exactly in point . . . And everybody knows what a "shyster" is.

A "shyster" is the other fellow's lawyer.

Heheheh

Paderewski in his life story relates this one on himself. The world's greatest pianist was playing at a Madison Square Garden benefit a few years ago. Near him was a door at which two policemen were guards.

One of the coppers stuck his head through the door. The other cop, who figured it was another vaudeville show, queried:

"What's goin' on?"

"Nothin'," was the retort, "just a guy playin' pianner."

Prize Won By Masquers Group

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Everybody seemed to be happy last night when B. Iden Payne, adjudicator in the Drama League's tenth annual one-act play contest, awarded first place to the Masquers of Calvary Parish for their presentation of Martin Flavin's "Casualties." It is a well-knit little tragedy that rises to a thrilling climax, and it was played perfectly by its three people—Eda Sarokay, John Johns and William H. Hetzel. Everybody was happy because such splendid work seemed to call for unanimous approval.

Mr. Seibel

The director had been Charles L. Wooldridge, Jr., and the stage management was by A. Brandin Vestal and Mary Sawders.

The prize consists of $75 in cash and the Samuel French trophy.

Second prize went to the Studio Players of Bradford Woods, who had presented the second act of Molnar's "The Play's the Thing." Special mention was also given to the finished acting of George D. Lobingier. Mort Drake was the director.

Third prize fell to the Bellefield Mimes for their smooth presentation of Shaw's "How He Lied to Her Husband," directed by Isabelle Jones, and fourth prize to the Dramatic Club of St. John the Baptist Church, for the playlet, "New Year's Revolution," by George S. Kaufmann, directed by Regis E. Staley.

Excellent acting won special mention for Edwin Schaughency, of the Beaver Little Theater, in "The Bishop's Candlesticks," and John J. Davis, of the Epworthian Players, in "The Singapore Spider."

The Lane Thompson prize for the most appropriate stage setting went to the Bradford Woods Players, second place to the Irene Kaufmann Settlement group, third place to the Bellefield Mimes, and fourth to the Epworthians. George M. P. Baird was the adjudicator of this contest feature.

Two plays were presented last night besides the prize-winning "Casualties." The Woman's Club of Beaver gave "Hans Bulow's Last Puppet," a romantic fantasy in which Lester Cobner merited special mention for a brief appearance as an Old Clothes man. The Emerson Club of Sacred Heart presented Synge's "Riders to the Sea," with Madeleine Skelly Foust as Maurya.

As a delightful close the students of the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind put on a little nativity play, "No Room at the Inn," beautifully staged and costumed under direction of Anne Hutchings and Virginia Hooff. A double quartet of blind girls, directed by Cora Hines, sang Christmas chorals very feelingly before the tableau.

In beauty and appropriateness of stage pictures, as well as quality of individual and ensemble acting, this year's contest was by far the best the Drama League has ever held.

Two Features In Regent

By WILLIAM SCHOYER

The society girl was oh so cute and her family had oh so much money. But "Chance at Heaven," picture in the Regent, shows that after all a home town girl makes a much better wife for a gas station owner.

Joel McCrea is the hero of the piece. And you might suspect that he is just a little dumb to get dazzled into marrying Marian Nixon. Because Joel was doing pretty well with his gas station. And Ginger Rogers, the home town girl, was a swell sport and cooked very good chicken pies.

But Marion thinks love in a cottage would be exciting. They elope. Then she just can't make a go of housework. Her family lures her back to her cultured life. And Ginger takes charge of Joel and the cottage, with everyone happy. The show's not hard to take.

A rather grim drama of life way down on the farm is unfolded in "Two Alone," the second feature. Jean Parker and Tom Brown are the two, the girl an orphan, the boy a fugitive from a reformatory. Guarded, beaten, by the vindictive puritanical farmer who holds them to their work like slaves, they fall in love. Slowly it becomes evident that the farmer is jealous of the pitiful mite of happiness the lovers share. The showdown comes in a fight in a garret where the old man catches the two together.

The picture rises to [illegible] points of real emotional app[illegible]

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 28.—To revamp an ancient wheeze, suggested by the Hollywood headlines of the day—"The movie mills grind slowly, but exceedingly fine." . . . Norma Talmadge marries George Jessel and Gloria Swanson announces she is divorcing Michael Farmer . . . . Lyle Talbot SWITCHES (what, again?) his romance attentions to Irene Colman—and Alice Faye Brown-Derby lunches it with Jack (Sheik of Palm Springs) Durante . . . . Al Jolson GIGGLES about his recent retirement crack and signs with Warners' to star in one picture per year. (I predicted this weeks ago!)

Super-thrill of the day was contributed by Betty Furness, who told a great big fib when she took part in "The Life of Vergie Winters" with Ann Harding. She was asked if she could ride a horse, and nodded that she could.

She was placed, a la English saddle, on a horse for a scene with Frankie Alberton. Betty accidentally jerked the reins—and a-galloping away the little horsie did go! Betty pulled the reins again—and the little horsie galloped all the faster . . . And so she was rescued by Mr. Alberton and Director Al Santell—an exciting episode not in the scenario at all! Moral. Don't tell fibs!

Wandering around Hollywood—A certain studio is attempting to stage a war (strictly for publicity purposes) with another cinema outfit over a dance known as the Bolero. The challengers forget, perhaps, that George Hale staged the original Bolero in the Earl Carroll "Vanities" for 1931 . . . Sally Blane and Peter Arno, the witty pen-and-drawing-ink man, were tea-cup cooing in the Beverly Derby. Ditto for Rochelle Hudson and Jesse Lasky, Jr. . . . . Warren William and Wifie have gone a-hunting the wild boar in the Santa Cruz mountains . . . Hal Wallis, boss man at Warners, has decided to give the newcomers, Phil Reed and Don Woods, a swell chance in "Just Out of College." Robert Lee Johnson's campus yarn, which will probably star Dick Powell. The piece has to do with five collegiates who face the world for the first time—and what happens to them! . . . . M-G-M has signed Clark Gable for a steller role in "The Blonde Countess," that spy yarn of Washington, D. C. which Major Herbert O. Yardley is dishing up—and burning much of the midnight typewriter oil, if you must know.

Kinema Knick-Knacks—Hollywood's nonchalant citizens got off their perches last Sunday evening to do honor (with much applause, no less) to Helen Morgan, stellar guest at a local hotel. Naturally Helen sat on top of a piano, sang many numbers and practically tore three or four handkerchiefs to shreds! . . . Irene Castle was the added dash of swish and glamor to the Steve Ames-Raquel Torres wedding reception aboard the S.S. Lurline, a-sailing to Honolulu last Saturday. Irene dropped in, towed by Tony Moreno and tagged by an under-slung pooch, to give the affair the general O. O. and to nod a few introductions.

Mr. Smith Marries His Nurse

EDGAR SMITH, a wealthy man who is nearing 70 years of age, last week married the nurse who has taken care of him for some time. The new Mrs. Smith is not quite 40 and is rather attractive. May I present you with a few reactions?

THE HOUSEKEEPER: A fine state of affairs, I must say. Here I've been keeping house for him ever since his wife died. Worked my fingers to the bone, I have, and stood all his crankiness like he was my own father, or somethin'.

And what thanks do I get? He goes and marries that hussy who's good for nothin' but to give orders. I hate her—and I've got a good mind to resign my job after all these years. But with my luck, he'd take me out of his will—and then die the next day.

I think I'll stay where I am . .

THE CHAUFFEUR: Your deal, Erwin. What's that? Yeah, she's a pretty hot number all right. I pass. Wait a minute. Somebody's a dime short. Oh, it's you again, Harry. Okay. Your deal, Joe.

Yeah, she's a pretty hot number all right. What's goin' on around here? Again I can't open. Okay, Tom. Your deal. Yeah, she's a pretty hot number all right . . . .

MR. SMITH'S DAUGHTER: She can't do that to me. Not that creature. Worming her way into poor daddy's affections and then forcing him to marry her. I'm going to see my lawyers the first thing in the morning. I think poor daddy should be placed in some kind of an institution.

It's not the money, you understand. Pop can do just what he wishes in that direction. After all, his money belongs to him—and I'd be the last one to ask for any of it.

With me, it's the principle of the thing. . . .

MR. SMITH'S SON: I can't understand it. Whatever made pop do a thing like that at his age, is beyond me. The woman must have bewitched him.

I'm not kicking because she'll get plenty when pop dies. It isn't my nature to think twice about things like that. But, even though I haven't spoken to my sister in years, I think I'd better make up with her immediately. We'll both be better off when it comes time to battle about the estate.

It's not the money. It's the principle of the thing . . .

A SUNDAY EDITOR: Get out all the clips on elderly dopes who have married housekeepers and nurses. Have Hanlon draw a picture of Cupid with long whiskers.

Title the article: "The Older They Are, the Harder They Fall." That oughta slay 'em . . .

A NEIGHBOR: I tell you, boys, a man as old as Smith is crazy to do a thing like that. How can he enjoy matrimony at his age? I'll bet you right now that the marriage won't last a year. Maybe he won't, either.

What's that? Am I thinking of marrying again? Why, of course I am. What's that got to do with the argument? You mustn't forget that he's a man of seventy. I'm only sixty . . .

5,000 NURSES: How come I never get a case like that? . . .

THE BRIDE'S BEST FRIEND: Can you imagine her luck? Winding up with a break like that after the life she's led! Knowing her the way I do, I'll just bet she schemed the whole thing from the very beginning. She'll lead that old guy a merry chase, believe you me. Why, she's been nothing but a flirt and a floozy all her life.

Did I congratulate her? Why, of course I did. I sent her a telegram. A nice one, too, and I hope she appreciates it. "Darling," I said, "I'm so happy for your sake. Congratulations and all the luck in the world to a wonderful girl who deserves nothing but the best." . . .

A LAWYER: Get out the Smith will, Miss R. and keep it handy. That old buzzard will be along any day now, wanting to make a change. And we'll have to be very nice to him. Miss R. It begins to look as though he's one client who'll bring in plenty of money.

First we've got the new will to draw. Then, if he lives, he'll probably be sued for divorce. I'll handle that. Then he'll want another new will drawn. I'll have to handle that. Then, after his death, there'll be the estate to settle. Naturally, I'll handle that . . .

I think I'll buy a new car this afternoon . . .

THE LATE MRS. SMITH: So he married again, did he? Well, she'll find out . . .

A CANARY: That's the trouble with humans. Never think of anything but themselves. Old as he is, he goes off and gets married. But does he ever give me a thought? Not a one. I don't mind confessing that I'd like to get married myself.

But what can I do about it? Sing, that's all. This is a heluva life . . .

MR. SMITH: I married her for the best reason in the world. She's the only person who ever knew just where my glasses were when I needed 'em! . . .

Variety in Pitt With Film

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

"Temptations," if you'll take Herman Timberg's word for it in the Pitt, are fashioned along feminine lines, and mainly affect the male sex with their combination of allure and hi-dee-hi-do. Timbergs, ever-present, Sr. and Jr., Joe Herbert, Harris and Tannen, George Freems, the whole show in fact, go in for comedy, not overly hilarious fare, it is true, but amusing.

Plot semblances are cleverly worked out here and there by tying up a series of skits with such songs as "There's No Budget for Love." Effective, too, are the back-stage glimpse of the chorus girls, dishabille, and the evening at the colorful House of All Nations.

It is in this International Cafe number that Armondo and Lita swing through their tempestuous Apache dance, distinguished by its agile, novel interpretations. Audrey Parker, of the smiling white teeth, also does an agreeable song novelty in this scene.

The screen feature, "Ever Since Eve," limps into a very tame start with Mary Brian and Eugene O'Brien doing what they please, but by its finish, thanks to the experienced straight-facing of Herbert Mundin, the audience is aroused to a laughing interest, by the story of three women-haters who team up to make the fourth of their crowd acknowledge his love for a woman, and his wife at that.

New Tarzan Thriller in Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

The original Tarzan, alias Johnny Weissmuller, returns to the screen in "Tarzan and His Mate," now showing in the Penn.

The apeman has made some progress. Instead of expressing himself solely by grunts, he now uses a dozen or so words, including "I love you." This sentiment is directed at beautiful Mate Maureen O'Sullivan, who in reply simpers, "Oh, Tarzan!"

Maureen has deserted society and civilization to share the fantastic adventures of Tarzan in the jungle, and incredible adventures they are, indeed. The climax comes in a raid by ivory thieves on the "elephants' burying ground," long carefully protected by the heroic ape-man.

These sequences are exciting nonsense, but even better are the underwater scenes where Mr. Weissmuller fish's with a rubber crocodile and performs other wonders. The real wonder, of course, is Mr. Weissmuller's swimming ability, and it is displayed here in its most amazing forms.

We heard or read somewhere that this picture was more exciting than the first "Tarzan;" so if you liked that one, you probably should see the sequel, too.

Certainly it is one of the noisiest pictures ever made, what with the screams of all the jungle beasts punctuated by gunfire and by Tarzan's continuous yodeling.

A Silly Symphony, "The China Shop," is among the shorts completing the bill.

America Just a Blank Space On Map to World

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Up until last year we thought relief was something you sent off in a boat.

We sailed our charitable fleet all over the world loaded with hot groceries and cold cash.

Now we realize that relief starts right at home with orders not to go off the front porch.

How has the rest of the world reciprocated? Are they sending back argosies of delicatessen? Are white sails gleaming in the harbor? Do heavy cargoes of money wallow the foreign hulls down to the plimsoll mark?

Not a chance. The way our pals treat America now is on the theory that Columbus never got here. It's just a big blank space on the map.

Dancing Sal And Fans In Bill

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Sally Rand is the powerful magnet in the Stanley, where she appears as the featured act of her own revue, that is presented in conjunction with a well-acted and interesting film, "Sisters Under the Skin." The picture is more than fair, but the interest is in Miss Rand. In her revue are a couple of outstanding acts, yet the expectancy of the audience is in the clever little blonde girl who took an old dance, and some fans, shed some clothes that she replaced with a coat of whiting, and got herself a lot of publicity in Chicago last summer, and thus became a national figure. Since she doesn't hide that figure behind the fans all the time, there's plenty of evidence that it isn't a bad one, either.

As Miss Rand does her dance on the stage, darkened to an extent that we assume is tantalizing to the horde of men who monopolize the front seats, it is pretty and graceful, rather than sensational, and is completed with a form-revealing pose on a set of steps farther back in the shadows. Miss Rand would be called rather "arty" were she doing her specialty in the company of Ruth St. Denis.

There is a group of very talented oriental performers, headed by Ching Ling Foo, Jr., who do acrobatic and juggling feats that are routine but exceedingly well done. Williams and Joe Mandell are the funniest comedy acrobats you've ever seen. Benny Ross is a clever chap whose gags are mostly sour, who is assisted by Maxine Stone.

The screen feature, "Sisters Under the Skin," has Elissa Landi, Frank Morgan and Joseph Schildkraut, in the principal roles. Miss Landi is an actress who begins by "gold-digging" Morgan, a rich man. Then they "care for" each other. His wife is waiting for him to get over his foolishness, which happens when he discovers that his—let us say, protege—is in love with Schildkraut.

News and a cartoon complete a good bill.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

FRESNO, Cal., April 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This is Fresno, Cal., a beautiful little city of 80,000. You might ask:

"Well, what about it, what's that to us?"

Well, you go home tonight and have a nice glass of native wine with your meal. Fresno gives it to you. Grapes grow here like lobbyists in Washington. Forty wineries here, and a Rotary convention; all 41 are going strong, night and day.

Will Rogers

The Bulwinkle congressional committee, investigator of the famous Wirt dinner (where nothing but applesauce was served), exonerated everybody connected with it, including the cook, but advised the Dr. the next time he dined out, to take a dictaphone with him. Yours, WILL.

6 Pennsylvanians Get Hero Awards

Six of 24 awards for acts of bravery, announced yesterday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, went to Pennsylvanians, although none was in Pittsburgh. Those in the state receiving awards were: Salvatore Migliaccio, of Corry; Arthur E. Brown, 24, Negro, of Tyrone; William B. Main, 59, of Susquehanna; Robert Hughes, 50, and Joseph P. Tigue, 43, of Avoca, and Harry F. Druck, of York. The commission announced it now has pensions in force totaling $156,510 a year awarded to dependents of persons who lost their lives in acts of bravery, and has made 2,766 awards to date.

LARRY FRENCH OPPOSES REDS ON MOUND TODAY

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Warneke Fills Flag Need. Fails to Equal Galvin. Job in Majors Rejected. • Koenecke Fools Critics. Coast Cools On Walker. Change in Marathons.

To be successful in a pennant race, a club usually must have one outstanding pitcher going at high speed through the season, a consistent winner able to turn in 20 or more victories.

Lonnie Warneke

From that angle, the Cubs look even more formidable now than they did at the start of the National League fight, when they impressed as owning a better flag chance than any rival, for they bid fair to have that needed steady slab winner in Lonnie Warneke, who yesterday pitched his third straight victory of the spring.

With only two hits charged against him in his first two games, the Bruins' ace right-hander had a chance yesterday to equal or beat the famous 50-year-old record of Jimmy Galvin, old Pittsburgh star, who allowed only four hits in three straight games within a span of four days, while pitching for the Buffalo Nationals against Detroit on August 3, 4 and 6, 1884. Warneke failed at the opportunity, his total for three games being 11 hits.

But records are of little consequence as compared with victories and pennant gains. The thing for the other National League flag aspirants to worry about is that the Cubs seemingly need only one big winning pitcher to carry them through, and will have that pitcher in Warneke if he maintains his early spring form. The Pirates will get the next chance to break it up for the time being by halting the Chicago ace, as Lonnie's fourth start probably will be made against the Bucs in the series starting Monday at Forbes Field.

MINOR LEAGUER SPURNS JOB IN MAJORS

In sharp contrast to the ambition and zeal of one or more rookies on practically every major league club, who are straining themselves to the utmost to make good and earn retention in the big show, is the attitude of another young player who deliberately passed up a chance to get himself a job in the big money because the club that wanted him would not agree to the unusual terms which he attempted to dictate. The player in question is Jonah Goldman, Montreal infielder, who once was given a trial at shortstop by Cleveland.

When Rabbit Maranville went down with a broken leg, the Braves were hard pressed for a substitute. It was decided that Goldman might fill the bill, and the Montreal club gave Jonah permission to negotiate with the Boston officials. Here was Goldman's chance for another shot at big league ball. He talked over matters with the Braves and was satisfied with their proposition except on one point—he demanded a promise that he would be retained for the entire season. Nothing the Boston management could say could induce the youngster to change his mind. Goldman insisted that it must be a guaranteed job for the whole year or none at all, and when he failed to carry his point he turned down the major league opportunity and went back to Montreal to become a holdout. Thus passed what may be Jonah's last chance to return to the main tent.

DISCARDED AS LEMON, RETURNS AS STAR

Casey Stengel and his Dodgers are in high glee over finding what they consider a real star in a player chased out of the majors as a hopeless bust. Outfielder Len Koenecke was called a $75,000 lemon when he failed to shine with the Giants. John McGraw turned him back to the minors, and later Bill Terry fired him as unworthy of a further trial. This year Koenecke returned to the National League as a member of the Dodgers and his brilliant work has stood Brooklyn fans on their heads.

Len Koenecke

In one stretch of five straight games, Len cracked out five singles, three doubles and two home runs, knocked in five tallies, scored five himself, and topped a series of impressive fielding feats by saving a game with one of the most amazing catches ever seen in Flatbush. Brooklyn critics say Koenecke covers the outfield like the morning dew, and declare he moves farther and faster than Hi Myers, Eddie Brown, Arnold Statz or any other center fielder the Dodgers have had since the days of Mike Griffin. If the Giants have any more lemons of the same kind to discard, Brooklyn invites immediate shipment. You'll have to score a point for Max Carey, if Koenecke proves to be as good as he looks at present. On the surface, Carey was giving the Giants the better of it when he traded Watson Clark and Lefty O'Doul to them last June for Sam Leslie, but a side agreement gave the Dodgers title to Koenecke, then in the minors, and now Koenecke is shining for Brooklyn, and Leslie is a serviceable first baseman, while Clark is useless and O'Doul is only a pinch-hitter.

COAST ADDS VERDICT WALKER IS DONE

It comes as no surprise to boxing followers in the East, who long ago made the same decision, but even the Pacific Coast, always a haven to fading old-timers, is ready to quit on Mickey Walker. The fistic critics out there agree that Mickey appears pretty definitely to belong in the second division of light-heavyweights.

In his latest California campaign, Mickey gave every evidence of having slipped badly. The best he could do was to nose out Tom Patrick, defeat a sparring partner, and fight a dull draw with Bob Godwin. Walker's performances were so unimpressive that the former welterweight and middleweight champion is unlikely to get any more profitable matches.

MARATHON SHIFT KILLS DE MAR'S CHANCE

While Clarence De Mar declares he will continue to be a starter in Boston's annual marathon race, despite his 45 years, in the hope of one day winning it for the eighth time in his remarkable career, running experts down East predict he never again will capture the big event. For De Mar, though retaining his stamina and endurance, isn't as fast as he used to be, and it is held that the marathon has changed to become a matter of speed, a contest for real runners.

Dave Komonen

The victory of Dave Komonen in this year's Boston race, with Johnny Kelley second and Bill Steiner third, is viewed as demonstrating that the long grind is now a speed contest, not merely one of endurance and thick-soled feet. All of those three men are runners. They began as middle distance men, received expert coaching, and advanced their ability to the marathon distance. They combine speed, stamina and running form. They know how to run, the right stride, the right use of the arms, the right way to breathe. The same goes for the others who finish up front nowadays in marathons. It's a question of speed from start to finish, and to have speed it's necessary to have running form as well as endurance. There's no longer any chance for the mere plodder who knows nothing of style and went into marathoning just because he likes to run.

JEBY ESCAPES EARLY KAYO, BEATS GREEN

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Ted Yarosz, the uncrowned middleweight champion of the world, may keep right on going about his preparations for a title match with Vince Dundee at Forbes Field this summer. There is no danger of his being sidetracked by Anson Green, the well-known Negro punching menace, of Homestead.

It was well that cooler heads prevailed when the hue and cry went up for a match at Forbes Field between Green, then still in the preliminary ranks, and the highly-rated Yarosz, and prevented the thing from being handed to the fans. For, last night, before a large crowd in the Motor Square Garden ring, Green, making his first start as a main-bouter, against Ben Jeby, of New York, former champion, who recently lost to Yarosz here, blew his only chance, that of winning by a knockout, in the second round, and then took a lacing as Jeby crowded him about the ring round after round to pile up a decisive margin of victory.

GREEN TOO GREEN

Green wasn't disgraced. Far from it. But his inexperience stood out as the greatest single factor in his defeat. The same inexperience that figured to make a match with Yarosz at this time the sheerest folly. Off the experience he gained last night, Green should be a better fighter, and maybe after he gets a few EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: AN UNUSUAL NAME—"Almighty High God" was a patient at the Cherokee State Hospital for the Insane, Iowa, who, aside from the delusion that he was God come to earth to mingle with his subjects, was sane enough to be allowed freedom of the grounds. He improved his time by raising bees. He was allowed to sell the honey and to deposit his profits in the local bank. When opening his account in the bank, he had trouble in signing his name, as he insisted he was "Almighty High God." Finally, the bankers, having investigated his case, humored him by entering his account as he desired.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pittsburgh fans this morning looked forward to a unique two-day session of baseball. Today's scheduled contest between the Pirates and Cincinnati Reds is to be followed tomorrow by the inauguration of Sunday baseball here and in the event of favorable weather the first Sunday attraction will be witnessed by a holiday multitude.

Pirate officials today said they expected as many as 25,000 fans at the Oakland Orchard to watch the Pirates and Reds ring in the Sunday sport, provided the sun supplies a propitious day for the diamond game. The advance sale for this contest has been extensive.

FRENCH TO HURL

Larry French will face the O'Farrell clan this afternoon as the Buccos and Reds stage a belated opening of their series. The contest slated for yesterday was called off on account of cold weather. It will be played here Saturday, August 11, as part of a double-header. Pilot O'Farrell said this morning he would assign Allyn Stout or Joe Shaute to the mound in today's clash.

The Reds will have to face the fire of a former mate's pitching in the Sunday game. Boss Gibson made it known today that the sorrel-top Red Lucas would do the slab honors in the Sunday inaugural. Lucas has yet to pitch a championship round for his new team. Red injured his hip in the spring training period, but he said he is ready to do his stuff now.

Gibson also stated that Paul Waner would return to his right-field position this afternoon. Paul still is bothered with a lame arm and a sprained leg, but he took part in a workout yesterday and said he is O. K. to start again.

PIE STILL OUT

The bulletins on Pie Traynor are none too favorable. Instead of being lost to his club for several days, as was intimated when he left the lineup, it is altogether likely that Pie will be out of action for at least two weeks. He is getting daily treatment, but his ailing right arm is in such bad shape nobody seems to know what the verdict will be. Personally, this writer thinks Pie will be lucky if he is able to throw correctly at the end of a month.

Every member of the Pittsburgh club patiently awaits the return of warm weather. The rank and file of the players, together with Manager Gibson, are convinced that the club needs only the warm breezes to bring out its best qualities. True, the baseball so far seen at Forbes Field has been of a

Carnegie Tech Track Team Meets Reserve

Carnegie Tech's varsity track and field squad is in Cleveland today for a dual engagement with Western Reserve University. The meet is the first collegiate encounter of the season for the Plaid, which was beaten last week in a practice meet by the P. A. A.

Coach Guy Halferty took the Tartan squad to the Ohio city this morning.

BOWLER ROLLS 1,155

C. (Dutch) Hollen, of Kittanning, competing in the "best bowler" tourney at the Strand Alleys, rolled five successive games of 227, 271, 215, 216 and 226 for a total of 1,155.

Oil City Team Wins in Tourney

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. April 28.—(AP.)—Y. M. C. A. volley ball teams from Fort Worth, Tex., and Los Angeles, Calif., won in opening rounds of the national volley ball tournament here yesterday afternoon.

Fort Worth defeated the strong Fort Wayne, Ind., team 15-4, 1-15 and 15-12. Los Angeles defeated Knoxville, Tenn., 13-15, 15-10 and 15-9.

Other winners were Oil City, Pa.; Division Street, Chicago and Houston, Texas, defending titleholders. Oil City defeated the Kannapolis, N. C., team 15-13, 11-15 and 15-8.

CUNNINGHAM AND VENZKE CLASH AGAIN AT PENN RELAYS

WORLD MARK BROKEN IN DRAKE MEET

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—(AP.)—Princeton's Bill Bonthron, who never goes to a track meet unless he is taking part in it, declined to deviate today from his antipathy to a "busman's holiday," even to see two of his mile-running rivals match strides. Consequently the Tiger ace, after running second to Indiana's Charles Hornbostel in the anchor half-mile of the sprint medley relay, made arrangements to play golf while Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas, and Gene Venzke, of Pennsylvania, furnished the main attraction on the final day's program of the fortieth Pennsylvania relay carnival.

Cunningham came East in quest of his tenth triumph in 11 races with the slim Pennsylvanian. Lawson Robertson, Penn coach, predicted the winner of the one-mile special would break the record of 4:14 for Franklin Field.

VENZKE'S TASK TOUGH

Two hours after he races Cunningham this afternoon, Venzke is scheduled to anchor the Pennsylvania four-mile relay team.

Bonthron, in his only start in this year's carnival, found the ankle-deep mud and Hornbostel too much to overcome in the feature of opening day. As the climax to a well-soaked program, Bonthron took the baton a stride behind the Indiana captain on the 880-anchor leg of the sprint medley and wound up four yards back of Hornbostel at the finish.

Cornell's victorious sprint quartet, which upset the dope by beating Columbia, Pennsylvania and Maryland in that order in the 440-yard relay championship yesterday, sought additional laurels today in the 880-college relay.

PITT TEAM THIRD

Pittsburgh's mile relay team was third in the sprint medley, and the Pitt medley quartet finished fourth in the relay won by Manhattan College.

Walter Good, of Pitt, was second to Jackson, of Michigan State, in the hop, step and jump, and Bob Evans, of Geneva, took second in the 400-meter special hurdle race, which was won by Joe Healy, of N. Y. U.

WORLD MARK SET

DES MOINES, April 28.—(AP.)—One world record and two new relay marks were enrolled today as the second day's competition started in the silver anniversary of the Drake relays.

The highlight of the record-smashing yesterday was the 55 feet 1½-inch shotput toss by Jack Torrance, the Louisiana State behemoth. The throw set an unofficial world record, surpassing the recognized mark of 52 feet 1½ inches by Douda, of Poland, in 1932.

Torrance did not confine his activity to the shotput, getting out the discus for 150.95 feet to lead the qualifiers in that event.

Purdue made a new mark in he distance medley, the quartet running the race in 10:15.3, and another meet record was broken when Abiline, Christian Texas College, ran the sprint medley in 3:29.3 to beat its old mark of 3:39.8 last year.

DUKES NETTERS FACE GROVERS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Duquesne varsity tennis host of Grant Siverd pries off the local college net lid in contest with Grove City on the Bluff asphalt courts this afternoon. The home opener, set back twice thus far as Red and Blue tussles with Waynesburg and Carnegie Tech were postponed last Monday and Wednesday, respectively, looms none too certain even for today, unless marked moderation of yesterday's chilly and snow-blowing breezes proves to be in order.

The Dukes go to the post with a lineup that is largely untried. Capt. Bill Purcell has drawn the No. 1 starting assignment by virtue of success in various trial contests. On the basis of his showing in the same competition, Roy Getty, East End junior, rates second, with four newcomers to the regular array, Petruska, Higgins, Rowan and Fagan following in the rank named. The Grovers, if they adhere to the list they flashed in their inaugural with Pitt last Saturday, will lead off with Holstein, after whom will come Hoburg, Gross, Johnson, Patterson and McKittrick.

Duquesne authorities last evening announced some radical changes in the racquet card. The new slate notes 15 definitely booked dates between today and June 2, with the matter of the playoff of the postponed Carnegie Tech affair on the Hilltop still to be determined. The revised schedule follows:

April 28—Grove City at Duquesne.
May 1—Pitt at Pitt.
May 3—Carnegie Tech at Carnegie Tech.
May 5—Wash-Jeff at Little Washington.
May 10—Geneva at Duquesne.
May 12—Wash-Jeff at Duquesne.
May 14—Westminster at Duquesne.
May 16—Grove City at Grove City.
May 18—Westminster at New Wilmington.
May 21—Pitt at Duquesne.
May 23—Waynesburg at Waynesburg.
May 25—West Virginia at Duquesne.
May 26—Geneva at Beaver Falls.
May 29—Waynesburg at Duquesne.
June 2—West Virginia at Morgantown.

While the Dukes and the Grovers battle on the hill, Pitt's Panthers joust with Bethany on the Bison rectangles and W. & J. jaunts to Geneva.

Pitt, West Virginia Netters Rained Out

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 28.—West Virginia University's tennis match with Pitt and baseball game with Fairmont Teachers' College were both rained out yesterday afternoon. The baseballers will play a doubleheader here today.

Jeby Near Kayo in Bout

ANSON GREEN BEN JEBY REFEREE AL GRAYBER

High spot of Anson Green-Ben Jeby fight in Motor Square Garden last night. Green, Homestead puncher, has just staggered the former champion into a neutral corner with a right to the jaw and Jeby has grabbed a vise-like clinch. His experience saved him and he went on to win the fight, taking seven of the ten rounds, with two even. A Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

more stiff battles under his belt something can be done about letting him try his haymakers against Yarosz. Anson carried on right to the finish against Jeby, taking his beating like a man and always trying, however futilely.

The Homesteader proved made to order for Jeby's inside punching style. In fact, the only time Jeby was in danger was as a result of getting tagged with a long-reaching right. The remainder of the time he stayed on top of Anson and kept chugging short punches to the head and body until he took all of the steam out of Anson's blows, and from the fourth round on Anson was just another hitter—when he was able to score.

ANSON'S BIG MOMENT

The big moment came in the second round, after an even first session, in which Green tallied with jabs to the head and rights to the body while Jeby hooked lefts to the head and drummed away inside. Jeby began to go to work like a journeyman on Green's body in the second round and was doing famously until Green suddenly lashed out with a long right to the jaw which sent Ben staggering back to the ropes in a neutral corner. The crowd was up sensing a knockout as Jeby desperately grabbed a clinch and moved about. When they broke, Green sent over another long right, which jarred Jeby, and the latter was in a bad way. He snapped out of it soon, however, and landed a good left hook and then made Green miss repeatedly and sent two rights of his own to the head. At the bell he was in control of the situation again.

This was Green's round, but his only one. He held his own in the eighth, in which he put on a swinging rally which was desperately wild, but managed to flag down Jeby's pace, besides the opening frame, leaving seven rounds for Jeby.

YAROSZ REMAINS SAFE

Aside from the close call in the second round, Jeby was momentarily hurt with another right in the third. The sixth round saw Jeby send over his most enthusiastic barrage of punches. He fairly lathered Anson's head and body with blows until just before the bell, when Anson began to fight back in self-defense.

It was, in short, a story of experience against inexperience, and, barring a chance knockout, experience generally wins these duels. Green's only hope against Yarosz would be to score a knockout, and, with Teddy so much faster and smarter, the odds would be at least 1,000 to 1 against his being able to do that as matters stand just now. Anybody who can travel 10 fast rounds and take the punishment Jeby hands out in a winning fight can fight almost any of the men in his class, and Green proved his right to further consideration, but that Yarosz man is something else again, as they say in the classics.

Green weighed 160 pounds and Jeby 158½ at 3 p. m. yesterday.

MANCINI BEATS VAUGHN

Dominic Mancini, of the North Side, dropped Jimmy Vaughn, Cleveland lightweight, for a count of eight with a right to the jaw in the first round and beat him in all but the second and eighth rounds of the 10-round semi-final. Dominic fought viciously and hit hard all of the way, albeit he was a bit wild.

Johnny Durso, of Oakland, was too fast and scattered his punches too well for Elmer Wilson, East End Negro junior-welterweight, in the six-round preliminary, and Johnny Birek, of the South Side, beat Ray Eberle, of South Heights, and Harry Krause, of Soho, won over Ralph Gizzy, of Donora, in the four-rounders.

The Krause-Gizzy battle, the opener, was the best on the card for action. All of the decisions were unanimous except this one, in which the judges divided their votes and the referee scored for Krause.

Al Grayber and Joe Orsini alternated as the referees.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

A number of the Pirates and some of their wives were spectators at the Garden show.

North Braddock Council last night passed an ordinance to give Jake Goldstein a license to operate the Meyers Boxing Bowl. He has taken it over for a period of three years and will spend a considerable sum of money to put it back in shape for use.

The fans got a kick out of Ray Eberle, the announcer, introducing Ray Eberle, the boxer, last night. They're not related.

Joe Columbo and Max Elling have been paired for the six-round semi-final to the Tiger Joe Randall-Joey Bazzone return bout at McKeesport Monday night.

COUNTY PARKS GOLF LINKS OPENED

By TOM BIRKS

Golfing activities officially were started at the Allegheny County South Parks links this morning when J. D. O'Neill, local public links commissioner to the United States Golf Association hit the first ball off the tee.

William S. Haddock, athletic director at the County Parks, Bob Gumbert, member of the committee for the staging of the National Public Links championship here, and Albert McBride, professional at South Park, also hit tee shots.

Alex Shacoski, North Park champion, was one of the first to tee off at South Park.

There was no official opening at North Park course. Professional Walter Loeffler and his assistants had everything in readiness for an early start by players and no formalities were observed.

Two collegiate matches, the opening of the North and South parks links and a big affair at the Valley Heights Country Club feature today's golf program.

While the undefeated Pitt Panthers are disporting themselves at Morgantown, clashing with West Virginia, the Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University teams will battle it out over the Pittsburgh Field Club's classy course.

W. VA. STRONG

The Mountaineers may furnish the stiffest test Regis Wolff and his Blue and Gold standard bearers have met. Detroit, Tech and the Dukes both proved to be easy victims of the Panthers, but the Mountaineers, on last season's form, should prove to be a tough obstacle.

At Valley Heights, Ted Luther has announced an afternoon of golf, a dinner in the evening and plenty of entertainment following for members and their friends. The popular nine-hole course is in excellent shape.

The usual sweepstakes will be held at a number of the clubs in the district.

Bob Graham, former professional at the Park public links, has been named pro at the Summit golf course, Uniontown, by Leo Heyn, president of the club.

SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY

A slightly curtailed program of Interscholastic Golf Conference matches was run off yesterday, two duels, one involving the defending champions from Kiski, being postponed. The champions were to have met McKeesport. The other duel called off was to have featured Taylor Allderdice and Westinghouse.

Allegheny Vocational, in Section I; Sewickley, in Section II; Brentwood, in Section III, and Greensburg, in Section IV, were toppled from the ranks of the undefeated. Peabody beat Vocational, 15 to 0; Springdale downed Sewickley, 9 to 6; Brentwood lost to Dormont, 8½ to 6½, and Greensburg was nosed out by Norwin, 8 to 7.

FRENCH READY FOR CINCY

very drab variety, for the most part, but baseball was never intended to be a winter sport. The sun, the ice cold pop and the peanuts make for the national game.

CHILLYSAUCE

Leroy Parmelee was clever enough to win 13 games as against eight losses in his first full year in the majors, so his departure from the Giants' slab squad may have a big bearing on the National League pennant race.

Members of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati squads in talking over Parmelee's operation for appendicitis agreed that the big right-hander will be out of action for more than two months; some even predicted he would be a loss to the Giants for the remainder of the season.

Parmelee has just about as much stuff as Lonnie Warneke or Dizzy Dean, but his control is far enough off to make him a bit uncertain. Yet his record of last season held so much promise that he might have won a score of victories this year had he remained with the club.

The latest development in the camp of the world champions means that the reliable Carl Hubbell will have to carry a heavier-than-usual burden. Hubbell worked 309 innings in 1933 to lead the Heydler circuit pitchers in endurance; he also was first in games won and lost and in earned-run efficiency. If he should falter a bit this summer, that mighty emblem might be taken from the Giants' uniforms before the curtain drops.

Manager Bob O'Farrell is satisfied with the deal made by the Reds and Pirates during the past winter. Bob says Comorosky has not batted up to his ability as yet, but he expects the fleet coal miner to hit his stride when the weather warms up. Piet's all-around play so far has been a feature of the Cincinnati club's progress.

O'Farrell is convinced the other clubs will learn that the Reds are no bargain-counter purchase. Bob has no flag dreams or anything approaching such visions, but he thinks his club will have quite a time bowling over the various favorites at frequent intervals.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

To the Sports Editor:

A fellow said to me in St. Louis the other day:

"Wagner, don't you wish you was playing again?"

I told him I never stopped playing ball.

I may not get out there at shortstop any more, but I'm playing the game through some of the youngsters I teach what I know about baseball. I didn't think years ago that anybody could get any fun out of helping others get ahead, but I learned different.

Honus Wagner

I ain't a preacher or anything like that, but, well, I think there's a moral there somewhere.

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

LOCAL HANDBALL CARD ENLARGED

The special inter-city handball program between stars of Pittsburgh and Cleveland at the Keystone Athletic Club here tomorrow has been enlarged to include an extra singles tussle, the bill calling for two singles contests and two doubles frays.

K. A. C. Athletic Director Jack Kennard, in announcing the added joust, likewise stated that the Steel City representative in the second singles engagement will be chosen from among Bill Kern, of the P. A. A.; Lou Alman, of the Y. M. H. A., and Dick Koubek, of the home organization, with probability that the brilliant Keystoner will land the assignment.

The s'ate, scheduled to get under way at 2 p. m., will be featured by a scrimmage between Theos Manos, perennial A. M. A. senior champion, and Johnny Endzewick, national A. A. U. premier in 1933. Other Cleveland visitors will be Jimmy Brown, Ed Goodrow and Carl Walters. The session has been scheduled to signalize the opening the new Keystone board-floor glove court, the only regulation inclosure between here and Erie. All handball fans of the district have been invited, and a capacity gallery looms in the offing. The competition will be followed by a dinner at which handball leaders of the city will be in attendance. The affair is under the chairmanship of E. Curtis Clark, who is being assisted by his K. A. C. committee confreres, Des Schneider, Ed Reno, F. S. Appleby and Rudy Hofer.

RANKING STARS MEET DEFEAT

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 28.—(AP.)—In two startling upsets, Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, and Frank X. Shields, of New York, two stars favored to win Davis Cup singles berths, were eliminated in the semi-finals of the Virginia State tennis tournament.

Stoefen, the nation's third ranking amateur, was defeated by John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, 10-8, 9-11, 6-0, 6-4, while Shields, ranking No. 1, fell before Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, yesterday.

Koenecke, Stripp Lost to Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—(INS.)—Len Koenecke, promising young outfielder, may be lost to the Brooklyn Dodgers for several weeks, it developed today.

Koenecke injured his foot in Boston the other day, and an operation probably will be necessary.

Meanwhile, Manager Casey Stengel was bemoaning the news that Joe Stripp, his third baseman, had fractured a small bone in his ankle and would be out of the lineup indefinitely.

DERBY ENTRIES RUN IN TEST RACES TODAY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 28.—(AP.)—With Kentucky Derby eligibles entered in both feature races, the Churchill Downs spring meeting opens today with fair but cool weather in prospect for the inaugural program of eight races.

Col. E. R. Bradley, leaving his two Derby winners, Burgoo King and Broker's Tip, in the barn, has elected to try for the $2,500 added Clark handicap with Tick On, the defeated favorite for the 1932 Derby won by Burgoo King, and Barn Swallow, winner of the Kentucky Oaks last year. Bradley purchased Tick On from the Loma stable after the 1932 Derby.

While the Bradley entry rules the public choice for the Clark, the Dixiana farm's fleet filly Esseff is a formidable contender. Others in the small field are Pot Au Brooms, Big Beau, Gyro and J. W. Parrish's Hoard, an eligible for next week's Kentucky Derby, which was assigned the light impost of 98 pounds in the Clark, and A. L. Ferguson's Vitamin B, given 102 pounds.

The South Louisville purse, a six-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds, drew a field of 12 horses, eight of which are Derby eligibles classed as outsiders in the calculations for the $30,000 added event to be raced next Saturday.

Derby eligibles in the South Louisville are Dartle, Ridge Mor, Broadstep, Exponent, Fogarty, Likewise, Cactus Rose and Thataway.

Sir Thomas, one of the Derby favorites, breezed a mile in 1:42 4-5 this morning. Naval Cadet stepped three-quarters in 1:14 4-5, Riskulus ran three-eights in :38 and Bender First a like distance in :40.

MARYLAND HUNT 'CHASE TODAY

BALTIMORE, April 28.—(AP.)—Eastern society and sports enthusiasts were gathered here today for the annual running of the Maryland Hunt Cup, considered by many America's most famous steeplechase.

An outstanding field of jumpers was entered in the race, which has been run each year since 1894. Some 20,000 persons were expected to attend.

Sixteen entries were ready to take to the four-mile trail, which is over the estates of Charles L. A. Heiser and J. W. Y. Martin, in Worthington Valley.

The difficult course has brought death to horses three times since 1929 and rain yesterday meant possibly that the countryside grass would be wet and dangerous. One jumper was killed last year.

Twenty-two post and rail fences, several of them five feet high, garnish the course, the third being considered the most dangerous. It stands slightly more than five feet and is built of almost unbreakable timbers.

A 12½-inch silver tankard—the Maryland Hunt Cup—is at the trail's end for the winner.

One of the outstanding contenders for the cup is the record holder, Troublemaker, owned by Mrs. T. H. Somerville, of Montpelier, Va. The time set by this horse was 8 minutes 51 2-5 seconds, in 1932.

THE GAME OF SOFTBALL

—What It's All About—

This is the eighth installment of a series on the rules of softball being published in connection with a district amateur tournament which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will conduct this summer, the winner of which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago in September. Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 14—Strikes and Balls

A strike shall be called against the batter when:

1—He strikes at but does not touch with his bat a pitched ball.

2—A legally pitched ball delivered by the pitcher passes across the plate above the knees and below the shoulders and is not struck at.

3—He hits a foul ball not caught on the fly, unless he already has two strikes.

4—A pitched ball at which he swings and misses touches any part of his person.

5—He hits a foul tip which is held by the catcher while standing within the lines of his box.

6—He swings at an illegal pitch without its touching his bat.

A ball shall be called by the umpire when:

1—Any legal pitch strikes the batter standing in his box providing he has not struck at the ball or intentionally permitted it to hit him. (Rule 11.)

2—An illegal pitch is delivered to the batter which is not struck at or hit. (Rule 8, Article 4.)

3—The pitcher with one or more runners on base drops the ball in the act of delivering it. (Rule 8, Article 5.)

4—The pitcher or any player in the field withholds the ball from play and in the judgment of the umpire is delaying the game.

5—A legally pitched ball delivered by the pitcher which does not conform to any of the provisions which would make said ball a strike.

RULE 15—Ball Not in Play

1—The ball is dead, and not in play, and no base-runner may advance in case of:

(a) An illegally batted ball.

(b) Foul hit ball not legally caught.

(c) Dead ball.

(d) Interference with the fielder or batsman.

(e) A fair hit ball striking a base-runner or umpire before touching a fielder.

(f) A batter being called out for bunting or attempting to bunt.

(g) An infield fly being declared by the umpire.

2—In all the foregoing the ball shall not be considered in play until it be held by the pitcher standing in his position and the umpire shal have called "Play."

Monday! When Batter Is Out.

THE GARDEN'S SALE IS CLOSED

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP.)—Apparently reliable reports said today that control of the Madison Square Garden Corporation had passed from Richard F. Hoyt, financier and chairman of the board, to a Wall street syndicate headed by Col. John S. Hammond.

Hammond, former vice president of the corporation, probably will be named president and directing head of the organization, these reports said.

Sale of the controlling interest in the corporation, rumored for several days, was reported to have been closed last night just before Hoyt and his wife sailed for a vacation in Europe. Col. Hammond said:

"I promised my associates I would make no statement at this time. However, I will have something to say early next week."

Those familiar with the situation at the $7,000,000 sport palace Tex Rickard built nine years ago said there had been a conflict of opinion within the board ever since Rickard died in 1929. William F. Carey, who succeeded Rickard as president, resigned last year. He was succeeded in turn by Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, one of Yale's old football stars.

Col. Hammond, like Carey, resigned last year, presumably because of a conflict of opinion with other directors on matters of policy.

WESTINGHOUSE NINE WINS

By JULIUS LEVIN

The City League championship scholastic baseball race got under way yesterday as a 50 per cent program was run off and 10 W. P. I. A. L. nines resumed action.

It remained for Section 1, of the city circuit, to furnish the action yesterday. Westinghouse got off on the right foot by beating Schenley 8 to 4, a five-run attack in the fifth inning bringing the victory. Schenley was limited to two hits by Olivo, Westinghouse hurler.

Peabody nosed out South in the other game, 8 to 6. South was not in the ball game until the advent of the seventh and final inning, when the boys collected five runs.

The Section II contests, involving South Hills and Carrick and Allegheny Vocational and Oliver were postponed due to the cold weather.

McKeesport, Turtle Creek, Dormont, Burgettstown and Avella scored triumphs in W. P. I. A. L. battles. Dormont, which has been making merry at the expense of rival hurlers, walloped Crafton 6 to 1. McKeesport battered Wilkinsburg 14 to 4, Turtle Creek downed East McKeesport 12 to 1; Burgettstown upset Hickory 7 to 4 and Avella nosed out Waynesburg 10 to 8.

Joe Vila Succumbs After Heart Attack

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP.)—Joe Vila, sports editor of the Evening Sun, died late last night of a heart attack after a few days' illness. He was 67 years old.

He was stricken first on Monday morning while on his way to the office, but worked a few hours that day. When he returned home, a physician ordered him to bed.

Nationally prominent as a sports commentator for many years, Vila had been connected with the Sun organization for about 40 years. He was for many years connected with the Morning Sun and had been sports editor of the Evening Sun since about 1915. The widow, Mrs. Edna Vila, and one daughter, Josephine, survive.

Street Corners No Place For Dates With Boys

By MARION BRUNOT

Meeting on the street corners. Not so good!. Yet when Not Decided's parents said she couldn't have her boy friend at her home, she managed to see him, anyhow.

He is such a fine, big fellow, a manager and trainer of prize fighters, and so she hadn't the heart to let him go. Being a giant always holds an interest for the girls. There is something secure about the BIG MAN. Like the Rock of Gibraltar, He is worth fighting for

Of course, the heart of a big man may be as small as that of a mouse. Yet it doesn't appear that way. No, sir-ee.

Being patted on the back by BIG HANDS.

Being looked down at PROTECTIVELY.

Hearing words slip out in a great, COARSE VOICE. Why, one can almost work up sentiment over the BIG, BAD WOLF in Little Red Ridinghood!

Dear Miss Brunot:

Miss Brunot

I am certainly up against it. I have been going with a young man for a half year. My parents do not want me to go steady with him. But even after we broke up I met him on street corners. I had a date, though, with him one night and flimmed him. I walked right past him with another fellow. You see, my parents and my friends unite in being against him.

HANDSOME DRESSER

He is a handsome dresser, and good looking. He hasn't much to say, and he works as a manager and a trainer for prize fighters. Everyone seems against him. And it is because he tries to get up in the world. When I went with him he never looked at anyone else. In fact, I was his first real girl. He never brags of himself. How can I tell whether he loves me? Other girls like to dance with him, although they don't like him, because he is such a good dancer.

I am trying to forget him, but can't do so. What is your advice? NOT DECIDED.

One phrase in your letter sticks out above all others. You say EVERYBODY SEEMS AGAINST HIM. Now, my dear girl, when but a few people like a person, it is all right. When a person has several downright enemies, but plenty of admirers, again it is all right. But when in unison everyone is against someone. There must be a GOOD REASON.

A quiet man who goes about his own business and who tries to get up in the world is good reading. But then the query comes in, what methods does he use in THIS GETTING UP. Think that over. Not Decided. Still waters run deep, but sometimes they run dangerously, as well. I disapprove of meeting on street corners. I don't think REAL MEN do such things when they are really caring. It breaks a man's pride, and it is better to have a broken rib or arm, than broken pride. The first two heal. But the latter, never.

Thus on the whole, since you already have "flimmed" this man and lived through it, try going without him for a little while longer. You may find some young man whom more people like and right around the corner.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 16 years old and in love with a man who works in a chain store. I am simply wild about him. He talks and jokes. Can't I get him for a steady fellow? I think of him all the time, and would love to have a date with him. When I turn out the light and try to sleep, his image rises before me, and I dream of his merry ways. Maybe you will say I am silly, but that won't stop my thinking of this fellow. He is the first man who ever has interested me.

Please answer soon.

BLUE DOLORES.

No wonder that love never has seriously afflicted you, Blue Dolores. Your age is against such having been the case. Keep on being pleasant and listening to this fellow's raillery and the chances are two to one he will ask you for a "date." I do not think you silly. In fact it is natural for youth to have its fling at night-time dreaming. Yet be sure, Blue Dolores, you pick and choose with discrimination. And don't be too much bolstered up in the thoughts of a fellow who only jollies you. Razzing is all right. But don't accept it as Gospel.

Dear Miss Brunot:

We are two high school girls. This is our problem: We each like a boy, and are not sure that the boys like us. Betty fancies Joe. He is popular with the other girls, but at dances always asks her for the last dance. At the last party, however, he appeared indifferent. What can she do to win him?

WANTS HELP

Arline is fond of Bob. But rumor says he has another girl in the same school. He doesn't ask Arline to dance with him. Won't you help her to win his favor, Miss Brunot.

We are nice girls. Do not smoke nor drink. And we can't say the same for the others. We'll be watching the Speak Up, Sister column for your advice. BETTY and ARLINE.

Maybe you girls have a critical demeanor. That never gets the liking of boys. You are right not to drink nor smoke. But at the same time, join in real fun and healthy amusements, if you want to be popular. The boy who always asked Betty for the last dance must have wanted to take her home. That usually goes along with the "home waltz." To get these boys, be pleasant, sympathetic, and do not back-bite any other girl.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

MISS AMERICA SEES WASHINGTON, D. C.---NO. 3 -o- -o- By NELL BRINKLEY

Sally and Sue went on their own through the less tremendously important sights of the unique city of Washington, for Sylvia had her pretty nose to the grindstone at least part time.

All green and white it seems to these youthful spirits. Through green parks they see white buildings. From white buildings they see green parks. The colors of courage and high hearts! And of beauty, too. Are they not the colors of Veridis, the Princess of Spring?

Spring is green, and hope is green, and honor is white—Sally and Sue get kind of mixed when they try to tell you this—but the hours they are spending in the heart of their country, walking resounding halls where famous feet have trod, touching the very marbles and gilded woods and wrought iron that have been touched by hands of those who from school days have been to them heroes and unreal portraits in history—all these have swelled their two young bosoms with patriotism! And come what may, they believe in the green hope and courage, and in the whiteness of unsullied honor, of what is meant to young America by "Washington."

Sally and Sue feel that they are watching the government work! They have seen the Great Seal of the United States in the State, War and Navy Building. They have read famous treaties, with awe on their bright faces. They have looked fearfully, from the high shot-windows of the Washington Monument.

They have climbed the marble steps of the Lincoln Memorial. They have circled the fountain in the botanical gardens, and remembered that it was designed by Bartholdi, the Frenchman who designed the Statue of Liberty.

Everywhere is history ALIVE, and fame, and ancientness—that is, ancientness to very young America.

Then Sylvia has a day, and THEY LOOK AT THE WHITE HOUSE! And they wonder what it can be like to LIVE THERE.

First they leaned three round chins on an iron fence and looked at it from afar, dazzling white in its green acres, like a house of sugar blocks. The White House!

Then they entered the home of all the Presidents of the United States of America, since Washington walked through its partly finished rooms before his death, and they were sorry he could never have lived there.

They saw the East Room, lighted loftily by high windows, aglitter with crystal candelabra whose crystals, Sue whispered, were surely as big as her head! Here Lincoln's coffin stood. Here stood Nellie Grant on her wedding day. Here President Harding slept in his last sleep, before one of the huge fireplaces.

The saw the Red Room, its paintings and velvety red walls; the stairs where guests flock upward to formal receptions and functions.

They saw—more.

The unique life that is Washington, and WAS Washington, is appearing to Sue and Sally. They wonder what it is like to LIVE in the White House! —NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Susceptible to 'Canker Sores?'

I receive many letters requesting information about "canker sores." This is a disagreeable and annoying disturbance of the lining of the mouth. Usually the disorder is mild in its nature and quickly runs its course. But sometimes the inflammation is so severe as to confine the victim to bed for many days.

Dr. Copeland

The cause is not definitely known, but, whatever it is, some persons are susceptible to canker sores and others rarely, if ever, suffer from them. Many believe the condition is due to sensitivity to certain foods. When the offending food substance is discovered and omitted from the diet, the sore disappears. The trouble does not reappear unless the offending food is eaten.

Others believe the disturbance is due to a lack of certain vitamins. When the diet is deficient in foods carrying vitamin C, the gums and mucous membrane of the mouth become inflamed and susceptible to infections. Prolonged lack of the vitamin leads to severe bleeding and tenderness of the gums. This condition can be prevented or overcome by taking an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The victim of canker sore first notices an inflamed spot, usualy located at the base of the teeth, under the tongue, or on the inner surface of the lips or cheeks. Pretty soon there appear small blisters which break, leaving behind a whitish patch and a painful ulcer.

Bear in mind that ulcers within the mouth demand immediate medical attention. It is often the only sign of a serious disease. Persistent ulcer that does not respond to simple medication should arouse suspicion.

For sufferers from simple canker sores, I would advise careful supervision of the diet. Try to determine whether you are sensitive to certain foods. Include a liberal supply of fresh fruits and vegetables in your diet. If you have not recently consulted your dentist, do so now. Remove all infected and dead teeth, have all cavities filled and faulty bridge work repaired.

The mouth should be kept clean by antiseptic washes and regular brushing of the teeth. The canker sores can be touched with a strong astringent every few days.

A silver nitrate stick applied to the sore is extremely beneficial. Care must be exercised in its use as it is a strong chemical and will damage normal tissue if unwisely applied.

Reader. Q.—How can I improve the shape of the nose?

A.—Unless there is some obstruction which has caused the nose to be unsightly, little can be done to change the shape of the nose unless by surgery.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Squeeze Via the Vienna Coup

It is one of the marks of an expert Bridge player to develop tricks where apparently they do not exist. To do this he uses certain standard plays, such as squeezes and forced leads, and no one can claim to have attained great proficiency in Bridge until he has mastered the principles upon which these plays are based.

Mr. Hugh F. McElroy, of New York, in a recent rubber game at Crockford's Club, found himself in a Grand Slam contract which it required all of his ingenuity to fulfill in the play. The hand was:

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A 9 4 3 ♡ A K 8 ◇ K 8 ♣ A 8 3 2
♠ Q J 10 6 5 ♡ — ◇ 7 6 3 ♣ Q 10 6 5 4	North West East South	♠ K 8 2 ♡ Q 10 9 7 6 5 4 ◇ — ♣ K J 7
	♠ 7 ♡ J 3 2 ◇ A Q J 10 9 5 4 2 ♣ 9

Mr. McElroy

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 NT	2 ♡
4 ◇	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	7 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's Opening bid of one notrump is obviously correct inasmuch as his hand contains no biddable suit but does have 4½ honor-tricks. East's Overcall, not vulnerable, is not to be criticized. Mr. McElroy's Jump Takeout after his first pass was correct, and his idea was to suggest Slam possibilities provided the four honor-tricks in his partner's hand included a wealth of Aces and Kings. The response of four hearts, showing control of the adverse suit, was North's answer to this challenge, and when Mr. McElroy bid six diamonds, North decided that the hands should produce all the tricks and therefore bid for the Grand Slam.

When West opened the spade Queen it seemed reasonably obvious that he did not hold a heart as there would be no purpose in opening a suit of his own in preference to his partner's if he had no suit stronger than Queen high. The trick was won with the Ace in Dummy and a small spade returned and ruffed. Now Mr. McElroy took three rounds of diamonds, retained the Dummy with a heart, and cashed the Ace of hearts. He next led the third round of spades from Dummy, the purpose being to drive out, if possible, the spade King, which appeared to be placed in the East hand. When the King dropped, the successful play of the hand was assured. The Vienna Coup, by which the heart Queen was established as an apparent winner in the East hand, and the driving out of the spade protection from the same hand made it possible for either East or West to put up an effective defense. Before the last trump was led, the situation was:

	♠ 9 ♡ — ◇ — ♣ A 8
♠ J ♡ — ◇ — ♣ Q 10	North West East South	♠ — ♡ Q ◇ — ♣ K J
	♠ — ♡ J ◇ J ♣ 9

West was forced to retain the spade Knave; hence he dropped the club Ten. The nine of spades had now served its purpose and was discarded. East knew South held the heart Knave; therefore he was compelled to retain the heart Queen and reluctantly dropped the club Knave. Mr. McElroy now triumphantly led his small club and thus fulfilled his Grand Slam contract.

The hand is an interesting one, requiring not only perfect timing but a number of complicated plays.

Household Hints

When burning vegetable refuse, a handful of salt placed on the fire at the same time will take away the odor.

Vinegar acts as a wonderful cleansing agent on brick tiling. Soak a cloth with it and apply. If necessary wash twice. It will look like new when dried.

Stone steps that are treated with white hearthstone or red ochre will keep a good appearance much longer if thin starch is used instead of plain water. This causes the hearthstone or ochre to adhere to the stone.

Madge Suspects Lee Chow of Shooting

As long as there is a scintilla of memory left to me, I shall not forget the ride to the hospital with Dicky after he had been shot from ambush.

Terror gripped me starkly, not for Dicky's condition, for I knew that the chance of injury to the ligament of his "drawing arm," was the only thing we had to fear for him, but terror of the same sinister hand which only an hour before had discharged six rifle shots at him.

That Hugh Grantland and my father shared that fear I guessed from the close watch they were keeping of both sides of the deserted road. And I had surmised that Hugh's reason for having Katherine sit upon the other side of Dicky was his belief that Lee Chow would not renew his murderous attempt upon Dicky's life while he was in Hugh's car, with Hugh driving and my father, Katherine and I the other occupants.

Lee Chow! I repeated the name to myself shudderingly, then wondered if my belief that he was responsible for the murderous attempt upon Dicky's life was a sane and reasonable belief, or was prompted by an imagination fed by nervous terror.

ACTING QUEERLY

The wounded old henchman of Lee Chow had spoken of me in matter of fact fashion as "belonging Lee Chow boss man."

Since the terrible illness of Lee Chow, caused by his receiving the jab of the poisoned needle contained in the sealed envelope in Marion's lock box, he had been acting queerly, and I had been conscious of his espionage upon me.

Upon this very evening, following his urgent manadate that I go with Hugh to the beach if he should extend me the invitation, he had asked for a private interview with me, had pressed me for the reason for my unwillingness to go with Hugh to the beach, had uttered vague threats to my husband and my children if I refused to listen to him, and then a moment later disclaimed in most plausible fashion any intention of threatening me.

My father had bolstered my conviction that the Chinese had tried a species of hypnotism to compel my attention, and that only his own intervention had prevented the success of the experiment. Also, the earnest conference of my father and Hugh Grantland and my father's subsequent careful watch over me had made still stronger my belief that they feared some ill to me or mine at the hands of Lee Chow.

Small wonder, I decided at last, that when the blow did come, Lee Chow's name and image were the first to come into my mind.

JEALOUSY LULLED

Of one thing I was sure—and thankful. Dicky had no suspicion of Lee Chow. He had been sincere when he had answered the doctor's query about the shooting with his conjecture that he must have been the mistaken victim of a bootlegging gang war. His jealousy of Hugh Grantland, apparently dormant now, was always so near the surface that the discovery of this apparent plot of Lee Chow's to eliminate him from life and deliver me over to Hugh might kindle his angry jealousy anew, even though his common sense would tell him how far removed was Hugh from any part of the insane scheme.

The breath of relief I drew when we reached the hospital could have been heard a mile, I was very sure.

When I was at last admitted to the private room where he was to stay the night, I found him tight-lipped and grim, and knew that something was troubling him mightily.

"They won't do anything about this until tomorrow morning," he said, "so I shall have to stay the night. You'd better all beat it now and get some sleep, which is more than I'll have. I wanted to be sure about this thing."

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS

SILHOUETTE PILLOWS PATTERN 686

Make These in an Hour

Pillows—that crying need of the home in summer! And they must be gay—and they must be practical—and they must be easy to make. What could be gayer than these simple silhouette pillows—a lucky elephant or cat and decorative flower motifs made of but one big patch of material? It could be felt, linen, gingham or other cotton material. The patch can be applied without turning under edges, by slip stitching in the case of felt, or by blanket stitching when other materials are used. The white parts in the silhouette can either be cut out or embroidered. That they are quickly made is obvious, for the patches are all so simple in form that it takes no time to apply them.

Pattern 686 comes to you with a transfer pattern of an elephant 8½x10 inches, a cat 5½x10 inches, a basket 10x11 inches and a 5-inch flower motif; directions for applying the patches and yardage requirements.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Church Wedding in June

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to have a church wedding in June and I would like to know if it would be proper for the bridegroom, best man and ushers to wear white flannels and dark coats at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, as I am going to wear a veil? A.

For a church wedding in June, a formal wedding where the bride is to wear formal attire, the correct attire for the bridegroom, his best man and ushers is formal afternoon clothes, cutaway coat, dark striped trousers.

Old Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

During the last seven years I have written several letters to a young man friend. Now I want these letters returned. Have I a right to ask for them . . . aren't they my letters? B.

If you feel so definitely about wishing to have your letters returned, wish to make a point of it, you may properly write to see if the young man still has your letters. If he has, I am sure that he will be mannerly enough to grant your request. You may keep your letter on the formal side, as you naturally would, and still have it gracious and in good taste in its wording.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanished and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Go Russian in silhouette, if you like a smart coat. Attractive is a spring coat of light-blue tweed, cut just like a Russian tunic, with a full skirt. It is worn with a navy-blue belt and a navy hat.

The set idea is gaining ground, for many shops now sell hat, scarf and gloves to harmonize with the frock. Thus a cape-sleeved dress of black woolen has a tie-scarf of red and white dotted silk. It has, also long gauntlet gloves of the printed silk. The hat, of black straw, rests on a bandeau of the dotted silk.

STOCKS DOZE DURING BRIEF SESSION

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—The stock market closed peacefully during the greater part of today's brief session and prices generally were a little heavy at the close. It was one of the dullest sessions of the year. Rallies in wheat and other commodities failed as stimulants. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Wheat came back more than a cent a bushel upon further reports of damaging crop weather. Other cereals also worked higher, but with less vigor. Silver futures continued to improve and the bar metal was pushed up ⅜ of a cent an ounce to 43⅜ cents. Cotton was about even. Sterling got up a cent or so in terms of the dollar, but the gold exchanges were narrow. Bonds were quiet and somewhat mixed.

The indifference of traders in equities was exemplified by the fact that American Telephone did not open for nearly one hour and a half. Many other issues also failed to appear on the ticker tape until late. The majority of the leaders did not show any exceptional weakness, but various recently spurting specialties were subjected to profit taking pressure.

Metal issues were fairly resistant and most of the alcohols registered some improvements. The motors sagged, with Chrysler, Hudson, General, Nash and Auburn off fractionally to more than a point. U. S. and Bethlehem steels sagged, as did Santa Fe, New York Central and Union Pacific. Celanese, Industrial Rayon, Liquid Carbonic and American Banknote lost about one to two points. DuPont, Liggett & Myers and Goodyear yielded a point or more each. American Telephone eased, but Consolidated Gas and other power and light stocks were fairly steady.

Several operators were said to have withdrawn from their stock positions pending debate next week in Congress on the stock exchange control bill. Brokerage houses were inclined to be a little bearish under the circumstances and the public was still "on the outside looking in."

News of especial interest to equities was scarce and market observers were inclined to believe that little could be expected in the way of active trading until congressional matters are brought to a head.

Although the President's position on the silver situation was said to be unchanged, some faint hope was given the "silverites" by indications that the administration might ultimately consent to perhaps 30 per cent of the currency circulation being backed by the white metal. The Chief Executive was said to have reiterated his opposition to mandatory legislation and to have expressed his willingnes sto go along with agreements proposed by the London economic conference.

A slight pick-up was reported in the sales of department stores during the last part of April. Trade analysts estimated April business in New York would be between 3 and 5 per cent ahead of the same 1933 month. In other cities it was thought gains would be larger, running to 10 per cent or better. While actual volume of goods sold was understood to have been little better than a year ago, profit margins have been materially higher.

GRAIN VALUES JUMP BRISKLY

CHICAGO, April 28.—Brisk jumps of grain prices early today went hand in hand with lively general buying of wheat. A turn to higher temperatures was expected to intensify seriousness of the drought situation in domestic wheat territory.

Opening at ¼-⅛ cent gain, July 77-77¼, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ up and subsequently scored a general advance.

With fairly complete absence of rain reported in all directions, there was no selling pressure of any consequence in the wheat market much of the time and prices mounted rapidly 2 cents a bushel before profit taking sales acted as a curb. Factors that added to upward impetus of the market included reports from North Central Oklahoma, Eastern and Central Kansas and Southeast Nebraska, indicating decidedly more wheat damage from green bugs than has occurred in recent years.

Rural messages flooded in telling of widespread damaging effects on crop growth and delay to spring wheat over big areas of many states. Corn and oats prices borrowed strength from wheat action.

Provisions went upward with grains despite setbacks of hog values.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 25,796,000 bushels, corn 11,206,000. Open interest in wheat was 97,982,000 and in corn 77,271,000.

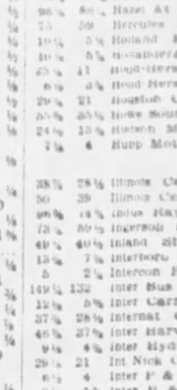
Rallies in Wheat and Cotton Cheer Street Although Prices Continue Narrow

The rally in wheat and firmer prices for silver were encouraging to the stock trading fraternity. Recent weakness in commodities, it has been felt, was beginning to exert moderate pressure on equities, and Wall street has been anxiously awaiting signs of resistance among the leading staples. Cotton has been acting in sympathy with the other commoditiess under pressure of heavy liquidation of speculative holdings. The question raised in many minds over the past fortnight was what effect commodity declines would have on general business, provided the breaks were not halted.



Rising freight traffic will, of course, help the railroads offset the added operating expenses incident to restoration of the 10 per cent wage cut. This week's figures, covering last week's loadings, provided a gain of larger than seasonal proportions. The trend of this important business barometer will be studied closely, but particularly by those interested in railroad securities.

A good first quarter statement by Tide Water Associated Oil Company failed to stir trading interest in the petroleum shares. Following one or two other oil company statements which also showed considerable improvement over 1933, the Tide Water figures made it appear that the industry has moved forward.

Commodity brokers say that crude rubber prices have behaved well in the face of the widely conflicting reports and predictions on the production restriction program. In marked contrast to other staples, rubber had held virtually all of the ground gained during the last few months and values are now close to the peak. Recent firmness has been attributed to reports that a "favorable" announcement on the crop curtailment scheme will be made from London tomorrow.

The Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation on March 15, retired $150,000 of its 5½ per cent sinking fund gold bonds. An official of the company stated today that orders are coming in at a rate that indicates much better quarter than the March quarter, and that individual days are the largest in point of business for several years.

W. B. Storey, of Chicago, former president of the line, Myron C. Taylor, of New York, and Joseph E. Otis, of Chicago, were re-elected members of the board of directors of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company at the annual stockholders' meeting. Samuel T. Bledsoe, who succeeded to the presidency upon the resignation of Storey less than a year ago, said agricultural and business conditions in the country generally and the Santa Fe territory particularly "are definitely better than they have been for some years."

NEW YORK, April 28.—The week's new bond offerings amounted to $15,680,000, compared with $9,816,000 last week and only $1,550,000 a year ago.

American Mutual Orders Dividend

BOSTON, April 28.—A dividend of 20 per cent, payable on all policies expiring in June, has been declared by the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company.

Tobacco Tax Collections Reflect Trade Gain

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Rapid increases in tax collections from tobacco products during the last few months were taken by Treasury officials to indicate substantial improvement in business conditions.

Tobacco taxes have been regarded by internal revenue experts as an accurate barometer of business and employment conditions—particularly retail sales.

Gains were shown not only over the last few months, but over last year. During the first three quarters of the 1934 fiscal year tobacco taxes amounted to $308,869,680, a gain of $25,697,380 over the previous year.

Cigaret taxes for the nine months accounted for most of the gain, totaling $252,119,000, an increase of $23,479,000 over the same period last year.

During March the cigaret production numbers 9,333,113,760, an increase of 1,359,000,000 pieces over March, 1933. Cigars numbered 354,164,000, a gain of 64,053,000, and manufactured tobacco, 27,652,000 pounds, a boost of 3,714,000 pounds.

The output of playing cards was 4,549,600 packs, an increase of 1,081,000 packs, another business indicator.

LOCAL MARKET IRREGULAR, QUIET

Prices drifted uncertainly in the short week-end session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Volume of business was light with scattered specialties appearing in the list at figures near their last closing prices and the usually active fuels and industrials continuing the lagging tendencies noted for the past several days. Only a few stocks in the list varied more than a point from the previous levels. A small block of Follansbee preferred sold at 22 as compared with the last previous sale at 23¾, and a small lot of Koppers came out at 82 as against 83¼, the price at which it last apeared, on Thursday.

On the "big board" the market continued hesitant with the list washing back and forth in a narrow range. Traders maintained their side lines position in the absence of any definite indication that the market wants to break out of the rut in which it has been working most of the week.

Department Store Sales Expanding

NEW YORK, April 28.—Sales of department stores during the last half of April improved slightly over the first half of the month with the result that in New York business for the month was probably from 3 to 5 per cent ahead of a year ago. In other cities gains were larger, running to 10 per cent or better.

Bank Reopenings Gain This Month

NEW YORK, April 28.—The American Banker reports the opening of 45 banks in the past week, as compared with 32 the week before. Total opening for the first four weeks of April were 196, the largest number for any month since March, 1933.

New York Telephone March Income Up

NEW YORK, April 28.—March gross revenue of New York Telephone Company, largest operating unit of the Bell system, was $15,807,986 against $15,148,170 a year ago. Net operating income of $3,502,695 compares with $2,531,279.

Canada Carloadings Show Gain for Week

MONTREAL, April 28.—Canadian car loadings during the week ended April 21 totaled 44,505 cars, an increase of 2,927 cars over the week previous and 10,349 over the like 1933 week.

STEEL OUTPUT CONTINUES UPWARD

By B. E. V. LUTY

Production of steel ingots is at the highest rate since June, 1930, except for five weeks in the phenomenal and brief bulge last summer. Output in the week now ending may be estimated at 56 per cent of capacity, against 53 per cent last week.

The rate represents 38,000,000 tons a year, nearly triple actual production in the low year, 1932, 70 per cent of that in the high year, 1929, and 83 per cent of the average in the very active period of seven years through 1929.

Considering the slackness in a number of consuming lines, the current rate of steel production seems a high one. There will be much stocking of steel through June 30, to take advantage of contracts made before the numerous price advances that have gone into effect within the last fortnight, but thus far producers do not see that any material part of present production is going in that direction. Doubtless, however, there is some replenishment of stocks, hitherto at inconveniently low levels. This does not mar the production picture, because steel sellers have long contended that stocks were altogether too low and that when confidence returned replenishment would be a factor in production for months.

Producers do not desire customers to stock up to take advantage of expiring prices, as they would prefer to make more steel in July and August, at the advanced prices, while average costs would be lower with a steady operation. If customers are going to stock, however, sellers urge them to specify early so as to avoid a June rush, when it might not be possible to supply all the steel specified, and tonnages unshipped on June 30 must be canceled according to the code rule.

SHORTAGE POSSIBLE

The fact that steel ingots are being produced at only 56 per cent of total ingot capacity has no bearing on the contention as to possible shortage in June. There is no thought that ingot production will rise many points above the present rate. It is a matter of finishing capacity. In the first place, rolling capacity has always been 20 to 25 per cent in excess of producing capacity, and the excess may now be as great as 30 per cent, this being natural and proper because demand is never uniformly distributed. In the second place, special steels have gotten into so much greater vogue that capacity to finish some classes, after the hot rolling, may be strained. Furthermore, the stocking would be confined to certain products. Plates, shapes, rails and tin plate will not be stocked.

The last important advances in market prices of steel products went into effect this week, $6 to $7 a net ton on standard pipe and related products, $2 on manufacturing wire, $3 on plain wire, barb wire and fence, and $5 on nails. Some of the filing dates are later, but the trade regards the markets themselves as up.

PRICES NEAR '29 LEVEL

The present advance in steel products according to a weighted average excluding rails is about $4 a net ton, making about $10 a ton from the low points in the forepart of last year. Prices are close to the 1929 level, but 1929 was $2 a ton under the muchmentioned 1926.

Mills will derive scarcely any advantage from the advanced prices until after June 30, and then there will be the disadvantage of light demand in some lines on account of stocks.

Production of railroad steel continues to increase, but at a moderate pace as there has been long delay in the placing of some expected tonnage. Mills have fully 400,000 tons of rails to roll in the next four months, but there were seven post-war years in which annual production exceeded 2,500,000 tons.

The automobile industry is taking more steel than 30 days ago and is producing at a rate of fully 400,000 cars and trucks, United States and Canada, a month. It does not yet have an opportunity to stock, but is expected to do much stocking by June 30, to complete runs on 1934 models. Little or no steel could be stocked for new models.

Heavy melting steel scrap has sagged 50 cents, being now quotable at $13.50 to $14. Scrap accumulated in the cold weather and has since been coming out briskly, while consumers have been holding off.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on April 23, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 777.

AN ORDINANCE widening Saw Mill Run boulevard, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 61.0 feet north of Midwood avenue to Midwood avenue and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Saw Mill Run boulevard, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 61.0 feet north of Midwood avenue to Midwood avenue, be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes the following described property, to-wit:

Beginning on the westerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard, as widened by Ordinance No. 91, approved April 16, 1934, at the intersection of the dividing line between lots No. 44 and No. 45 in the Arthur Lyman's Plan of "Oakleigh" of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Vol. 24, pages 148 and 149, said place of beginning being 61.0 feet northwardly along the westerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard as widened by the above mentioned ordinance from the northerly line of Midwood avenue; thence extending along the said westerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard south 5 degrees 37 minutes east 61. feet to the northerly line of Midwood avenue; thence along the northerly line of Midwood avenue south 51 degrees 29 minutes west 58.09 feet to the dividing line between lots No. 42 and 43 in the above mentioned Arthur Lyman's Plan of "Oakleigh;" thence along the dividing line between lots No. 42 to 30, inclusive, and lots No. 43 and 44 in the said plant north 5 degrees 37 minutes west 82.91 feet to the dividing line between lots No. 44 and No. 45 in the said plan; thence along the dividing line between lots No. 44 and No. 45 in the said plan and coinciding with the westerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard, as widened by the above mentioned ordinance north 86 degrees 33 minutes east 32.0 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Saw Mill Run boulevard, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 61.0 feet north of Midwood avenue to Midwood avenue to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on April 23, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

NO. 107.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting permission to Reserve Township to connect a sanitary sewer on Spring Garden avenue, at the existing 15-inch city sewer on Spring Garden avenue, at or near the City-Reserve Township line, subject to payment of the sum of One Hundred Twenty ($120.00) Dollars to the City Treasurer and to reservations by the City of certain rights.

WHEREAS, Reserve Township desires to connect a sanitary sewer to the existing city sewer on Spring Garden Avenue, at or near the city line; and,

WHEREAS, said existing city sewer on Spring Garden avenue has sufficient capacity to carry additional sanitary drainage without being surcharged; and,

WHEREAS, said Township has requested by letter from C. F. B. Lauer, Township Secretary, Reserve Township Board of Commissioners, under date of March 16, 1934, to the Director of the Department of Public Works to connect a lateral sewer on Spring Garden avenue in Reserve Township to the city sewer on Spring Garden avenue in the City of Pittsburgh, at or near the City-Township line, and further has expressed their willingness to pay to the City the sum of One Hundred Twenty ($120.00) Dollars for said connection, which amount is estimated to be reasonable by the Department of Public Works. Now, therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That permission is hereby granted to Reserve Township to connect a sanitary sewer on Spring Garden avenue, Reserve Township, to a public sewer on Spring Garden avenue, City of Pittsburgh, at or near the City-Township line, subject to payment to the City Treasurer of the sum of One Hundred Twenty ($120.00) Dollars, prior to the issuance of a permit to construct said lateral connection, and further subject to the City reserving the right to disconnect said lateral connection if, at any time, the sewer is used for the drainage of storm water from the street surface.

SECTION 2. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council April 23, 1934.

NO. 108.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the construction of a public sewer on Felix way, from a point near the southwesterly terminus of Felix way to the existing sewer on College avenue, including as may be necessary, the excavation of exploratory test holes and providing for the letting of a contract or contracts therefor and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against the collected from property specially benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That a public sewer be constructed on Felix way, from a point near the southwesterly terminus of Felix way to the existing sewer on College avenue, including as may be necessary, the excavation of exploratory test holes.

Commencing on Felix way at a point near the southwesterly terminus; thence northeastwardly along Felix way to the existing sewer on College avenue. Said sewer to be terra cotta pipe and 15 inches in diameter.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the construction of a public sewer as provided in Section 1 of this Ordinance; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices not to exceed the total sum of Twenty-five Hundred ($2500.00) Dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The cost, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council April 23, 1934.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LV.

When Pippin returned about 1 o'clock that Saturday night, David emerged from his study.

"Are you still working?"

"Yes. Make a sandwich, will you?"

"Can you wait till I change my dress?"

With a little uplifting joy Pippin went into her room, put the orchids in a bowl and got into one of the gay, gaudy kimonos Bill brought.

She went to the door of her father's study and saw with shock he was alone.

She said with her voice flat, "What kind of a sandwich do you want? Would you like something to drink? Is Kevin gone?"

"Yes—we finished with the paper around 11. Kevin left then. He has to go to Los Gatos tomorrow morning—to the Carew's, you know."

"Oh!" said Pippin. "Well—I'll forage around and see what delicacies I can find."

Pippin made the sandwiches with great dispatch. She moved quickly to keep pace with the deep, gnawing ache in her mind. Spending Sunday with Jane Carew again! She was ready to weep because the light, tender movement when his lips whispered against her ear had meant so much.

That week she was very sweet to Gregg and she did not fight against the attraction Bill had for her. Every evening she went with him in the plane. Once he let her handle the wheel alone. When her eyes, beautiful with excitement, looked into his, he shouted "Like it? What did I tell you? You'll be good at it! You'll be great!"

On Thursday they sailed north, then eastward till they were over the valley and the rough, hulking mountains in the background of Livermore.

"Look out, Bill—all living color!"

He nodded. His face had a set, anxious look and he didn't take his eyes from the gauge.

"Engine's a bit hot. Don't worry!"

"I'll find a place to land. Oil feed line is broken."

Now they were above a wide, barren field, wedged between the dark, gloomy hills. As they descended, the ground showed newly plowed.

"That looks like an old wagon road."

They came nearer. "Yes—an old road. I can make that!"

He came down slowly, gingerly, landing with a succession of jerks and bumps on the rough ground. He sat very quiet; then took out his handkerchief and wiped his face.

"Were you very frightened, Pippin?"

"No, I think I was sure you could handle it."

They climbed out of the plane into an utter unmurmuring, echoless silence. The field stretched seeming miles to the right of the road. On the left the hills rolled upwards, tier after tier, till they shut away the sky. Not a house; nowhere the sign of human habitation.

Bill tinkered with the plane as the twilight paled rapidly to dusk.

Oil Supply Low

But too much oil is lost. We can't fly back tonight. I think we better leave it — find some farm house before it gets too dark." He looked down into her white face: "Say something, Pippin—are you angry or what? It's really not my fault."

"I'm not angry at all. I'd like it, Bill. It's so all forgotten here. There's not a house in a thousand miles. I don't mind except for the fuss and all the explaining if we don't arrive till morning."

"I'll get you back before that. I saw some houses. I think I can find them. The field is newly plowed. Some one must live within a few miles. You don't want to stay here alone while I look?"

"You might never find me again."

"Isn't that a house or a barn off there? Hurry!"

It was a cabin — falling to pieces — one whole wall out—a bunch of straw in the corner . . ."

Bill took his flashlight, put his arm around Pippin and said encouragingly: "I really saw houses from the air, Pippin. They're around here somewhere."

The darkness grew into a thick, black wall that closed them in and except for the flicker along the road they might have been in the deep center of the earth. The road was filled with ruts, with great boulders and the snags of dead trees. Pippin kept stumbling.

But they went on. A twig snapped under her feet, then a little mound of pebbles scattered. The sharp sound cut a path of terror to her already overcharged mind.

Abruptly they came to a cliff, the road ended.

CHAPTER LVI.

Pippin stepped back from the precipice, her hand trembling in Bill's.

"We might have fallen down that!"

"It's soft earth, not so steep."

She leaned against him, shaken and unwilling to go on.

"Let's sit down for a while. I'm tired. It's dangerous going through this abysmal dark. Perhaps a moon may come up later."

Her teeth chattered as she sank down on the soft, loose earth of the embankment, glad for the comfort of Bill's shoulder and his arm about her.

She said with a faint, nervous laugh: "I can't even see your face. Just a white blur. It shines a little. Isn't the dark frightening?"

Bill took the flashlight and held it between them. "Now do you feel better? Your eyes look enormous. I can feel your heart thumping."

He put the coat around her shoulders and pulled her close to him.

"You can rest for half an hour, Pippin. At 9 o'clock we start out again. By 9:15 I'll have you in a nice cosy farm house, eating ham and eggs. Won't that be savory?"

"You don't really think you're going to find a house tonight, Bill. It's a trackless wilderness. There are no houses anywhere."

"There only needs to be one. There has got to be one house somewhere near."

"Why do you say 'got to be?' I've ceased to care. My mother doesn't know of this. She's not worrying. I'm not going to break my neck falling down a cliff for anyone else. Just because people may wonder and doubt why I stayed out all night. I'm going to settle down and be comfortable. There's not a chance in the world of getting home tonight."

Bill's High Ideals

She felt that he looked at her sharply: "Tomorrow and the next day, Pippin, you won't feel so bold; you'll be bitter toward me. You'll think that, somehow or other, I should have mastered the situation, and I should. It's always a man's fault when a girl gets into a jam."

"Do you mean that girls are such poor sports they always say that?"

"No, it's what I believe. There's always a way to get out of a thing. It will really be my fault if there isn't a house within a reasonable distance."

Pippin gave a quick, bubbling laugh.

"I'd like to stay here with you in my arms just like this all night long, Pippin, but I wish a moon would come so I could see your hair and look in your eyes. I've hardly seen you at all and I'm here two weeks and have less than two weeks more."

"You've seen me almost every day, Bill."

"This is the first time, Pippin, that you've really seemed near to me. You like me a little, tonight, don't you?"

"I always like you, Bill.

"Love me a little, Pippi

"I'm not sure what lo but I'm happy when I'm
you. I think you're quite
ing. I'm happy now."

"That's the highest com ment one person can giv another, to be happy with them, to be carefree with them."

He pushed back her helmet and ran his hand across her hair. "More than anything else, Pippin, I want the girl I love to be happy with me—want her to be glad I'm around."

Discuss Marriage

He slumped down until his cheek touched hers: "Why don't you want to get married, Pippin?"

"I don't know. Just the complete change—your whole life altered. Never to belong freely and entirely to yourself again. Marriage weaves your life so intimately, so binding into another life. I suppose it's grand. It must be, since it's so popular, but I don't want it today or tomorrow."

"If you loved a person you would want it, Pippin. You'd want your life, as you say, woven into another life. No matter how clearly you saw the chains, even though they were going to hurt you, you'd want them anyway."

"Oh, no! Not unless you lose all sanity, Bill, suppose you fall in love with a girl who doesn't like flying?"

"I'm not loving that kind of a girl."

"You might find out her prejudices too late. That makes most of the trouble. You marry a girl who will leave her hair in the comb and the top off the toothpaste. Life can be made miserable for trifles like that."

"I don't mind about the hair in the comb or the tooth paste. She can have her own, Pippin, don't you like to fly?"

"I love it."

Bill gave a deep chuckling laugh: "See!" Then he sighed and said, reluctantly: "We'll have to go on, now."

"It can't be half an hour, yet. It's getting blacker, Bill, and more still. There's not even a cricket chirping.

"Which direction will you take this time, Bill?"

"Climb this hill and see if there's a light anywhere."

"It's so cozy sitting here."

"If it were only Mars! Pippin, would you be very despondent if you found yourself on a desert island and only me for company for a long, long time?"

"I wouldn't mind it, perhaps, at all!"

He held her tight in his arms and kissed her and said with a soft laugh: "Then you love me, Pippin. You must!"

BATTLE OF SADOVA—THE END OF AUSTRIAN DOMINATION OVER GERMAN CONFEDERACY

COMMISSION RULES ON DOUBTED ELECTION RETURNS—HAYES DECLARED PRESIDENT

The election campaign of 1876 was more momentous than any before, causing acts of violence. Republicans nominated Rutherford B. Hayes and William A. Wheeler; Democrats, Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendrick, for President and Vice President respectively. Returns showed 184 votes for Tilden, 172 for Hayes, not including those of Fla., La., S. C. and Ore. Each party charging fraud, recount of these was ordered, in presence of "visiting" statesmen from the North. Recounts differing, all were sent to U. S. Senate to be ruled upon by a newly created Electoral Commission (15 members, from House, Senate, Supreme Court; 8 proved to be Republicans, 7 Democrats). Above: Thomas W. Ferry, acting president of the Senate, announcing the decision of the commission in favor of Hayes and Wheeler. (U. S. History)

HEATING HOME—FIRE PLACE

Our bodies generate heat by burning food, part of which should be given off by radiation and conduction. Proper balance is obtained at about 68°-72° F. If temp. of room falls below 60° F., the house has to be heated individually by room or centrally from a heating plant. Oldest form of heating system used today is the fireplace. It is an open recess in the wall, at base of chimney, giving heat mostly by radiation. It is artistic and cheerful in effect, but least economical, since about 90% of the heat escapes through the chimney. Today, fireplaces are built chiefly for decorative purposes. The fuel may be wood, coal, gas. (Gen Science)

PLASMA—CLOTTING OF BLOOD

Plasma is the fluid of blood (contents above). It has an amber color.

If blood is shed, it clots in about 5 minutes to a jelly—like mass (above left); later clot shrinks, separates from the fluid "serum." Clotting is hastened by injury to blood vessels, contact with rough surface, temp. of above 116° F., venom of certain snakes. Clotting is retarded by contact with smooth lining of blood vessels, addition of citrates, oxalates, bile, organic ferments, certain snake venoms, deficiency of calcium, blood platelets, fibrinogen.

Persons whose blood does not clot sufficiently (hemophiliac) may bleed to death from a minor injury. (Gen. Science)

THE SCARLET LETTER

In this masterwork (publ. 1850) of the greatest American romancer, Nathaniel Hawthorne (1804-1864), the characters rise with tragic power from the somber background of the life of early New England settlers.

The aged and learned husband—held two years captive by Indians—finds his wife, Hester Prynne, with a baby in her arms in the Boston pillory. She was sentenced by the Puritan authorities of the 17th century also to wear the red letter "A," stamping her for life.

She lives with her child, Pearl, as object of contempt, but, devoting herself to works of mercy, wins respect.

The husband, after long search, traces the father of Pearl, the Rev. Arthur Dimmesdalle, who driven almost crazy by years of mental torture, makes public confession on the pillory and dies in Hester's arms. (American Literature)

The German states had been molded into a loose confederacy at the Congress of Vienna (1814-1815) with no other central power except the Diet at Frankfurt (annual or special) presided over by Austrian emperor. It was the great achievement of the Prussian Otto von Bismarck (1815-1898), the "Iron Chancellor," to weld the German states into an empire. First he acquired Schleswig-Holstein (1864) with the help of Austria; then he denied Austria her share and, in the ensuing war (1866), defeated her. The decisive battle was fought at Sadova. Above painting shows Prussian King William I embracing his son, Crown Prince Frederick William, after the battle.

Austria had to give up all interest in the German Confederacy, giving Prussia free hand (Treaty of Prague); she also lost Venetia to Italy, allied with Prussia.

Under the presidency of Prussia, a closer confederacy of 21 German states was formed; the remaining four southern independent sovereignties became secret allies against France, with which Bismarck foresaw a conflict(World Hist

PRODUCTION OF PIG IRON IN BLAST FURNACE

Pig iron is produced in the blast furnace from oxide ores reduced by carbon monoxide. Impurities, fused with the flux (limestone or sand) to slag, are removed through the cinder notch; the molten iron is led out at the metal tap.

Diagram above shows the characteristic process, reactions, raw materials, temperatures, products, in different sections of a blast furnace in making 1 long ton (2,240 lbs.) pig iron. This contains on an average 92% Fe, 3.6 % C, 0.9% Si, 0.8% Mn, 0.18% P, 0.03%S. Composition of pig iron varies greatly, depending on raw materials and furnace conditions. (Chemistry) 66-III-A

Repossession Nine Points of the Law

Legislators think of funny things while waiting for a friend to pick up the lunch check.

There's an Assemblyman in our town who stepped out of line like a runaway caboose on a hairpin turn.

He's got an idea that nobody should drive a used car that ain't got a trade-in value of $200. Unless the driver can show a written guarantee certifying the agile wreck is in the pink of condition.

Why, that fellow is going to take all the joy out of skids, the song out of brakebands and the romance out of repairs.

He's attacking the very keystone of holiday touring. He is undermining the transmission and rattling the clutch discs.

Why should anybody tell an inspector the purchase price of his car? All of it ain't debt. Some of it is in notes.

Should you tell me what your sparkling limousine went for at the last auction? All the skeletons aren't in closets. Some of them are in garages.

We know there is more real enjoyment shaken up in a $60 detour bus than there is in an imported car that cost $20,000. Nobody ever judges the bottle by the label. Good merchandise arrives in small packages. And when you see a man pushing his model Z up a hill you know he has the will to win.

What difference does it make if your radiator cap is steaming like clams at a barbecue and your knee action is baggy, provided that the old mixer unravels its concrete at 15 miles per hour? It takes you there and brings you home again and rattles up to a toll bridge as sassy as a bulldog on a canal boat.

Whether it cost 200 or two million means nothing, there is no taximeter on the sun and no gas meter on the fresh air, the sunshine and the flowers. The birds chirp just as loud for you as they do for the big cars.

In fact, the birds whistle and chirp the loudest for you. The big cars slide greasily by. But when you come along the birds recognize competition.

Sunday Baseball at Last

Now for Sunday Movies! Brief Comment on Local News.

Pittsburgh's first major Sunday baseball game is scheduled to be played tomorrow by the Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds. If the weather is not unfavorable there probably will be a large crowd in attendance. A little group of old fogies and narrow-minded sectarians are bitterly opposed to Sunday baseball, but the great majority of the public have no misgivings whatever as to the effect that this innovation will have on the peace and dignity of the commonwealth.

Sunday baseball should have a wholesome effect. It should bring out into the open young men who, for want of other recreation, have been accustomed to spend Sunday afternoon in clubs and speakeasies, drinking, gambling and amusing themselves in other undesirable ways. It should induce traveling salesmen, who have given the city a wide berth because of the lack of Sunday entertainment, to spend the week-end here.

Sunday movies should be the next objective in the campaign to free the state from stupid and antiquated restrictions on the joy of living. There are many people who do not care for baseball, but who like movies. Why should they be deprived of entertainment? Movies are no more harmful on Sunday than on week days, and every argument that holds for Sunday baseball applies with equal force to Sunday movies.

Further modification of the Blue Law is a good subject on which to elicit the views of the candidates for the Legislature. Let every person who asks to be elected to the General Assembly state unequivocally how he will vote on a bill authorizing Sunday movies. This is desirable that the people may not mistakenly send to Harrisburg representatives who will fail to support the majority sentiment of the community on the Sunday question.

As antiquated and unfit for present-day conditions as the Blue Laws, are the constitutional and statutory provisions under which our counties, townships and school districts are maintained. The system of overlapping layers of local government is a heritage from oxcart days and should be thoroughly revised. With revision it will be possible to dispense with the services of many political parasites whose offices and salaries add so heavily to the tax burden.

Elimination of oxcart government is another im- portant issue of the campaign on which the candidates should be required to declare themselves. Not only candidates for the Legislature but also the gubernatorial aspirants owe it to the people to tell what their attitude will be on proposals to revise the constitution so as to permit the consolidation of counties, the consolidation of school districts, and the consolidation or abolition of second class townships.

The primary election will be held two weeks from next Tuesday; but the voters are still more or less in ignorance as to what the various candidates stand for. It is time that they presented their platforms and gave some reasons for voting for them other than that they want the jobs. There is no telling what kind of government we will have if the people have to vote blindly.

Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, submitted some good reasons for consolidation of school districts in his address at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the state's system of free public schools. He showed that with school taxes collected independently in each of Pennsylvania's more than 2,600 school districts the cost of the collection is excessive.

Dr. Rule's statement that many public schools in Pennsylvania will have to close their doors next autumn unless federal aid is forthcoming is disturbing, and should provide strong incentive for insisting that the Legislature modify the school system so that a greater part of the school tax dollar shall go to education, instead of to the unnecessary administrative expenses occasioned by the needless multiplicity of school districts and school officials.

Opponents of modernization of the public school system and other branches of local government make the false assertion that the proposal to eliminate oxcart methods is an attack on home rule. Those who raise this cry are mostly officeholders who might lose their jobs if we should do away with some of the administrative units. It is reassuring to find the public apathetic to the specious "home rule" plea.

Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, in opening his campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor, said "home rule" was the big issue of the campaign. He was for "home rule," he said. We do not know just what he meant by that; but if he meant that he was opposed to consolidations of small counties, townships and school districts, it is evident that his stand did not arouse much enthusiasm, for he has withdrawn from the race.

It was hoped to make good the deficiency in school revenues from taxation with profits from the state liquor stores. But the liquor profits are falling far short of what was expected. New York has a similar situation. In asking the Legislature to provide revenues sufficient to balance the budget Gov. Lehman pointed out a few days ago that legalized liquor was returning New York State only half the yield that had been estimated.

A New York committee which has been studying the liquor situation reports that the heavy taxes imposed on the legal traffic have had the effect of perpetuating bootlegging—to such an extent that "40 per cent of the liquor being sold today is sold by the bootleggers." The committee recommends that the taxes and license fees shall be reduced to a level at which the incentive for the illegal liquor business shall cease to exist. That is something for Pennsylvania Legislators to ponder, too.

Semiramis was a beautiful Babylonian queen who twice suppressed rebellions by appearing before the rebels in her birthday suit. She was so entrancing that they thought her a goddess and worshipped her. A picture of Semiramis in full color appears in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the big magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Maggie gave Jiggs a beautiful suit of pajamas, but the effect was bad. The story will be found amusingly pictured by George McManus in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. There are many other comics by the foremost cartoonists in Puck.

Unleashed!

And it is urged to bite
The unprotected people who
Are in a panic flight.

With such a menace running loose,
Unmuzzled through the land;
No wonder nervousness and fear
Prevail on every hand.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 28.—The palaver turned to coincidence. And I related this. During the Chicago World's Fair my father registered at the Great Northern from his home town, Plattsburgh, Mo. He noticed immediately above his signature that of "E. C. Hall, Plattsburgh," a gentleman my father knew.

In his room, he phoned to Mr. Hall. A voice he did not recognize said he was Mr. Hall. Father explained who he was and exchanged salutations of the day. The Mr. Hall was courteous but vague. He did not recall knowing an H. B. McIntyre. "You are E. C. Hall, the lawyer from Plattsburgh?" my father inquired.

The response was affirmative. My father explained again who he was. Still there was indecision so my father inquired: "Let me get this right, you are E. C. Hall, the lawyer from Plattsburgh in Clinton County?" The gentleman replied he was and would come to my father's room.

They met and were perfect strangers. The comedy of errors had resulted from the fact that not once had the state of Missouri been mentioned. The bewildered gentleman was E. C. Hall, a lawyer from Plattsburgh, which is in Clinton County, New York. A further coincidence, as I recall, was that both had been mayors of their cities.

At the Gerdes in Cincinnati, a rendezvous for visiting ball teams and vaudeville folk, there was a blundering, good-humored busboy the crowd at our newspaper table called, somewhat cruelly, "Stewp," a shortening of Stupid. Despite giggles at his comicalities of syntax, he never forgot to be courteous, won a place in our affections and, as bus-boys do, passed out of our ken. In Cologne, 20 years later, I arrived by motor one night at the Dome Hotel. It seemed to my wife and me we were attended with unusual graciousness all the next day and until the next noon. The manager in a cutaway escorted us to the car on departing, presenting a beautiful bouquet. To freshen the flowers later we stopped at a roadside inn for water. My wife noticed then a card attached. It read: "A joyous journey is the wish of Mr. McIntyre's old American friend—Stewp."

Arnold Bennett, during a seasonal stay at Barbizon, used to do much bicycling in the cool glades of Fontainbleau. One warm afternoon after a long spin he dismounted and stretched out in a green arcadia to relax and watch clouds laze by. In vernal reverie he recalled one Hodgkins, an English friend he had not seen since youth, and made a mental notation to look him up when he returned to London. Refreshed by a brief nap, he carried his bicycle to the road and was about to pedal off when he decided to slake his thirst at one of those cupless drinking fountains nearby. A man ahead, bowing over to lip the gush of water, raised up. It was Hodgkins.

One night, rather late, Joe Moore and Lee Olwell dropped in at my apartment with John Neylan, San Francisco attorney. We discussed newspaper topics, a subject in which all were interested, until quite late. In the hall, Neylan plunged what he thought was the elevator button. It rang the apartment of neighbors across the hall I did not at the time know. "You are on your own," I exclaimed to Neylan. "I do not know those people. Make the apologies." Unable to arouse her servants, the mistress of the establishment finally came to the door. Neylan started to fumble an apology, both of their faces lit up, and they went into a dance. She was Mrs. E. L. Heebener, a San Francisco lady Neylan had known since childhood.

Flo Ziegfeld greatly admired the artisty of the ballroom dancer, Florence Walton, when she was in ascendancy. In his office with him one day he expressed himself about her. His then manager, Frank Hope, came in and Ziegfeld inquired if Hope knew where she was these days. While Hope was riffling through a vest pocket memorandum book, Ziegfeld's private secretary, Miss Dix, stepped in to announce: "Miss Florence Walton is outside to see you." She got in from Europe that morning.

I reserve for a finale the spookiest of all coincidences I have observed. There was in Dayton, O., a bar known as Kiefaber's among whose patrons was a lovable telegraph operator known to all Middle West newspaper shops as Charles Melrose. We were lined up one afternon lifting a shog to vile care, but in mid-air Melrose put his glass down. "I must go home quickly," he said and rushed out leaving his overcoat. It's been long ago and exact details are vague. But at the exact moment Melrose reached home a doctor had turned from either Melrose's mother or sister, bowed resignedly and pulled a sheet over the pillows.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

The manner in which many women play cards, when there are prizes at stake, indicates that they are not interested in the social intercourse provided, but that they merely desire to win the honors.

Every card contest is a serious undertaking—a regular job.

According to their ideas there should be nothing of a social nature permitted during the playing of a hand.

One of the reasons why so many card parties are failures is that too many of those present have only prize winning in their minds.

And if the prizes are not something of real value the hostess is given little credit for her hospitality.

When all the players are speechless, with set jaws and wrinkled brows, the result of this concentration does not provide a pleasing scene.

A hostess is certainly not repaid for her trouble and expense entertaining, if her guests seem more anxious for to win prizes than to enjoy her hospitality.

A good card game must be played attentively, but beyond this point, as a social gathering, the card party is not a success.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Who Said Males God's Grandest Gift to Gals?

Feeling bored and blotto? Sunk miles deep in the old Spring Blues? Then here's something for what ails you—a laugh that's worth a ton of tonic. And all in a letter which you've vowed, a hundred times, to write yourself:

Dear Elsie Robinson:

For the luvva Pete, won't you or someone write an article on Modern Magazine Ads? You know the kind I mean.

THERE'S ALWAYS A PICTURE OF A BEAUTEOUS BUT BLIGHTED DAME, DABBING AT HER EYES AND MOANING, "WHY, OH, WHY DOESN'T ARCHIE COME TO SEE ME ANY MORE?"

Whereupon, her chum leans over her right shoulder and swifties back, "I HATE TO TELL YOU, DEARIE, BUT IT'S SOMETHING EVERY YOUNG GIRL SHOULD KNOW! YOU HAVE . . .! BUT IF YOU'LL JUST USE . . . YOUR BOY FRIEND WILL COME BACK. MINE DID!"

So, regardless of what ails her, whether she's got fallen arches, hang nails, granulated eyelids, double chins, gumboils or rough elbows, the Big Boys behind the ads dish out the same, solemn and supposedly invincible warning—"USE SUCH-N'-SUCH OR Y-O-U-'L-L L-O-S-E Y-O-U-R M-A-N!!!!

BUT DO YOU EVER SEE ANY PICTURES TELLING MEN HOW TO HOLD THEIR WIVES OR SWEETHEARTS? NO, YOU DON'T!

Now, Elsie, I'm a modern girl and all this gets my goat. I don't mean the medical advice. I'll readily admit girls May Have Things Wrong With Them and Should Do Something About It. BUT WHERE DO THE ADVERTISERS GET THIS IDEA THAT THE ONE DESIRE IN A WOMAN'S LIFE IS EITHER TO GET OR TO HOLD HER MAN?

The good Lord knows I've nothing against men. I married one and he's GRAND. But I do have a few other interests in life—and so do other women.

THEN WHY DO ALL THE ADS AND SHORT STORIES AND SOB COLUMNS (with the exception of yours, Big Girl!) GIVE THE IMPRESSION THAT A FEMALE WANTS BUT ONE THING OUT OF LIFE AND THAT'S A MALE—AND THAT SHE OUGHT TO GO TO ANY LENGTH TO GET HIM?

WHO STARTED THE THEORY THAT A MAN DOES A MAID A GOSHAWFUL BIG FAVOR WHEN HE GIVES HER A LIFETIME JOB WASHING HIS SOCKS, COOKING HIS CHOW, SCRUBBING HIS FLOORS, RAISING HIS KIDS?

Not, I repeat, that I personally have anything against the job. But the simple truth is—IT'S USUALLY THE GIRL WHO DOES THE MAN A BIG FAVOR BY ACCEPTING HIM. For the average girl can have a lot more fun, freedom and fine clothes when she's supporting herself than she'll ever get with a man.

AND IT'S THE MEN WHO SHOULD WORRY ABOUT LOSING THEIR WOMEN, NOT THE WOMEN ABOUT LOSING THEIR MEN! But would you ever suspect that by reading the ads? I'll say you wouldn't!

HOW ABOUT SHOWING A FEW BIG MALES BLUBBERING WITH TERROR OVER THEIR INGROWING HAIRS AND DANDRUFF, and WONDERING WHY FLOSSIES DON'T PHONE THEM ANY MORE?

As a consequence of all this idiotic advertising, men have gotten the conceited notion that they are God's Grandest Gift to Gals. A woman is supposed to be radiantly beautiful and well-groomed before she dares look at man; but no matter how unattractive a man is, HE THINKS HE'S A TREAT FOR THE PRETTIEST GIRL.

What does he care if his nose is shiny and his ears stick out? FOR YEARS THE AD. AND SHORT STORY WRITERS HAVE BEN TELLING HIM HOW PERFECTLY PRECIOUS HE IS, AND WHAT A PRIZE HE IS FOR ANY LADY!

So, Elsie, won't YOU ask the advertisers how they get that way? MARY LOU.

I don't need to ask 'em, Mary Lou—I KNOW ALREADY!

"Where do the advertisers get the big idea that the one desire in a woman's life is either to get or hold her man? Who started the notion that Males are God's Grandest Gift to Gals?"

With sobs, snarls, roars, yelps, whines, wheezes and hand-wringings of rage, anguish and shame, I am forced to give you the answer, sister—WE GIRLS GAVE THEM THAT BIG IDEA! WE GIRLS STARTED THAT NOTION!

How do I feel about those ads? I feel just as you do. They boil me up! I see red, foam at the mouth and bleed at the ears! But it isn't because I think the advertisers lie. It's because I know they DON'T!

I've belonged to, lived with and written for our female sex for nigh onta 51 years, lady. I started in when we rated mighty low as domestic chattels, and I saw the bright dawn of our so-called emancipation. Whereupon, I fondly believed that the Average Female was going to bust her shackles and fill her life chuck full of improving interests and diverting amusements which had nothing to do with Mere Males. But did she?

NO, MARY LOU, SHE DID NOT!

AND YOU AND I ARE JUST WASTING OUR TIME, OLD GIRL, IF WE EXPECT HER TO!

The big idea in the Average Female's life today is exactly what it was a hundred, a thousand, and a hundred thousand years ago—it is MAN. Her one big objective is Getting That Man. Her one big fear is of Losing Him.

It is true she has Rights, a Vote and a Job. But the last thing the Average Woman really wants is to hold on to that job. What she's after is exactly what all her grandmas were after—SOMEBODY TO PROVIDE THE THREE SQUARES WHILE SHE BEEFS ABOUT 'EM.

So don't complain to me about those ads, Mary Lou. If possible, they make me madder than they do you. But we can't change them by beefing at the advertisers. WE'LL HAVE TO GET BUSY ON OUR OWN SEX, SISTER!

Congress Remiss in Duty To Expose Scandals

By James T. Williams, Jr.

(The informing function of Congress should be preferred even to its legislative function.)—Woodrow Wilson.

WHEN Woodrow Wilson was a young man, just out of college, he wrote a book on "Congressional Government," modestly describing it as "a study in American politics." It is all of that and more. It is a stimulating discussion of the American system of government.

Although this volume first appeared in 1885, many of its pages might well have been written about the present Congress, so little has the legislative branch of the federal government changed its sins of omission and commission in the last 50 years.

It was Mr. Wilson's theory that Congress might, with advantages to the country, devote more time to investigation and less to legislative work. Of course, by investigation he did not mean the abuse of its investigating power by either house to publicize the chairman or members of an investigating committee.

Wilson's Conception Of Congress

MR. WILSON looked upon Congress as a truly representative body, meant to be the eyes and the voice and to embody the wisdom and will of its constituents. Half a century ago he wrote:

"Unless Congress have and use every means of acquainting itself with the acts and the dispositions of the administrative agents of the government, the country must be helpless to learn how it is being served; and unless Congress both scrutinize these things and sift them by every form of discussion, the country must remain in embarrassing, crippling ignorance of the very affairs which it is most important that it should understand and direct."

The country has remained too long "in embarrassing, crippling ignorance of many vital public problems because recent Congresses have refused to prefer the informing function to their legislative function.

A flagrant example of the evils that follow in the wake of acting first and investigating afterwards is to be found in the wrecking of the federal air mail by the cancellation, without a hearing, of all domestic air mail contracts last February. This fatuous and indefensible blunder was instigated by a so-called Senate investigation which never rose to the dignity of an impartial and thorough committee inquiry.

The cancellation of these contracts appears to have been instigated by several senators who made allegations of "fraud and collusion" which have yet to be proven either in or out of Congress.

Now the instigators of this blunder are asking Congress to base legislation, not upon facts developed by the kind of Congressional investigation which Woodrow Wilson commended, but upon unproven allegations made in the midst of an inquiry ordered by the Senate, which has yet to be completed and will probably soon be abandoned.

No legislation will command the confidence of the public which is based upon unproven allegations of "collusion and fraud." Neither house of Congress can justify the expenditure of public money to finance a committee inquiry that flinches from finding all the facts available and following where the facts lead.

For this reason Senators and Representatives of both parties find themselves confused rather than enlightened by the unproven allegations made by a few members that all domestic air mail contracts were obtained by "collusion and fraud."

Joint Committee Should Investigate

AND because of this confusion, because a special committee of the Senate appointed to investigate and make findings in the light of the facts, has failed to discharge this duty, Congress may adjourn and leave to the executive branch the fair and fearless investigation of commercial aeronautics, on which thousands of dollars have already been squandered by the Senate to no useful purpose.

The next time Congress starts to "look diligently" into commercial aeronautics, alien intrigue and seditious conspiracies, the evils of the lobby or any one of a dozen other public questions upon which the light of an honest and effective Congressional inquiry ought to be turned, this responsibility should be entrusted to a joint committee of the two houses, carefully selected by the Vice President and the Speaker of the House.

The present Congress faces a joint investigating committee of the two houses. This is the challenge of alien intriguers and their domestic dupes who are engaged in sapping expeditions to undermine the government of the constitution. All summer might profitably be spent by such a committee exploring the trail of this conspiracy.

Human Side of the News

Alaska, Considerably Changed Since Klondike Days, Continues to Allure Gold Miners

By Edwin C. Hill

"This is the law of the Yukon and ever she makes it plain: Send not your foolish and feeble, send me your strong and sane."

THESE lines of Robert W. Service and the phantoms of his Dan McGrew, his Sam McGee and his lady who was known as Lou, leap to mind as the news comes from Seattle and Vancouver of steamers crowded to the gunwales with mining men and prospectors, heading north for Alaska and the Yukon Territory, lured to the gold fields by that magic price of $35 an ounce.

Our adventurers, the sourdoughs of 1934, are leaving with hopes high, with bands playing and with crowds at the piers to see them off. A few may make fortunes. The many will come back with less than they take. But none will face the danger, the privation, the starvation, the disease and the specter of death which traveled side by side with those 30,000 who came in 1897 and 1898 from the four corners of the earth to know the terrors of Chilkoot Pass and the sufferings of an Arctic winter.

Today paddlewheelers churn a regular service on the Yukon River, and the White Pass and Yukon Railway puffs its way along the bluffs and over the ravines, a route which parallels the trail of '98 from Skagway to White Horse. The airplane is omnipresent, and here and there the motorcar is usable, whereas in the historic rush it was only the tramp, tramp, tramp of hobnailed boots along one beaten path.

A Delightful Pleasure Journey

NOWADAYS the journey when made for pleasure, and not for gold, is a delight. The trim steamers of the North Pacific run up to Skagway, an inland passage along 1,000 miles of the coast of British Columbia and Alaska. And Skagway is no longer the collection of shacks and saloons of 35 years ago with Soapy Smith and his gang of thugs. Another 110 miles by train to White Horse at the headwaters of the Yukon and then it is 460 miles by the paddlewheeler to Dawson and the Klondike.

The scenry is gorgeous, and the train and boat ride a thrilling experience. There we find Bonanza Creek, where one day in 1896, George Carmack, a trapper and trader from California, with Robert Henderson and two Indians, Tagish Charlie and Skookum Jim, made the strike which was heard around the world. Carmack died a dozen years ago in Seattle, leaving $175,000 and considerable mining property.

Dawson City was built in a day, a roisterous place of 30,000 men and women of all races and all manner of morals. The population now is hardly 5,000, but order and modernization have supplanted Lynch Law and timber huts. A few of the old-timers remain, men gray and bent, still dreaming of discovering the great lost lode. And out in the Klondike fields the machinery of the mining companies digs for the yellow metal. Down here, scattered through our 48 state, are thousands of the survivors of the Klondike rush. They have their own club, The International Association of Sourdoughs, and their conventions are something to be remembered.

Klondike Pete, Diamond Merchant

WORKING about the grounds of the Masonic Home for the Aged at Fort Worth, Tex., is one Peter Kern, who, three decades and a half ago, was entertaining in his large cabin on the Yukon as Klondike Pete, the diamond merchant. Kern, in Chicago in 1897, put all his $12,000 into diamonds and took the stones to the Klondike.

"All the men were broke," as he tells the story. "The women had all the gold and how they did like diamonds. Why, man alive! I sold all those stones the very first day."

In no time he was the leading merchant of Skagway with its 165 saloons and sinful population. A clairvoyant steered Pete away from Alaska and down to El Paso, where business reversals dissipated his fortune.

Talking about women: It is the Eve of Christmas, 1900, in the dance hall known as the Savoy Theater in Dawson. Doing her turn on the stage is Klondike Kate, Queen of the Yukon. Out in the audience sits John Matson, a miner just in from the diggings. One look at Kate and Matson loses his heart. But who was he to woo a Queen? He kept his secret locked in his breast and went back to his claim. Kate came south with Alexander Pantages to give that gentleman his start in the theatrical world.

The years rolled by and Kate had gone to homesteading in Oregon. In August, 1929, the sourdough convention was held in Seattle. Kate Rockwood attended and the news of her presence was carried in the newspapers up to Matson's Creek, 100 miles above Dawson. John Matson took his pen in hand and for four years they corresponded, until John had the boldness to write:

"Will you marry me? I want to take care of you and make you happy."

And so they were married on July 14, 1933, by the Rev. George Pringle, himself the sky pilot of the roaring Klondike during the gold rush. Kate and John are back now in familiar scenes of that north to which which thousands are flocking—to that north where:

"This is the law of the Yukon, that only the strong shall thrive. That surely the weak shall perish and only the fit survive."
